PEARL AND OTIS:

Case of Missing Millionaire . . . More Twists Than a Whodunit

Former Independent, Press-Telegram staff writer James Phelan has been working on the bizarre Otis Birch case for more than five weeks. Now an investigative writer with the Saturday Evening Post, Phelan was the first person to find Birch, following the complex trail of Pearl Choate and the aged millionaire. Phelan's search led from Pasadena to Compton, to Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma.

By JAMES PHELAN

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. - The bizarre Case of the Missing California Millionaire exploded a few days ago in this tiny West Texas town and it had more plot twists than a paper-backed whodunit.

It is a story of strange disappearances, wild flights by ambulance, kidnap charges, threats of death, an old murder, one new death and a marriage obtained with a fishing license.

The central characters are a devout Pasadena

Baptist couple in their 90s and their brawny blonde

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Birch, of 431 Oaklawn Ave., South Pasadena, were longtime philanthropists who gave over $20 million to Baptist institutions during their lifetime.

Birch, a frail man weighing 100 pounds, is 95 years old. His wife, Estelle, who died here Oct. 7,

The nurse is Pearl Choate, 59, who stands 6 feet 1 inch and weighs 205 pounds. She has a police record running back to 1926 and served a prison term for murder.

Last Wednesday Pearl Choate married her 95year-old patient in Oklahoma while she was sought on a charge of kidnaping him. The ceremony took place in Mrs. Choate's flashy new red sedan. Birch is unable to walk because of a recent hip fracture. "Love is the only bond between us." the nurse told reporters after returning here and surrendering on the kidnap charge. "I already own all his property. He gave it to me months ago."

Birch, who can read only with a magnifying glass and is totally deaf, at first told a confused story about the marriage. He can be questioned only by large, printed messages.

In an interview hours after his return here, he first denied he was married, then said:

"I signed the license but I didn't know we were married. I sat in the car, I didn't go in. I didn't know he was a preacher. If that's all it took, then we're married.'

After the nurse wrote a series of messages to him, he has since consistently said that he is mar-ried. "I want to protect this little girl," he declared. The sensational windup of a five-month mystery has this Texas town of 6,300 buzzing with

"This is the dadblamedest thing that ever happened," said a courthouse loiterer. "I know it hap-pened, but I still don't believe it."

The story started a year and a half ago when friends of the Birches hired Mrs. Choate to take care of the aged couple. They were then residing in their large, South Pasadena home, which they purchased in 1911. It stands in 3 acres of ground and was the scene of lawn parties attended by as many as 500 guests back in the happier days of the Birches, who then employed five maids and a butler.

The powerful, big-boned nurse was selected at random from the Altadena Nurses Registry. She has testified here under oath that she has no valid nurse's license, either as registered nurse or as a

BRIDE WINS ROUND Oil Tycoon Wins Court Approval

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. (A) — Big blonde Pearl and her 95-year-old millionaire bridegroom became free Saturday to wander down the path of wedded bliss with the full authority of the state of Texas behind them.

Dist. Judge E. H. Griffin ruled that A. Otis Birch, 95, deaf and almost blind, was not being restrained of his liberties by his bride of four days, Mrs. Pearl Choate Birch, who had been his nurse since 1963.

Ben Dean Jr., attorney for Mrs. Martha Tulleys, a niece of Birch from Pasadena, Calif., said he would appeal the decision. He also said he was "contemplating a petition for a writ of babeas corpus in Federal District Court."

It did not matter to him, Birch said, that the 205-pound Mrs. Birch served a lengthy murder sentence. The philanthropist repeated in court that he did not want to return to California, where he once lived in South Pasadena.

Birch, one time oilman and citrus grower, testified at what, in effect, was a custody hearing pitting his new wife against his relatives and friends.

The marriage of Mrs. Choate and Birch four days ago set off a scurrying of friends and kin seeking to determine whether he was being held involuntarily by the new Mrs.

In testifying, the questions and answers went this way:

"Is Pearl Choate Birch holding you against your will?" Assuming the judge lold you you were free to go anywhere you wanted to, where would you go?"

"I would go to 1213 West First St., Breckenridge, Tex.

(where he and Mrs. Birch are residing)."

Brown Promises Home Tax Cut

Gov. Edmund G. Brown and an all-star cast made 10 whistle-stops in vote-rich Los Angeles County Saturday and Brown pledged to cut property taxes by $150 for the average homeowner.

Cheering, sign-bearing crowds ranging from about 300 to 1,500 greeted the streamlined "Progress Express" to hear Brown and entertainment world per-sonalities Bob Newhart, Dorothy Provine, Peter Falk and Gregory Peck.

Brown's tax reduction plan calls for a rebate of 50% of the tax paid on the first $15,000 of market value of a home either directly or through a personal income tax credit; a total rebate of about $400 million through federal income tax rebates to the state or, if Congress does not enact such a plan, through a new system "of less regressive taxes." PEOPLE IN THE NEWS Pike Calls for Release of Assassination Data

James A. Pike and Edward M. Keating, publisher of Ramparts Magazine, said Saturday they are forming a committee to ask President Johnson to release what they called "suppressed" evidence bearing on President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

Pike discussed the committee with newsmen on his arrival in New York City from the Wheeling, W. Va., meeting of the Episcopal House of Bishops which accepted a committee recommendation that heresy charges against him not be started, but censured Pike for "irresponsibility" in some statements espousing liberal theology.

Pike said he came to the conclusion that Ken-nedy was the victim of a conspiracy, not a lone assassin. The bishop said his thinking on the conspiracy possibly dated back a year.

Keating joined with the bishop at Kennedy Airport to discuss the committe. Pike stopped off there en route to a church meeting in Cleveland.

Both men said they would accept the lone-assassin theory if it were confirmed by examination of the "suppressed" evi-

Keating charged that about 90% of the data from the Central Intelligence Agency and about 50% of the FBI's evidence was withheld.

The Warren Commission, in the foreword to its report, said it got full cooperation from all agencies, including the CIA and FBI, and that it was "committing all of its reports and working papers to the National Archives, where they can be permanently preserved under the rules and regulations of the National Archives and applicable Tederal law."

The commission found no evidence, it said, that anyone assisted the accused Lee Harvey Oswald in planning or carrying out the assassination. It RELATIVES now complain that Mrs. Choate took too much charge of the Birches.

This summer, the Birches and Mrs. Choate disappeared from Pasadena shortly after Mrs. Birch underwent surgery in Beverly Hills. Mrs. Choate took them first to her modest two-bedroom apartment at 718 Cypress St. in Compton and shortly drove the aged man and his critically ill wife to Ensenada, a Mexican resort below Tijuana.

Relatives from Iowa and California Baptist friends, unaware of the move, enlisted the aid of law officials, Early in July, the Birches were 10cated in Ensenada and interviewed by investigators from the Los Angeles district attorney's office.

Within hours after the D. A.'s men left, Mrs. Choate took the aged pair out of Mexico to Compton. They stayed there one night and vanished again without leaving any forwarding address.

Subsequent investigation has determined that they travelled in Mrs. Choate's car to Artesia, N.M. There, Mr. Birch broke his hip. Mrs. Choate drove the injured man and his ailing wife 600 miles, down to Harlengen, Tex. There Birch underwent hip surgery in a Harlengen hos-

Veteran Writer on 'Wildest Case'

By VIRGIL E. MOORE Editor, Breckenridge America

James Phelan wears a short-brimmed hat which looks as though it is made of canvas. On his jacket, he has a button given him by a rental car agency which reads "We try harder." Jim earns the right to wear that button.

The ace Saturday Evening Post writer has been working on the Otis Birch case for more than five weeks. He is: the man who traced Birch, a wealthy California oilman, to Breckenridge He got on the story when one of Birch's relatives wrote a letter to the editor of the Post asking them to try to find Birch. Birch has no children and no close relatives.

Phelan, who is married to a clinical psychologist and has two daughters, has worked for many of the nation's: magazines as an investigative writer.

This case is the wildest one l've run into," he said.

HE HAD HIGH PRAISE for the cooperation given him by Breckenridge attorney Ben Dean Jr. and Sheriff Chase Booth. 'That's one fine lawyer and one fine lawman," Phelan said.

Phelan says there was no particular talent that helped him uncover the nurse's criminal record.

'It was sitting there all the time, both in Austin and back in my home state of California, in the Criminal Investigation and Identification file in Sacramento. Although the Birch case has been investigated by police and the Los Angeles D.A., nobody thought to look."

The pictures were the first successfully transmitted to earth from an orbiting Soviet moon probe, duplicating a similar American feat in Au-

Two of the Soviet pictures appeared sharp and clear on Moscow television less than an hour after the announcement that the spacecraft, Luna 12, was photographing the moon.

The United States announced that Lunar Orbiter 1 crashed on command into the back side of the moon Saturday to keep its radio signals from interfering with a American maon new probe set for next month. Luna 12 apparently was taking pictures at the time America ended the Lunar orbiter flight but the Soviet announcement said nothing about photographing the crash.

Greek Quake

AGRINION, Greece (A) An earthquake just before dawn crumpled village dwellings in tobaccogrowing central Greece Saturday and sent thousands of persons fleeing their homes in nightclothing. National police in Athens reported one person was killed and 23 others were injured.

Officials placed the epicenter of the earthquake as being near Agrinion, about 160 miles northwest of Athens. A 900foot bridge spanning two lakes near Agrinion col-lapsed as five farmers crossed it in a truck. They were rescued but critically injured.

National police said 80% of one-story farm dwellings in the villages of Fities, Katuna and Xiromeri were destroyed.

Long Beach's city levy will be a record high of $15,232,739.

Tax bills for Orange County were mailed Oct. 15 to 341,286 property owners, and 11.702 already have made payments.

THE TOTAL Orange County levy is $223,527,168, and at the close of business Friday, payments had totaled nearly $3.9 million. The 11,-702 payments included 6,296 property owners who paid both installments.

For all three jurisdictions the taxes may be paid in two installments.

The first installment is due Monday, Nov. 1, and becomes delinquent if not paid by Dec. 12. Normally, the delinquent date for the first installment is Dec. 10, but that is a Saturday this year, so the deadline is extended to Monday Dec. 12.

The second installment for all three jurisdictions is due Feb. 1, and must be paid on or before April 10 to avoid penalties for delinquency.

Late payment of Long Beach city taxes will result in an 8% penalty. Los Angeles County levies a 6% penalty for delinquent payments.

and rally permit for the American Nazi Party will be held Monday in Torrance.

Jim Moss, Torrance license superintendent, said the party has not reapplied for the per mit after being turned down by the License Review Board two weeks ago

The American Nazi Party had applied for a permit to hold a rally and parade in Walteria Park on Nov. 5. A party spokesman told the Review Board that they wanted to hold the rally before election day.

At the length hearing two weeks ago, the License Re view Board turned down the permit request because of the park being used by junior football on the requested day.

The board did suggest that the party file a new request designating a different loca-tion and date. The hearing on any new request was set for 3 p.m. Monday.

Moss said no one from the party has contacted his office regarding a new permit. He said that the hearing will still be held as planned because it was set at the previous meet-

MAGGIE BELLOWS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Firstaid techniques aren't going to cure this country's sick cities. But Baltimore architect Archibald C. Rogers, head of the firm which planned the central business district renewals of Cincinnati, Hartford, Conn., Albany, N.Y., and the Baltimore Charles Center and public squares proiects, advocates one "firsttactic: attack each city's "public skeleton."

The "public skeleton" as Rogers calls it is the part of the city that is publicly owned - the streets, sidewalks, parks, schools and other public buildings. It makes up from 30% to 50% of a typical city.

"In the slums, the public skeleton is often dirty, clut-tered, a jumble of poles and wires, a goulash of concrete, asphalt and shattered glass,' Rogers says. "This park-ofthe-poor depresses the inhabitants, shakes the confidence of the private property owner. Bad city housekeeping actually hastens the decay.

ROGERS SUGGESTS a new approach, similar to the principle advocated by some educators of putting the best schools in the worst neighborhoods, where they are needed most.

"Take just one area as a starting point, put in trees, arcades, canopies, benches, sculpture and other art. Create small parks where possible—even in a vacant lot in the middle of a block. Create order and art, new patterns in paving, coordinated design in street furniture such as light standards, hydrants, call boxes, rubbish containers.

"This would stimulate a sense of pride among the residents of that neighborhood," Rogers suggests. "Private renewal will follow quickly behind."

Such a project, he believes, would be simple, quick and dramatic in its results. And it might have the added result of "lessening the riot potential that simmers so close to the surface in those chaotic areas, if the renewal work provides jobs for unemployed."

Rogers says the cities are the challenge of today. "The five centuries of east-to-west migration in search of Utopia are coming to an end. And America is now in an age of confused milling about, a circular migration, with the poor fleeing from rural slums to urban slums and the well-off fleeing to the suburbs.

"WE HAVE BEEN trying to meet this challenge with first-aid techniques—separate programs for housing, for center-city renewal, for aiding disadvantaged people.

"Now America must begin to tackle all its social and physical problems as the inter-related tangle they actually are.' America must rebuild its cities, this architect is convinced. In the next 34 years the population will double and "We'll be forced into a building spree to build as much housing and other physical facilities in three and a half decades as were built in three and a half centuries since Jamestown. "How America rebuilds its cities is the focal point of whether America's civilization will decline or enter the golden age."

Backlash No Valid Issue, Reagan Says

The so-called "white backlash" should not be an issue in the California gubernatorial campaign, Republican nominee Ronald Reagan said Saturday.

Poll Says Tax Top Concern

By BOB HOUSER

James A. Hayes, Republican nominee for Assembly, 39th District (East Long Beach-Signal Hill), announced Saturday a recent district poll revealed that the problem of taxes ranked first among concerns of voters here.

He said 32% of respondents "raised the cry against present tax levels and the bovernment levels."

Next in order of concern were: Legislation against rising crime (28%); welfare abuses and costs (19%); smog controls and rapid transit ranking next. He said the poll showed 14% remarking on a variety of issues including obscene literature controls, aid to senior citizens and "anti" demonstrations by college students.

Second choice items ranked: welfare, 27%; crime, 16%; taxes, 16%, and smog,

Hayes said these voter suggestions would form his program of action in the state legislature. And he pledged to push for economies, fight for stricter and more effective law enforcement and crime prevention, stress realistic qualifications and controls for welfare assistance "and above all, fight for a government that is respon sive to the people and responsible for its action."

A MAJORITY of those who have balloted so far in Beach Combing's "Who'll Win?'' contest think Ronald Reagan will. And a majority see Glenn Anderson as win-ner in the lieutenant governor race.

Fifty-five per cent of the entrants up to this time predict Reagan as the gubernatorial winner, with 45% forecasting a Pat Brown victory. On lieutenant governor, 60% foresee a win for incumbent Anderson, with Bob Finch getting 40%.

That's the way it stands now. But these percentages may be changed with the fi-nal rush of ballots in the next two days.

Deadline for entering the contest is Tuesday — ballots must be postmarked not fater than Nov. 1.

So now's the time to get in your bid for one of the cash prizes. See entry blank and rules below.

N THIS prophecy-for-profit project, contestants give their judgment as to who they think will win, not necessarily who they want to

One of the hardest-nosed Republicans I know marked his entry blank happily for Reagan, grudgingly for Anderson. He thinks Finch a sound candidate, but not well enough known.

On the other hand, another close political observer figures Finch may be pulled through in the wake of a heavy vote for Reagan, gives the GOP lieutenant governor a narrow victory.

But there are a lot of others who think the Republicans are lost in a dizzy dream, and can't win on ei-ther count. Want to get into the argument?

ONE contestant sees it as real close. He figures Reagan as a winner by 750 votes. Other estimates of the difference between the vote totals of the candidates run as high as 1,000,000.

In 1958, Gov. Brown beat Wm. Knowland by 1,029,165. In 1962, he beat Richard Nixon by 296,758.

It is estimated that about 6,700.000 votes will be cast in the Nov. 8 election.

If you're a good predictor on how these votes will be divided, you can win some Christmas shopping cash.

It's all for fun and cashand incidentally, this is one contest that won't raise the price of groceries.

ERE'S THE lowdown on Governorship division ---First prize, $40; second, $10; five prizes of $5 each.

Lt. Governorship — First prize, $40; second, $10; five prizes of $5 each.

Fill in your estimates on the entry blank below, giving in each case the MARGIN OF VICTORY in votes of the man you think will be on top when it's all over Nov. 8. Paste the form on a card and mail to Who'll Win Contest, Independent, Press-Telegram, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

Small-Fry Give Navy the Eye

What can you peek into, climb up on and study for hours on end? A naval station, of course. Hundreds of visitors, especially the young ones, spent Saturday exploring the facilities of the Long Beach Naval Station on Terminal Island. The special program, which concludes today, is part of the California International Sca Festival at Long Beach. Saturday, youngsters gazed at the huge naval ships, clambered over piles of hawser, inspected giant anchor chains and generally felt as though they had seen the world. Ten ships, including guided missile frigates, destroyers, a fleet oiler and ocean minesweepers, will be ready for inspection today at Piers 15 and 9 from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Physically fit visitors can hike out to Pier 10 to see the special display aboard the net layer USS Butternut. Navy station visitors are advised to enter through Gates 1 and 9, where Marine sentries will direct them to the various piers and displays. The final event of the month-long Sea Festival will be a parade on Ocean Boulevard. It will begin on Alamitos Avenue today at 1 p.m.

MAKE-UP FISHING TRIP Boys Clubbers Go to Sea--'Daddy' Dehner Baits Hooks

A score of Hollywood boys whose lives just don't include fishing trips with dad were given their saltwater angling expedition Saturday - with a dozen actors and actresses playing a parental role.

The youngsters were guests on the second annual Children Fishing Derby sponsored by veteran character actor John Dehner and Pacific Landing.

wood, the boys mainly come from broken homes where the mothers work as the only family support and where the fathers' presence is lacking. The annual fishing derby was originated last year by Dehner, whose familiar visage has appeared in many a stern role on movie and TV screen, but whose offscreen life is one of kindness and generosity.

Dehner proposed to the Boys Club that he pick up the tab for fishing prizes for all boys who want to come on the trip, the meals for the crowd and that he recruit a group of fellow players as companions for the lads.

"This has been a real great day," he said Saturday on return from the Horseshoe Kelp fishing ground, when he was asked if he planned to continue the events.

"We have such a good time - all of us, as well as the boys — that as far as I'm concerned I'm going to keep on sponsoring these forever.

As for the boys, they came ashore from the 65-foot sportfishing boat Estrella wearing smiles of joy, each one carrying a hurlap bag with some kind of product of the deep hanging in it.

AMONG THE ADULTS, the biggestfish pool was won by Gig Young with a catch of a 6-pound bonito. He turned the prize money over to the Boys Club.

The other actors and actresses who made the trip included Mala Powers, Barbara Luna, Karen Steele, Ross Martin, John Saxon, Fabian, Ron Harper, Glenn Corbett, Peter Fonda and Ray Middleton.

The Estrella, captained by Jimmy Goldsworthy, and all fishing gear and supplies were donated for the trip by Pacific Landing.

WITH HIS CATCH bagged safely in burlap, Harold Parkinson, 7, of Hollywood, discusses the day's outing with John Dehner, well-known character actor who is "angel" for the annual fishing derby.

Our Choices for State Positions

CALIFORNIA'S Constitution gives statewide officers great responsibilities. Their appointive powers and freedom to formulate policies independent of the governor provide them with more latitude for action than many states

Incumbents now occupy all four positions. In three of the races, challengers have presented personal qualifications and programs for change which would bring new vigor and direction into the administration of these important executive departments.

ATTORNEY GENERAL -

Thomas C. Lynch, incumbent, was appointed to this most important post by Gov. Edmund G. Brown in 1964 after praiseworthy service as San Francisco district attorney. He has been a judicious attorney general. His relationships with local law enforcement agencies have been excellent.

Since Lynch took office, more than 50 laws adding to society's arsenal against crime have been passed, many of them initiated by him. The use of computers in detecting, analyzing and solving crime has gone forward rapidly. Exchange of information between myriad local law agencies and the state has been expanded through better communications established by Lynch. He has led the fight, locally and nationally, against narcotics traffic, and his proposals for sensible gun laws have drawn wide support. No one has been more effective than Lynch in tracking down and exposing the armed hate groups which infest our state.

Lynch, a Democrat, deserves reelection on the basis of an excellent record.

CONTROLLER — California's controller is responsible for collecting taxes and disbursing state funds, Houston I. Flournoy, a Republican whose three terms in the State Assembly have given him an excellent background in state fiscal matters, is our choice in this race.

cally appointed inheritance tax ap- good job.

Prop. E Will Help Kids

One county-wide bond issue -Prop. E - appears on the Nov. 8 ballot.

The proposal calls for issuing $3,250,000 in bonds to build badly needed housing facilities for delinquent and non-delinquent children in the county.

Part of the funds will go toward providing new housing at Los Padrinos Juvenile Hall in Downev. Since 1960 the number of delinquent children has been increasing an average of 4.4% yearly and this has sorely taxed present quarters.

In addition there has been an increase in the number of dependent children (non-delinquent) who require protective care in county facilities. Funds from Prop. E will be used to build cottage type structures on the grounds of county hospitals so that these unfortunate boys and girls can live in smaller groups rather than in a large institutional setting.

This type of construction is cheaper, Responsibility for care of anybody here?

praisers these newspapers have long crusaded against. Flournoy has promised to get rid of political hacks who occupy these posts and replace them with qualified, professional appraisers. His proposals for complete revision of the inheritance tax appraiser system would end a pernicious and long-standing practice of financing politics out of the estates of widows and orphans.

Now an associate professor of government at Pomona College and Claremont Graduate School, Flournoy possesses a background of six years on state legislative committees dealing with finance, education, water, and local govern-

SECRETARY OF STATE—For the past 24 years, this office has been occupied by 78-year-old Frank Jordan. Under his administration, antique voting machinery has not kept pace with the growth of California's population. It is unconscionable that the most modern state in the union sometimes has to wait days to learn the outcome of an election. Here is a case where it is time for change.

Change in this case is represented by Norbert A. Schlei, a Democrat. He has just completed four years of service in Washington as head of the Justice Department's office of legal counsel. It was Schlei who made the international legal case for quarantine of Cuba during the 1962 missile crisis, thus attracting world support to Uncle Sam's side. He participated in drafting many major federal laws. A one-time law clerk to a conservative Supreme Court justice, Schlei also is a national authority on corporation law, one of the chief areas of responsibility of the Secretary of State's office. We endorse his candidacy.

★ ★ ★ TREASURER — For this office we recommend Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, who was treasurer of the United States from 1953 to 1961 during the Eisenhower administration. Mrs. Priest has been active in national Republican women's groups, and her views as a woman should be helpful in the higher councils of state government.

BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

As board member for the southern eight counties of the state, we recommend re-election of Richard Nevins, who has held the position since 1958. The complex job of overseeing and administering tax Flournoy has pledged that he collections and appeals requires exwould "destroy the last remnant of perience. Manila Played Down Role of Whites

ENROUTE WITH PRESIDENT JOHNSON-During the Manila Conference held last week, the role of the white man was subordinated as much as possible.

Of the seven nations represented at the conference, four-The Philippines, South Korea, South Viet Nam and Thailand represented people of dark hue. Three-Australia, New Zealand and the United States-represented populations which were preponderantly white.

The subordination of the whites vas part of a deliberate plan, although it is doubtful whether they could have succeeded in dominating the conference completely even had they chosen

THE MANILA conference marked in some ways the end of the era where the white man went pretty much his own way in Asia. The United States could obviously have taken the leading role in the meetings. By sheer weight of its power in the world and because all the other participating nations were, to a greater or lesser degree beholden to the U.S., had the U.S. chosen to command, the rest would by law of gravity been obliged to obey. The U.S. did not choose to play that role partially because to soft-pedal its own power seemed to be the best politics and diplomacy and partially because the day when the white man can thump the table has simply gone.

Everyone of course listened to President Johnson and his pronouncements and views were accorded the

For the conference observer, for instance, it was almost impossible to realize that Australia and New Zealand were participants. The briefings of the American delegation at no time made mention of the Anzacs. Australia and New Zealand do, to be sure, have interests which are not entirely those of their neighbors north of the equator. Their cultures, their histories, and many of their vital interests are quite different from those of the dark Asians. Yet in the essential interest of national security, the two island nations feel themselves frighteningly threatened by what goes on in Southeast Asia and it was this interest which brought them to the conference table along with the other Asian nations,

Unlawful Law No Law, Says Finch

A LAW WHICH will be declared unconstitutional is no law at all. That's the summation of GOP lieutenant governor nominee Robert H. Finch in declaring his opposition to Proposition 16, the CLEAN amendment, on the November ballot.

It also carries the risk, if passed, of throwing out every existing antipornography law now in force in California, Finch says. For these reasons and because he is a lawyer and a father of four children under 16, Finch said this week he is offering suggested legislation

BOB HOUSER

"which would serve the urgent need of controlling and eliminating the flood of obscene literature in California while satisfying the vital constitutional safeguards,

The proposed law aims at keeping obscene stuff out of the hands of people under 18. But it does not attempt to determine what adults can read. And it leaves parents, teachers and librarians completely unrestricted. * * *

FINCH'S suggested legislation, which has received favorable comment from the archbishop of the Los Angeles Diocese, Cardinal Francis J. McIntyre, also takes a distributor off the hook if he demanded bonafide identification to prove age and was shown false information.

Another defense against prosecution is for the seller or distributor to include in advertisement for his material a notice that it is unlawful for anyone under 18 to purchase it, and that if one under 18 gives a false age for the purpose of obtaining the matter that person is guilty of a misdemeanor under California law.

Despite the archbishop's favor and the fact that New York's highest court has upheld a law on which this one is based, the legislation is virtu-'ally certain to turn blue noses bluer, particularly in a subsection titled "Limitation of scope,"

THE SECTION READS: "Nothing public library from distributing to any person under 18 years of age any corruptive matter as defined herein. Nothing contained herein shall prohibit any parent from distributing to his child any corruptive matter as defined herein."

Another section of the proposed law would crack down on a wholesale distributor who forces the retailer to take some obscene or corruptive matter along with his regular merchandise order. A wholesaler who revokes or threatens to revoke a distributing franchise or otherwise penalizes the retailer for not taking the obscene stuff would be guilty of a misde-

The people who intend to vote "yes" on Prop. 16, however, probably couldn't even swallow the legislation's definition of obscenity. It retains the current constitutional test that to be obscene it must be "utterly without redeeming social impor-tance." In determining the "social importance" to a child, says the proposed law, the test of the matter in question is its effect on children of the same general age group, having average intelligence, average mental health and average moral standards.

THOUGHTS

Rejoice, O young man, in your youth, and let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth; walk in the ways of your heart and the sight of your eyes. But know that for all these things God will bring you into judgment.-Eccl. 11:9.

Keep true to the dreams of thy youth.—Johann Schiller, German poet.

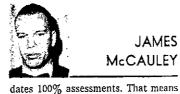

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO-The state's most colorful politician, Mrs. Irene Hickman, isn't running for governor. But in Northern California she is taking headline play from Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Ronald Reagan.

Her secret: Controversial shockers. Mrs. Hickman, newly elected Sacramento County assessor, first blazed into the public spotlight when she revealed she was going to assess property at 100% of market value.

* * * THAT BOMBSHELL alone could have catapulted Mrs. Hickman squarely into the public eye for some time to come. For one thing, she noted that the state constitution man-

that if she wins inevitable court tests and overthrows the 25% - assessing tradition, it will jolt every county tax structure in California.

But Mrs. Hickman, newly elected in the assessor-reform wave which recently swept the state, didn't rest her laurels on overhauling the state's property-tax valuation methods, Mrs. Hickman, a hypnotist and osteopathic physician, also blabbed to reporters about her "three lives." It turns out, she insists, that a century ago, Mrs. Hickman was the son of a Southern secessionist plantation owner.

THERE ALSO was an earlier life in the 1700s, she added, but "that one 1 don't talk about."

Her assaults on present assess ment methods aren't her only trips. Mrs. Hickman praises the drug LSD, saying it enhances extrasensory faculties, "It did for me," she explained. The present furor over 100% assessments may be reuniting a familiar all-star cast from the three lives of Mrs. Hickman.

Of the Sacramento County supervisors who sharply question her assessment plan, Mrs. Hickman says: "Individuals hostile to each other repeatedly cross paths . . . I know I have known the supervisors be-

* * HYPNOTIST Hickman also says she uesd hypnosis to help a girl relieve her childhood and previous lives.

Mrs. Hickman has a side battle under way with the U.S. Post Office. Street numbers were re-assigned in her neighborhood, handing her old number to someone else. She refused to change numbers, and now some of her mail goes undelivered because it is addressed to an unposted number.

MANSION

However, postal numbers and other lives aren't the significant issue revolving around Mrs. Hickman, Her opponents and critics question how anyone could be so naive to assess at 100% of value just because the constitution says you must.

On this assessment issue, it may turn out ultimately that Mrs. Hick man is right and most of the other county officials statewide are eccentric. Imagine anyone in this modern era sticking to the constitution for government decisions - rather than seeking a loophole. Only the 100-yearold son of a Southern secessionist would think of it!

Hungary Is Better Now

By DON OAKLEY Newspaper Enterprise Association

STRICTLY speaking, there was no such thing as the Hungarian Revolu-

Webster identifies a revolution as "a fundamental change in political organization, or in a government or constitution; the over-throw or renunciation of one government or ruler, and the substitution of another, by the

What resulted from that great human convulsion 10 years ago was no fundamental change in political organization, and however different the government of the Hungarians was afterwards, it was certainly not instituted by the governed.

Yet this event was far more than an abortive revolt or uprising, a minor footnote in history. It was a terrific blow to Russian prestige and the cause of international communism. The gunning down of Hungarians in the streets of Budapest by Soviet tanks gave the world unmistakable proof that Russian hegemony over its Eastern European satellites was based on one thing alone - naked force.

Was it worth It?

NEA correspondent Tom A. Cullen asked himself that question when he visited Budapest this month. The answer he gives is a qualified yes. Superficially, he reports, life is better for the average Hungarian than it was at the time of the revolt. There is better pay, more food, more luxuries, a little more freedom.

Red army divisions may remain the ultimate source of Russian influence and control, but the peoples of the satellites have gained a measure of indenpendence that is startling when looked back on over 10 years.

Historians may argue about how much the impact of the Hungarian revolution inspired these evolutionary changes taking place within the Communist bloc, or about what the West could or should have done during those days when Hungary was in its agony and calling for aid.

But no one can say that this cataclysmic event in history, this flaming up of the tiny fire of freedom that seems to burn eternal and unquenchable in the human breast, was a revolution that utterly failed.

READING, PA. — A little before 11 o'clock this past Tuesday morning, Republican Raymond P. Shafer, 48, arrived at Albright College. Capture the moment, if you will:

A small college, quadrangled, a town clock chiming; a cluster of old classroom buildings, a new library. It is raining -- not a downpour, but a cold and intermittent drizzle. The autumn foliage has the faded look of worn rugs. The curbs are thick with golden leaves, glistening feebly in the Shafer is his party's candidate for Governor. The day before had seen him campaigning in northeastern Pennsylvania — in Tioga, Bradford, Wyoming, Carbon and Luzerne counties. He had spent the night in Wilkes-Barre, where he had spoken to a rally of 2,000 persons in the armory. Early Tuesday, he and his party had boarded three helicopters, and now they are working the rolling country of Berks and Lehigh counties.

★ ★ ★ HE ARRIVES on campus in the first of three bustling station-wagons, stickered and beribboned, to be greeted by pretty girls in Shafer hats. As he comes striding up the walk, he is every inch the candidate: Bareheaded, handsome, smiling, waving, shaking every hand in reach. Inside the auditorium doors, he faces a flight of eight steps. Without pausing, he takes the first two in one dynamic bound - and quite magically, for no explainable reason, his entrance produces a moment of pure catharsis. The whole fantastic phenomenon of the American political campaign suddenly is captured in a split-second tableau: the candidate, head high, hand in air, leaping up the steps, to the applause of straw-hatted girls too young to

I offer the moment to you as a symbol, as a tribute. Doubtless Shafer's opponent, Democrat Milton Shapp, was not far away, in Pottsing up a few steps of his own. It is a part of the ritual that candidates, at least until they reach the rank of elder statesmen, must always take their stairs two steps at a time. They must smile until their jaws ache, and wave until their arms give out, and they must never show fatigue. If it is drizzling, they must go among the people bareheaded, without raincoats, because candidates must demonstrate their stamina. On the campaign trail, no candidate can walk; candidates always stride.

Candidates Bounce on Stairs

It is perhaps a sentimental gesture to wish them well, all of them, wherever they are tonight, whatever befalls them when the spotlights fade on Tuesday week. Campaign time is a great and gaudy time in these United ville or Shamoykin or Berwick, bound- States. It is exhausting, exhilarating, boring, exciting. It is showtime, played on the vastest stage on earth, and don't let any of the cynics tell you that it isn't packed with suspense and tears and laughter.

To be sure, the drama has its faults. Most campaign oratory is partisan hooey, long on hokum, short on truth. The candidate who is "delighted to be here" quite often is revolted by the thought. His eyes ache, his feet hurt, his stomach still growls from the offenses of Wilkes-Barre or Pottsville or wherever. He is worried about money, about local kooks who cost him votes, about the competence of some of the hangers-on around him. Mostly he is worried about losing. He is dead tired, and tomorrow is never more than a few hours off.

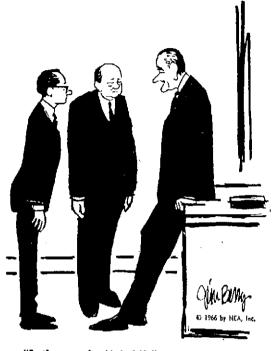

Bangor, Me., May Become Jet Terminal

THE DEFENSE Department is making a study to determine the possi-bility that Bangor, Maine, become the Atlantic coast terminal for the massive supersonic air transports now being built.

Bangor's Dow Air Force Base, a Strategic Air Command facility, is due to be deactivated in June, 1968.

Part of the survey is to determine the feasibility of establishing a foreign trade zone in the area of the airfield.

In such a zone, a company could manufacture, assemble or process American and foreign-made goods without paying duty on the imports until the article is sold.

Duty is paid only on the materials used and none paid on the loss in manufacturing. If the article is shipped out of the country, duty is avoided. The areas may also be used for warehousing and transhipping.

The proposals suggest that the giant supersonics land at Bangor and unload their cargoes into smaller jet transports for shipment to Eastern

Magnuson Tour Lifted Ban on Red Products

DREW PEARSON

Commerce Committee, who had made a long tour through Russia, Poland, Bulgaria and other Communist countries, checking on the prospect of trade between them and the United States.

Magnuson reported that all of the European Communist nations are anxious for both tourist exchange and trade with the United States; also that our trade barriers were more of an irritant than of any value. He found that our NATO allies, headed by West Germany, Great Britain and France, were doing a thriving business with the Communist world, and he recommended that we should do likewise.

In Bulgaria, meeting with Premier Zhivkov, Sen. Magnuson found a lot of interest, not only in more trade with the United States, but in U.S. purchases of Turkish tobacco.

WITH MAGNUSON and Zhivkov during this part of the trip was Leonard Marks, chief of the U.S. Information Agency.

Marks pointed out that Bulgaria is the only Communist country which still jams the Voice of America, and asked how Bulgaria could promote tourism unless its people were permitted to know and understand

"I could end the jamming of the Voice of America in two minutes," said Premier Zhivkov, leaning forward. "But after that, what would I have left to trade?" Discussions have been continuing on a diplomatic level to find out what the U.S.A. can trade with Bulgaria to get the Voice unjammed.

THE SUGGESTION that led to the historic Manila Conference originally came from able, amiable Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, who, upon his return from a Far Eastern inspection trip last February, urged:

"It would seem proper and timely for the United States and its allies in South Viet Nam to explore the possibility of encouraging a conference of Far East nations for the purpose undertaking to persuade Hanoi to enter into peaceful negotiations . . .

"On January 18, the President called for U.S. participation in the Asian Development Bank. There are 19 eligible Far East nations which have pledged to participate. If these countries can join together to operate bank for economic development, they ought to be able to join together to seek peace in their area."

The State Department talked to Miller about the idea, later proposed it to the President. * * *

WHILE THE Justice Department's alleged trustbuster, Donald Turner, twiddles his thumbs and talks about going back to teach at Harvard, business mergers have jumped 25%.

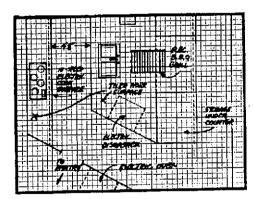

"The decisions made in the names of these huge companies guide and govern, directly and indirectly, all of our lives," warns Prof. Andrew Hacker of Columbia University, noting this wave of mergers. "They influence what we buy, the nature and locale of our work, education, social objectives, as well as the parts of the country that will prosper or stagnate.'

Reports Irving Beller, AFL-CIO economist: "The current merger movement involves the giants and semigiants of American industry, not just little concerns struggling to keep their heads above water.1

He named: Philco, Sperry, Sylvania, Glenn L. Martin, Squibb and Son, American Viscose, Pure Oil, Frito-Lay, Royal McBee, Briggs Mfg., Bell Aircraft and Doehler-Jarvis.

He added: "These, however, were only the better-known among the departed. A total of 811 manufacturing and mining firms, each with assets of at least $10 million, disappeared through merger from 1948 to 1965. Significantly, very few were failing

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) - The question Saturday was: Who is buried in Roy G. Small's grave?

Four years ago, when they lowered the body, every-body, including Small's wife and family thought it was Small.

Now they know it isn't because Small, 62, confronted them at a hearing by the Social Security Administration in East St. Louis, Ill. When the body was found in an alley in St. Louis in 1962, everybody thought it was Small, including Wade Granberry, the undertaker, who once employed Small as a chauffeur. An autopsy revealed the man had died of a heart at-

At the time the body was discovered, Small had been missing from his Kinloch, Mo., home for some eight years. With the death official, his wife, Mrs. Bernice Small, 53, applied for survivor's social security benefits.

Two years ago, the payments stopped abruptly, and when Mrs. Small inquired as to why, Social Security person-net told Mrs. Small her husband was still alive.

Mrs. Small, who has 16 children, obtained an attorney through the Legal Aid Society. The attorney told the Social Security people to produce Small if he was alive. Last Tuesday they did.

"IT WAS a terrible mistake," Mrs. Small said, "I don't know how it happened. The body we identified looked exactly like my husband's . . . I'm too shocked about the whole thing."

The Social Security Administration, which has made no judgment in the case as to whether Mrs. Small should repay the money she received, said it discovered that Small was alive and working when he applied for benefits at Greenville, Ky., where he had been living and working.

Mrs. Small and her son, Roy Small Jr., all agreed the man who showed up at the hearing at East St. Louis was Small. So did Granberry, who asked the man questions about the Small family.

"I had a talk with him (Small) and we'll just wait and see if he will send me any money," Mrs. Small said.

MRS. BALLARD . . . 'It's Very Exciting'

Assignment Africa — L.B. Grandmother

By BOB SANDERS

One of Long Beach's outstanding teachers, mother of four and grandmother of eight, is starting out on a new adventure Wednesday.

She is Mrs. Ellen Ballard, speed-reading instructor at Long Beach City College.

She is going halfway around the world to teach English teachers how to teach English in the little Republic of Tanzania on the east coast of Africa.

She is one of five teachers in the United States who were picked for this special assignment

The project is sponsored by the National Edummuittee fairs. It is financed by the Republic of Tanzania, a new country formed by combining Tanganyika and the islend of Zanzibar.

THE IDEA IS TO UPGRADE the teaching of English, one of the two principal languages of Tanzania. The other is Swahili.

So, how did it come about that Mrs. Ballard was chosen to do one-fifth of this jub?

Well, it seems that Dr. Doris Gregory, supervisor of counseling and psychological services for the Long Beach Unified School District, recommended Mrs. Ballard for the job about a month ago.

Monday, Mrs. Ballard received a telegram from Washington, D.C., NEA headquarters that she had been chosen "Things have been happning pretty fast since then," Mrs. Bailard says. "I've had to get shots and passports and papers filled out. I've had to make arrangements for a leave of absence and a substitute teacher for my classes here. I'm trying to learn all 1 can about Tanzania before I go.

"It's very exciting,"

WEDNESDAY MRS. BALLARD will fly to Washington for a one-day briefing, That's when she will meet for the first time the four other English teachers who complete the project personnel.

Friday she will be flown to Dar es Salaam, the capital of Tanzania. From there the five teachers will go to the five top colleges in the country and start their work,

They will be teaching elementary school teachers. Each American teacher will be assigned to a college. Mrs. Ballard probably wun't know until she arrives in Dar es Salaam to which of the colleges she will be assigned.

"It's a challange," says the vivacious Mrs. Bal-

MOSCOW (A) - A record lift by an airplane - 88 metric tons — was claimed Saturday for the huge Soviet AN 22 Anteus transport.

Soviet authorities said the load lifted to 6,500 meters (21,325 feet) on Thursday took the record away from American-made Douglas C133A transport that lifted 53.5 metric tons in 1958. A metric ton is 2,204.6 pounds. The load claimed by the Soviets would be about 194,000 pounds. The American total

Communist China Flies Guided Missile with Nuclear Warhead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Amid "Barrio Fiestas" and violent anti-American demonstrations, the Manila conference was held. And then came the final communique.

President Johnson and the heads of six other nations signed it Tuesday. It said, in essence that the United States would quit South Viet Nam within six months after North Viet Nam withdrew its forces. After a brief silence, the other side rejected it in scorn and vituperation. By week's end it was nearly forgotten.

WHAT WAS not forgotten was President Johnson's quick, secret, dramatic and brief (2 hours, 24 minutes) visit to Viet Nam, and, a cloud over all, Red China's announcement that it had successfully flown a guided missile with a nuclear warhead. The latter news was the lasting imprint of the week.

Perhaps the lethal warhead had only gone 500 miles, but that was enough to reach, from the rim of Red China, to places like Korea, Japan, Viet Nam, Thailand and Formosa. The meaning of the flight was not lost on a worried

AND OFF to the side, President Charles De Gaulle of France held another of his semi-annual monologuic news conferences. Intoned the French leader: Viet Nam was a stalemate, the United States could not win, nor could it lose, therefore why not withdraw? The United States should stop bombing North Viet Nam, because "France cannot stand to see a small people bombarded by a great

De Gaulle apparently had not digested the message President Johnson gave the American troops at Cam Ranh Bay. That was: "I give you my pledge. We shall never let you down, nor your fighting comrades, nor the 15 million people of South Viet Nam, nor the hundreds of millions of Asians who are counting on us to show here in Viet Nam that aggression does not pay, and that aggression cannot succeed."

AND FROM the battlefront, two grim pieces of news: A roaring fire in the aircraft carrier Oriskany, and an explosion in a U.S. Army ammunition dump 12 miles from Saigon. The fire in the carrier cost the lives of 43 men, mostly pilots suffocated in their sleep by smoke billowing through officers' quarters. The ammunition blast killed at least two U.S. servicemen and wounded five. Communist Vict Cong guerrillas were blamed for igniting the earthshaking explosion which broke windows in Saigon.

THE ROLY-POLY, cigar-smoking chancellor of West Germany was in trouble. Ludwig Erhard, three years after he took over from Konrad Adenauer, suddenly found himself the head of a minority party, the Free Democrats quit Erhard's cabinet over the question of what to do about a $1 billion budget deficit. Erhard's Christian Democrats proposed to raise taxes, the Free Democrats proposed a cut in government spending. The Christian Democrats have 245 votes in the Bundestag, the Free Democrats only 49. But the latter's withdrawal leaves the Social Democrats in command with 202 votes. Will the Social Democrats try to depose Erhard, who is trying to ride out the storm? Says Willy Brandt, the mayor of West Berlin and the chairman of the Social Democrats: His party "reserves its full freedom of action" and will not "tolerate continuation of the present confusion."

 \star AFTER THREE hours deliberation, the Extraordinary Military Tribunal in Jakarta handed down the verdictdeath for Dr. Subandrio, 52, long-time foreign minister of Indonesia. The charge of betraying his country stemmed from the unsuccessful communist revolt a year ago, a plot with strong military and ideological support from Communist China. Subandrio (he has no first name) blinked at the verdict. He is expected to appeal, as has Jusuf Mudu Dalam, sentenced to death after an earlier trial. Dalam was minister for central banking in the government of President Sukarno, whose powers have been severely clipped since the plot was crushed. Next up for trial, former Air Vice Marshal Omar Dhani.

THE EPISCOPAL House of Bishops voted Tuesday, 103 to 36, to drop heresy charges against Bishop James A. Pike, the church's stormiest petrel. Instead he was accused of "irresponsibility" and censured for the "tone and manner" in which he questions some of the church's fundamental doctrine. Pike declined to let it go at that, and immediately demanded a full investigation of the charges against him. The House of Bishops then went into a "cooling off" period, and Thursday wound up its annual meeting by voting for a special council to "rethink, restructure and renew the church for life in the world of today." Bishop Pike said he was "delighted" at the move, which some saw as a vindication of Pikes' views.

THE CASE of South Africa and its mandate over the vast neighboring territory of South-West Africa came to a head in the United Nations Thursday night. After years of wrestling, the General Assembly voted 114 to 2. with 3 abstentions, to terminate the mandate and place South-West Africa "under the direct responsibility of the United Nations." The bone of contention was that white-ruled South Africa was not leading the huge black majority toward independence. The action does not end the matter, because South Africa is in physical possession of the territory, has vowed to defend its mandate and resign from the United Nations if necessary. The sticky question of how to enforce the United Nations action will be up to a 14-member committee, which is to "recommend practical ways by which South-West Africa should be administered to lead its people to ultimate independence." The committee is to report next April. The two votes against the proposal were by South Africa and Portugal. The latter rules the large territories of Angola and Mozambique adjacent to South Africa.

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) Life is just swinging, thank you, for Miss Baker. In fact, life couldn't be much better.

If you don't recognize the name, Miss Baker is a tiny Peruvian monkey and America's only female astronaut.

Her every breath and heartbeat were the center of attention for thousands May 28, 1959, when she blazed a 15-minute, 1,500mile trail through space to determine if man could survive out there.

Her real name is "Miss T. L. C." For the tender loving care she received from an affectionate handler prior to her launch with a male monkey named Able. The male died on the operating table when an electrode was being removed, but he survived the flight.

Life is swinging on a tiny trapeze, basking in the sun ing through window overlooking the rear alley, enjoying a yearround 80-degree existence, and eating good on gelatin, eggs, monkey chow, fresh fruit and water.

UCLA Shakes Off Falcons, 38-13

By DAVE LEWIS

UCLA, the lone surviving "gun" in the West still in the running for national honors, shook off a lethargic first half to raitle off 10 points in the third period and 14 more in the fourth to finally down the Air Force Academy, 38-13, and rack up its seventh consecutive victory Saturday night before 34,564 fans in

It wasn't downhill for the nation's No. 3-ranked team until the final 151/2 minutes

when it pushed over three touchdowns to break down the stubborn resistance put up by a gallant Air Force

The Air Force was only four points down until the final 27 seconds of the third quarter when Gary Beban's second touchdown of the night put the Falcons out of reach of pulling an upset.

Mel Farr's 33-yard TD run midway through the concluding period and second-string quarterback Norman Dow's 13-yard run with just six seconds remaining boosted the Bruins' total to 38 and enabled them to remain the country's No. 1 scoring team with a 363-point average.

The Bruins had to stifle a yawn as they came out to do battle with the Falcons, 27point underdogs. . . . But they suddenly found themselves hanging on the ropes fighting for survival during a breathless moment late in the first half before a key interception by safetyman Sandy Green turned the tide of battle and enabled UCLA to take a vital

The Air Force had fought back from an 0-7 deficit to take a 10-7 lead over the unbeaten Uclans and were perched on the Bruin 25-yard line firing away for another score which might well have turned the game around,

However, Steve Turner's deep pass down the middle was picked off by Green on the five. Picking up a couple of beautiful blocks, Green raced 71 yards before finally being hauled down on the Air Force 24 by the last man with

From that point, the Bruins scored in four plays as Beban skipped seven yards around end; Mel Farr boomed through tackle for three; Beban passed 12 yards to Steve Stanley on the two, from where Gary took it in himself for the touchdown on a sweep around right end with just 1:47 left in the half.

Up to then, the Uclans were face-to-face with one of the two most critical situations they've yet had to meet this season.

49ers Trample SUNDAY Cal Poly, 32-0

By JIM McCORMACK

With the Mustangs on air alert, Long Beach smashed across three touchdowns on the ground before throwing two more on the way to a 32-0, CCAA shunking.

After last Saturday's fiasco in Northern Arizona. 49er boss Ron Reed was determined to establish a Long Beach running game, and establish it he did.

THE 49ERS destroyed a Cal Poly team noted for its defense by rolling up 319 net yards on the ground and then adding 245 more yards through the air when the Mustangs took time to clear their héads.

It was only 6-0 at halftime, but four second-half touchdowns and a Long Beach defense which refused to let Cal Poly anywhere near its end zone made the game even more onesided.

The running game, which actually gained 368 yards, matched its season output in touchdowns with the deer was properly beyond three. matched its season output three.

Phil Johnson, although he made only token appearances because of a shoulder injury, was the ringleader, 31 rushing seven times for 149 yards and two touchdowns.

His 21.3 average per carry set a school record. The offense also added a couple of team marks in

The Vikings won the aerial war, 24-6, to gain their first Metro victory of the season and run their record to 3-3.

Bob Stewart received his best pass protection of the season from his LBCC cohoris but suffered an offnight throwing. The freshman from Artesia completed 12 of 29 passes for 116 24 yards.

His counterpart, Rosie Raines, had equally fine protecton but could hit on only 23 of some 53 attempts for 238 yards and the lone Monarch TD.

ALL TOLD, 84 passes went skyward, 36 to intended receivers and three to the opposition during the near 3-hour extravaganza.

Both teams shelved their running games in favor of the pass in the final 30 minutes. Dennis Parks led the Viking ground force with 72 yards in 16 carries. Valtey's Mike Helwig totaled 63 on 20 tries.

Irish Crush Navy, 31-7 TO CONDUCT CLUB CLINIC

New York Times Service PHILADELPHIA - Limited to a field goal in the opening period and a cheaply earned touchdown in the second, Notre Dame thereafter abjured the forward pass and crupted in a Vesuvian display of running power to crush Navy, 31-7, Saturday in their 40th meeting on the football field. The largest crowd to see these intersectional rivals play in Philadelphia, 70,101, looked on in bewilderment in the first quarter as the heavily favored top-ranking college team of the nation was stopped four times by a virulent Navy defense and had to settle for a field goal set up by an interception and an exchange of kicks.

Leading by 3-0 before it had made a first down, Notre Dame got into position to score its initial touchdown as John Per-and his success was in sharp contrast to the failure of Notre Dame's air attack.

Terry Hanratty, the famous sophomore passer, was pitching for the Fighting Irish, but he was overthrowing or wide of his mark, and Jim Seymour, his sensational sophomore receiver, was back in South Bend, Ind., with a had ankle

In the second quarter, the Notre Dame attack started to function with its accuslomed speed as Nick Eddy broke loose and Hanratty found his target. But twice, after the Irish had put together a succession of first downs, Hanratty's passes found enemy hands and Notre Dame could not add to its 10 points.

By the second half, any hopes the Middies had of victory were summarily crushed.

Notre Dame renounced the pass and stayed strictly on the ground, going 50 yards in 10 plays and then 45 in 11 plays. Eddy, the leading ground gainer last year and currently second, was injured and left the field, but Bob Gladieux, a sophomore who replaced him, was devastating. He carried the ball over from the 1, after Hanratty had previously scored from inches out, and Notre Dame led, 24-0, at the end of the : third quarter.

On L.B. Version of 'The Name Game'

We thought the peace was too good to be true. Several semesters back we took Long Beach State College (well, that's what the school was called THEN!) to task for laxiety in both its athletic program and student body spirit. We hung the label, "Mausoleum On the Hill," upon the institution.

The students got into the act, hung us in effigy and even serenaded us in front of the office one Saturday night after their football team happened to win a game. (The 49ers didn't win many games in those days.) Ah, those were truly the good, old days. However, time passed and the hilltop school started to shape up. Its athletic program improved, its football team began winning more games than it lost, and even the student body perked up to an extent.

The institution became so high class that it changed its name-and thereby lost its identity-from Long Beach State to Cal State College at Long Beach. The name became so confusing even a wire service poll listed Cal State AND Long Beach State (the same school) in the same football rating list one week this season.

Well, sir, things were going along fine, otherwise, until last weekend when the 49ers played a game in Flagstaff, Ariz. The whole day (and night) was a complete finsco . . . the football team didn't depart until the morning of the AFTERNOON game, it encountered plane trouble BOTH ways and it got bombed by a Northern Arizona outfit that really didn't belong on the same field with our rough, tough, slick and classy 49ers.

Consequently, our Doug Ives (normally a peaceful chap) rapped the situation in his weekly column and this pillar took the same attitude. So, what happens? Everyhody's sore at both of us, even the good souls who love Flagstaff itself (and that takes a lot of loving). Not the least of the antagonists was our copy desk expert, Lew Allison, who has the reputation of arguing at the loosening of an ant's necktie.

AS A BEGINNING, we'd like to reprint in part the reaction of Dr. Walter Crowe, chairman of the Division of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and also athletic director of CALIFORNIA STATE COLLEGE AT LONG BEACH. (That should make the 49er staff happy, and, my, don't they love long titles for everything and everyone over there on the hilltop?)

Writes Dr. Crowe: "The largest possible plane which (could) land safely at Flagstaff Airport (was) chartered for the trip. A schedule (was) prepared which (would) get the team into Flagstaff three hours before game time, so the players (would) have ample time to stretch their legs, be properly taped, have sufficient time for a warmup, and get mentally and emotionally ready for the contest." (I parenthesized the past tense because the good doctor's wording was in the hypothetical future tense.)

problem (was) that it would be better to arrive shortly prior to game-time rather than 12 to 24 hours in advance. Recent research seems to indicate, that if you can't have a period of 10-14 days to get acclimatized, it is better to perform your activity soon after you arrive in an area where altitude is a problem." (Well, I'll say one thing for CSCLB - that's much easier, isn't it? - they pioneered something with that format.)

"Obviously," continued Dr. Crowe, "any resemblance between this pre-plan-which had been gone over in minute detail numerous times during the two-week period preceding the trip-and the final outcome were purely coincidental. It was difficult for us to foresee that the series of events which were purported to have happened, could actually have occurred when you are engaged in a charter with one of the nation's top airlines." (Doctor, what do you mean "purported"? You and I both know they DID happen.)

WE'RE STILL WITH DR. CROWE: "The breakfast served to our athletes was not finished by them until well after noon (it was supposed to have been served immediately after the initially scheduled 9:30 a.m. takeoff), in spite of the fact that Coach (Don) Reed, Coach (Mike) De Luca, and the airline representative helped the hostesses to serve the athletes.

"We arrived in Flagstaff at 12:30 (original arrival time was 11 a.m.) and the bus with the athletes and the truck with our gear arrived at the dressing quarters, located about a quarter-of-mile from the field at 1 p.m. The entire traveling party obviously was tired, and the athletes and coaches were certainly not emotionally ready for the game.'

Obviously, judging from the lopsided score. Dr. Crowe pointed out also that his bone-weary athletes lost two hours returning to Long Beach when the plane, which had gone to Las Vegas for food and fuel (boy, that Flagstaff must be some whistle-stop), had blown a motor.

"Is this any way to run an airline?" queried Crowe. "Would we take this same trip with the same plans another time? This is a $64 question."

It should be a $1 question, with an obvious answer:

Dr. Crowe goes into much further detail about his school's troubles, but space prevents additional recounting. Anyway, he blames The Independent, Press-Telegram for not properly spreading the word that LBSC really is CSCLB. He also wondered how the original travel plan for the 49er gridders sounded-if you evaluated the situation ahead of time. My thoughts remain the same and my clipped answer can't be printed. I just hope the "mausoleum" brass doesn't make the same mistake twice.

Earlier, I wrote "as a beginning" we'd discuss Dr. Crowe's reaction. Seems like space deprived us of healthy reader comments. We'll get to them another day-if our airplane holds up.

Cerritos Has Trouble With Hondo, 13-7

By PAUL ATTNER

Aroused Rio Hondo rose up and battled heavily favored Cerritos down to the final gun Saturday night, before falling, 13-7 at Falcon Stadium in Norwalk.

The Roadrunners, who had only a 13-6 win over East L.A. in their first five outings, al most pulled the game out on the accurate arm of Walt Walters, who completed 19 of 26 passes for 301 vards.

The only touchdown in the second half came on a Walters-to-Gary Lundahl pass good for nine yards with 7:09 left in the fourth quarter. The drive was helped out by a personal foul against the Fal-

A week ago Billy Conn suddenly realized he had made the second great mistake of his life.

The first was asking for a rematch with Joe Louis some 20 years ago. The second was agreeing to referee the lightweight title bout between Carlos Ortiz and Sugar Ramos in Mexico City's El Toreo bull ring.

Ortiz is a Puerto Rican from New York City, Ramos is a Cuban from Mexico, so the lines of national allegiance were clearly drawn by the time Conn stopped the fight in the fifth round, awarding a TKO to Ortiz.

"I sensed trouble when I called for that doctor after Ramos' eye started to bleed so bad," Conn recalls with a "When that doctor dogged it I knew I was in shudder.

WHEN THE FANS realized what Conn was trying to do they cut loose with a barrage of stones, bottles and anything else that wasn't nailed down. The ring looked like an air raid.

"That doctor was scared to death of that mob," Conn says. "When he finally entered the ring he was hit on the head and his head split open. He said to me by nodding his head, 'If you stop it you do the right thing,' then he

"Then they attacked Ortiz and they attacked Daly (Bill Daly, Ortiz' manager) and fractured his ribs and split his head open. I left the ring as soon as I stopped it. If I'd have stuck around they would have buried me there. All I got was kicked and punched.

"We all had to stay in the dressing room for about three hours or they'd have lynched us. Man, this was some kind of a riot. I don't wanta see another one."

CONN FINALLY made it back to his hotel, but didn't leave town until the next morning.

"I took a chance by going all the way to the airport by myself. I stood around out there for two hours. They all knew who I was, but that place was so big they could never have gotten me cornered."

The experience was an education in international relations for Conn.

"I didn't know they were all crazy like thar. Ortiz knocked that Mexican's brains out. I did him a favor by stopping it. You put 28 stitches in a guy's eye and he's all over the place, whatta they expect? He couldn't continue without endangering his eyesight.

"I told 'em, 'Listen, that was a fight between two human beings. That wasn't a bullfight, No wonder the bull never wins down there."

RAMOS KNOCKED Ortis down in the second round, and Luis Spota, a Mexican who heads the World Boxing Council, whatever that is, claimed films showed that Conn gave Ortiz a long count to recover.

"I wanta tell ya about that," Conn says. "If that isn't the biggest joke of all. All he (Ramos) did, he hit Ortiz and knocked him down and Ortiz was up at two. There was nothin' wrong with Ortiz, and when Ortiz got up Mr. Ortiz was goin' to work on Mr. Ramos." ly a playable ball.

"All he could have done was just butcher him up 'cause the other fella was gettin' tired. It was a matter of you had to stop it sometime. I guess they wanted me to wait until he needed 128 stitches in his eyc.

USC 'Ain't Dead' -Just Looks

By LOEL SCHRADER

"The Trojans ain't dead

But one wondered. Was this a brave attempt at humor by USC coach John McKay in a moment of great despair? Or was the Projan coach trying to convince himself that a foothall team of great promise had not been demolished in a 21/2-hour, 10-7 loss Friday night at Miami?

For there was nothing ordinary about National Airlines' flight 41 Saturday morning from the Gold Coast to the Golden West.

End Rich Leon, who sustained a compound fracture right leg when roughed by Miami defenders, was brought aboard on a stretcher for the trip back to Los Angeles. Defensive backs Phil Lee and Nate Shaw hobbled aboard on crutches. Others were nurs-

'The Greek' Tells Secrets of Betting

We were discussing wagering on sports events with the legendary Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder while in Las Vegas recently . . . and the subject of "fixing" games came up.

Such as the attempt to "buy" three players at Louisiana State.

'In just about every fix attempt in recent years, you'll find the guys behind it are small-timers who have lost a few hundred dollars and figure this would be a foolproof way to get their money back as well as make a little profit," Jimmy pointed out.

'No big gambler would think of fixing a game. When you bet hig money, it's imperative the bettor as well as the bookmaker have an honest game. But there's always a few stupid people around who will try to arrange something.
"And the thing they don't seem to understand is there is no real chance for a big killing because when unusual money shows up, the bookies back off and take the game off the board. Bookmakers and gamblers are still the best police force you have against rigged events.

"Actually," Jimmy went on, "betting on sports events is no worse than playing the stock market. Or for that matter, playing high-pressure bridge.

"Millions of dollars a week are wagered between friends on sports events and that's all right...but if a fellow starts betting $200, $500 or bigger sums with a bookmaker, then it becomes something dirty. And it shouldn't be that way. Some of your most honorable men in the country wager fabulous sums on various events."

JIMMY AT ONE TIME WAS THE MOST successful hettor in the country on football and basketball.

'Many people have the idea I was a bookmaker, but I wasn't" he explains. "I was a player who was out to clobber the bookmakers if I could."

Jimmy speaks in the past tense because he no longer wagers on sports for a living as he once did following World War II.

However, he's still a wizard at odds and as a favor he'll quote you a "line" on an event if you ask him. And although he admits he's a little rusty at it, you better believe the odds he gives you. He's fantastic.

Jimmy now writes a sports column for the Las Vegas Sun and also is making a big hit as public relations and publicity director at Vegas' plush new $25 million showplace, the Caesar's Palace Hotel.

The colorful Snyder grew up in a gambling atmosphere in Stuebenville, Ohio. Those of you who have been there will know what he's talking about, "There were seven hand books, 40 wheels and 20 tables going full blast when I was going to school there and remember, this is a town of only 40,000 people. Why, I didn't know gambling was illegal until 1 was 25 years old," he laughs.

.JIM RELATES THE FASCINATING STORY of how he began his betting career.
"My Dad sent me to Miami University in Cincinnati and it was there I saw my first football card. I always had followed sports closely and when I went over the games, it looked to me like there was a lot of false odds.

"So, I played the card and won $300. Where have I been all the time this has been going on,' I asked myself. This was easy pickings. And it was a real picnic when I learned I could bet on individual games." Just like anything else, you have to have solid in-ormation on which to base your moves.

"Take the stuck market," Jimmy says. "You investigate a stock pretty thoroughly before buying. In sports, much of the betting is governed by sentiment. You've got to rule that out. I made it a point to be the most informed authority on my subject - sports - just as a stockbroker is an authority on the market."

"FIRST, I SELECTED ONE CONFERENCE on which to make my plays. You can't keep tabs on every school in the country. You've got to narrow it down - learn everything possible about a few schools" he explains.

I chose the Southeastern Conference - and I collected so much information that I knew as much about the personnel of each team as the coach. And by concentrating on those few schools, I was able to quickly spot wrong odds when the weekly line was issued from Minne-

Snyder points out there are seven basic things to consider in handicapping games and to do so properly, you must be familiar with the personnel of the teams involved.

No. 1 is team speed. Jimmy stresses this phase of the game. Speed, of course, has become increasingly important and as he points out, "speed and mobility is awfully hard to handle."

No. 2 and 3 are rushing offense and pass offense; No. 4 and 5, front line defense and backfield defense; No. 6, kicking, and No. 7, location of the game. "The home always has a two or three-point advantage."

INFORMATION OF ANY KIND can be useful if in- 38.3 (181). terpreted correctly. A good example of this was the time an offhand remark led to one of his biggest scores on a Southwestern Conference basketball game.

He was talking with a student he knew at a purticular school about the game coming up that night. The kid happened to mention that the team captain and his fiancee had an argument the night before and she had called off the engagement, packed and left the campus.
"I knew I had something," Jimmy recalls, "It just so happened I was going through a divorce at the time and I knew how the boy must be feeling.

"He was averaging 20 points a game and his team was favored to win by 19 points...so I began to take the points. I got all I could at 19, then 18 and 17, and even took some at 15.

Well, the favored team won as expected . . . but by only 11 points, so I collected on all my bets." Oh, yes. The captain, obviously upset and off his game, scored only seven points.

ing painful but less serious injuries.

Tve never seen a team as beaten up," McKay observed. "But we'll just have to go back to work." The Trojan coach displayed remarkable restraint in refusing to comment on the conduct of Miami players in the injury sustained by Leon. But pictures in the morning Miami Herald showed the ball well in flight and the nearest Miami player three to four yards away on the punt.

The second picture in the three - photo sequence showed Leon on the ground, with Miami guard John Tucek under his legs and three other Hurricane players surrounding the scene.

The third picture, unfortunately, found Leon writhing with pain on the ground.

Trojan coaches were to view films of the game Sunday night. It's a cinch the Leon tragedy will be rerun several times.

Although the Trojans surrendered a 7-3 lead on the first play of the fourth quarter, McKay didn't place the blame for the defeat on the defense.

"I don't think our defense is what hurt us," he "We just couldn't said. move the ball on offense. We dropped passes three times when we could have had first downs.

"I know we can play a lot better than we did but every year you get a game or two like this and sometimes you manage to get by. But Miami was too strong physically to play poorly against."

How will Miami do the rest of the season?

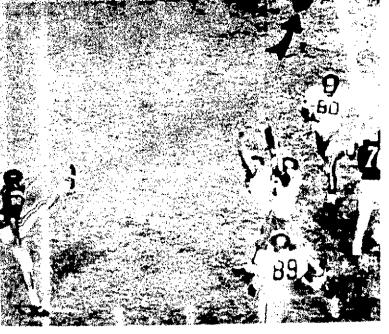

"Well, Miami is a good defensive team but it won't move the ball. I didn't feel they would score on us again after they got a field goal. But when I saw guys limping to the bench and sitting down behind me, I knew we were in trouble.

The loss of Shaw and Lee could force some major rejuggling of defensive personnel for the Cal game Saturday.

"We'll probably move Pat Cashman from rover to Lee's spot and Bill Jaroncyk will play in Shaw's position," said Mc-Jaroncyk Kay. "If Battle can't play, Earl McCullouch will be at safety.

With Steve Grady and Don McCall injured, Wilson Bowie, who hasn't seen action because of a knee injury, and Jim Lawrence will move into the left halfback position.

"Lawrence probably will start," McKay said. "Mayshould have used Bowie in this game but he hasn't been in at all this year and I was afraid he might drop the ball."

50 'Futures' Still Get Crack at Grid Dollar Bargaining much for a Nick Eddy?

That's one of the interesting questions still to be answered by the National and American Football leagues despite congressional approval of the merger of the two longtime ri-

For Eddy, the outstanding Notre Dame halfback, is one of some 50 top college-football stars who will be battled over by teams in both leagues-the last of"the players to use the two-team bargaining wedge that last year pushed contract offers to rookies over the $500,000 mark.

Eddy, like his 50 or more colleagues, drew what amounts to an exemption from the common draft that will be held at the conclusion of the 1966 season when he was drafted as a future last year by the Detroit Lions of the NFL and the Denver Broncos of the

UNDER THE merger agreement, teams which have selected futures retain the rights to them, and in the case of double draftees such as Eddy will have to bid for his services.

The general feeling is such players will not get the $500,000 contracts that seemed to be almost run-of the NFL-AFL player batthe but will command more than a player of equivalent talent selected by just one team in the common draft.

In addition, it is presumed the teams that risked future selections on such players will be out to grab them since under the common draft arrangement a team will be selecting only one

Besides Eddy, who fig-ures to command considerable attention from two teams in the market for talented running backs, there are at least a dozen other players in the doubledraft situation who are drawing more than passing

Among these are Maryland tackle Tom Cichowski, Kentucky end Bob Windsor, Nebraska tackle Bob Pick-Southern California flanker Rod Sherman, Virginia defensive end Don Parker, Notre Dame defensive end Pete Duranke and Texas tackle Diren Talbert.

THE PACKERS made Cichowski their No. 2 draft choice last year in the regular NFL draft and will have to bid for his services against the Oakland Raiders, who made Cichowski their second selection in the AFL's future draft.

considerable interest in Sherman, who was tapped as their No. 1 future selection. He was a fourth-round pick of the NFL's Baltimore Colts.

Green Bay, meanwhile, also will have to battle for another highly rated future in Dick Arndt, The Packers thought enough of the Idaho tackle to acquire the rights to him in the trade that sent Tom Moore to the Rams, He also was selected by the AFL's Denver Bron-

Windsor was a No. 2 draft pick of the NFL's San Francisco 49ers and was taken in the American League by the San Diego Chargers, setting up an interesting intra-state battle.

The Chargers also will he involved in a simlar battle with the Rams over Talbert, who has replaced Tommy Nobis as the strong man on the Longhorns' line.

Pickens will be fought for by the NFL's Chicago Bears and the Kansas City Chiefs, who matched pocket books in the celebrated battle for Gale Sayers.

Parker and Duranko both were fourth round selections in the NFL, the Virginia defender going to San Francisco and the Notre Dame defender to Cleveland. The 49ers will match dollar with Browns with the Broncos.

Other standouts involved re Michigan end Jack Clancy, selected by St. Louis of the NFL and Miami; Auburn end Dan Fulford, selected by the Dolphins and the Browns; and two high Philadelphia picks -California halfback Dan Berry, also taken by Kansas City, and San Jose State linebacker Mel Tom, also picked by Oakland.

WHAT PRICE they'll all be able to command is the big question.

When Comissioner Pete Rozelle testified before House committee he pointed out the merger agreement called for any drafted player to receive a minimum in come of $12,000 in his first year. The minimum salary now is $5,000.

Although the $12,000 is a far cry from $5,000, the $12,000 also is a far cry from the reported $600,000 Donny Anderson reportededly received last year to go with the Packers.

Contracts prohably won't ever go that high again, but players such as Eddy and Cichowski should be able to draw considerably more than the $12,000 figurejust for being the last of

Pat Neal Makes Comeback

By JOAN DEPPA

GREAT MISSENDEN, Eng. (UPI) - It was that quiet time of day every mother looks forward to-when all the children are somehow occupied and she can have a moment to herself.

Patricia Neal is no exception, but she had an exceptional project this particular day.

The Academy Award winning actress, who little more than a year and a half ago was stricken blind and dumb and paralyzed by three massive brain hemorrhages, was planning to study a film script and the mere fact that she could study it was a major triumph.

IN A rambling white farmhouse on the outskirts of this tiny village some 30 miles from London, in the moments she can spare from her duties as wife and mother, the 40-year-old Kentucky-born actress is quietly preparing for her comeback after an astonishing and courageous recovery.

'It's very difficult for me to read aloud, but I can," she said, showing no trace of the speech impediment that haunted her for months after the strokes. "I think I will be able to memorize enough lines for a film, although I doubt I'll ever be able to act on stage again.

"Learning lines used to be so easy for me," she said, breaking into a deep throaty laugh. "I used to be very good at names, too. Now I'd have to know you a long time before I'd remember yours.

"Do you notice my limp?" she asked. She still drags her right leg slightly, but only slightly, a handicap the movie cameras could easily overlook.

THE TELEPHONE rang and at once Patricia Neal, actress, became Mrs. Roald Dahl, mother of a happy family of growing youngsters.

Tessa, 9, was on the line to tell her that she had to go to a Brownies meeting. but she'd left her uniform at home and a neighbor she was visiting would come to fetch it. The message was full of complications, like badges and purses and other miscellany so important to nine-year-olds.

Then Clara, the Hungarian girl who helps with the children and housework, returned from the village with the two youngest, Ophelia, 21/2 and baby Lucy, born five months after her mother's near fatal attack.

The telephone rang again. This time it was her son, Theo, 6, who was having tea with a neighbor.

PATRICIA NEAL, better known in these parts as simply Mrs. Dahl, looked rather pleased with herself when the confusion finally cleared and she could settle down for a quiet cup of tea.

PATRICIA NEAL

"Do you think I could memorize lines?" she asked with a twinkle in her eye.

The good humor with which she spoke belied the real drama of her question, just as her praise of son Theo—"He's such a bright little boy"—hid her real concern for the child who has had eight major brain operations since his carriage was hit by a taxicab in New York City when he was four months old.

"One eye's not quite right and his writing's not very good because he has to use his left hand, but he goes to the same school Tessa goes to and he was passed on to the next grade this year," Miss Neal said. "It's possible he may have to have another operation to correct the eye."

HER FIRST BORN child. Olivia, died at the age of seven from an attack of measles in 1962, just two years after Theo's acci-

There is no attempt to forget that tragedy. A promising painting Olivia did shortly before her death hangs in the kitchen and Miss Neal still points it out with pride.

Twilight was coming on and husbandauthor Roald Dahl came in from the garden where he had been puttering.

Immediately a gentle to and fro began that left little doubt that Dahl has been instrumental in guiding his wife back to normality. His questions on the whereabouts of the children and other household ndds and ends were designed to test her memory and she answered them in the same spirit.

BUT THEIR central concern on that particular night was Miss Neal's final step to complete recovery, her comeback as an actress. Producers and directors are beginning to make the trek to Great Missenden to discuss projects with her.

"I must go over the script tonight," she THE STARS told her husband. He agreed firmly. Studio officials were coming to talk to her about

And the day the indomitable Patricia Neal would finally step before the cameras again did not seem very far away.

TV Networks, Film Firms Feverishly Wheel, Deal

By PETER BART New York Times Service

HOLLYWOOD-A decade ago everyone was knocking the motion picture companies for failing to recognize the great potential of television. Now everyone is knocking the TV networks for failing to recognize the great potential of motion bicfures. The second oversight may prove as costly as the first, which almost caused the decline and fall of Hollywood.

For the TV networks these days find themselves in a bizarre position. Having invested untold millions of dollars in their own programming, they have discovered that what the viewers want most of all is motion pictures. The extraordinary ratings achieved by 'The Bridge On the River Kwai" a few weeks ago now seems to be accepted as the ultimate proof of this dictum. A really fine movie, it seems can annihilate the supposed viewer loyalty built up by the weekly shows.

HAVING established this fact, the networks and movie companies have been feverishly wheeling and dealing. The networks have doled out nearly $100 million in the past month for TV rights to dozens of movies and are hungry to acquire still more. The movie companies not surprisingly, have been cranking up their prices and looking around for more things to peddle.

Meanwhile the filmmak ers—producers and directors -have beeen watching the carnival with wry amusement. THE MAJOR studios, to be sure, have been cagerly mobilizing their resources to take advantage of the potential new bonanza from TV. The very magnitude of this bonanza however has added to the industry's problems by attracting outside financial interests that are bidding for control of the movie companies. One major company Paramount, already has been taken over by a concern from outside the industry, Gulf and Western Industries. Industry observers fear possible proxy fights at Columbia and Metro-GoldWVD-Mayer, Some filmmakers are concerned that, at the very time when studios should be greatly expanding production, they may be crippled by management upheaval.

The big question from the public's point of view of view of course is whether, ferment, more quality pictures will be forthcoming. There is good reason for skepticism. The steady downturn in domestic movie production over the last generation combined with the rigid exclusivity of the craft unions have sharply curtailed the supply of able young filmmakers.

NEITHER the networks nor the studios have had much luck in their earlier efforts to expand production. A few months ago CBS tried to make some co-production deals with the studios calling for a large-scale program of low-budget films made directly for TV, but abandoned the scheme after taking a look at some of the people and projects that were being offered. Warner Brothers recently sought to grind out a sharply expanded program of films in the $1 million to $2 million class. After releasing the first film in this series—ar incredible disaster titled "The American Dream" Warners quietly dropped the idea.

Thus Hollywood and the TV networks have both slowly come around to the real ization that mass-produced "cheapies" will not fill the Certainly if the six weekly network "movie shows" in prime time offered nothing but dreary motion pictures, the viewers will go back to their dreary TV se ries. What is needed is high quality pictures, ambitious in hudget and in artistic intent that are turned out by gifted young filmmakers, not down-at-the-heels hacks. To achieve this end, the net-

'SEND ME NO FLOWERS'

I identify too closely with the unheroic hypochondriac hero, George Kimball.

Here's George, happily wed for 15 years and always complaining of some obscure ache or pain. Wife Judy long since has learned not to take him seriously.

THEN ONE day kindly old, family Dr. Morrissey makes a phone call from the Kimball home, discusses the impending death of another patient with a colleague. George overhears just enough-and the fun begins, along with the supposed last two weeks of George's life.

October 10th marked the start of a concentrated drive for greater safety among Long Beach-Lakewood school children. On that date, 17 Junior High Schools flew the GREEN PENNANT signifying the start of this important program. The PENNANT will continue to fly so long as the school has not had a student-caused accident for 30 consecutive days. It is lowered and hung inside the school whenever there is an accident coused by a student of that school.

A student-caused accident generally is defined as one involving any vehicle—automobile, truck, bus, motorcycle, motor scooter, or bicycle, which results in bodily injury or extensive property damage and in which the student is determined by the police to be the cause of the accident. You, too, can help make this safety program a success. Drive carefully, Watch out for children on their way to and from school. Help Long Beach schools top the list of 119 cities participating in the GREEN PENNANT program.

RAY PARRIOTT, 19, of 11731 E. 216th St., Lakewood, a market checker, was reported in good condition. The strapping youth was shot in the leg as he grappled with one of the two gunmen who robbed McCoy's Market, 9109 E. Telegraph Road, of $200.

Deem was shot as he went to Parriott's aid during the 9 p.m. holdup.

Monday Fire Victim Dies in Fullerton

A Fullerton man who roomed with his mother and stepfather is dead today as the result of burns suffered when he apparently fell asleep while smoking in bed. Glenn A. Woods, 50, of 114

E. Truslow Ave., died in Orange County Hospital late Friday night, where he was a patient since the fire last Monday.
The victim's stepfather,

William A. Campbell, 66, pulled him from his burning bed after the fire was discovered, according to Fuller ton police.

Slaying Ends Argument on Football

Sheriff's homicide detectives Saturday reported they are searching for a Compton man suspected of killing an acquaintance after an argument over a football score.

The victim was Lee Potts 32, of Los Angeles, shot once in the chest with a 22-caliber pistol at the home of a friend Eddie Haywood, 33, of 12829 S. San Pedro St., in county territory near Compton.

Deputies said Potts and Joseph L. Austin, 25, of 925 W. Cedar St., argued Friday evening, that Austin was injured in the nose, left Hay wood's home and returned later with the pistol used to fire the fatal shot.

The victim died shortly after arrivel at Harbor General Hospital. Deputies are seeking the suspect.

Rail Unions Study New Pact Offer

CLEVELAND, Ohio, (A) -A group of the nation's railroad unions, representing 600,000 employes, is considering a $6\frac{1}{2}\frac{9}{0}$ package offer from the railroads, a union spokesman said Saturday.

The offer includes a 5% wage offer plus 11/2 % increase for vacations and health and welfare. The package would be for one year and open for further negotiations in mid-1967, the spokesman said.

The negotiating committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Enginemen is studying the offer here, a spokesman said.

The Brotherhoud of Railroad Trainmen said over 100 BRT general chairmen will discuss it Wednesday in Chi-

The railroad offer was made this week in Washington by the National Railway Labor Conference, negotiating arm of the railroad industry including all class I railroads, a union spokesman said. This is 98% of the country's trackage.

There is a DIFFERENCE!

a big difference at MSSD!

The difference that comes from working with a prime contractor on exciting future space programs.

The difference between a job or being a professional in your field.

The difference you find in a creative atmosphere which includes the world's largest privately owned space complex, where you can innovate and propose new ideas; keep abreast of new developments in your field and see your ideas put into reality.

THAT'S THE DIFFERENCE!

If this is what you are looking for and you want to do systems engineering or product design and development or pure analysis in the technologies demanded by Manned Space Programs then clip out the coupon and let us get in touch with you.

GET THE DETAILS FIRST HAND! SEND IN YOUR COMPLETED COUPON!

YOU GAIN BY GOING TO DOUGLAS MSSD

You Will Pay a Lot More in Just a Few Months

It is estimated that increasing labor and materials costs are adding about $1,000 per year to the price of a $20,000 house. And costs are sure to increase faster in the near future. Thousands of families from other areas are coming to Southern California every month. They are looking for places to live and you have to compete with them in increasing numbers. And available land for building homes is shrinking fast. These things plus increasing interest rates point to one conclusion . . . buy that

And remember. A house is a good hedge against inflation. The house you own can only increase in value as

The Men, The Measures

As the election campaign enters its final days, men and women running for public office will be called upon to answer many questions. It is impossible to sum up their beliefs in a few short paragraphs. But the editors have selected quotes from the leading candidates on the major issues of the 1966 election.

Here is a capsule summation on the events in today's news-and the candidates' statements.

CRIME IN CALIFORNIA

Brown: "We have passed effective anticrime legislation, more than any administration in California history. And our state programs and our support of local law enforcement are paying dividends.

Reagan: "The biggest hindrance to law enforcement is the way that this state has preempted the right of local governments to enact their own criminal law. . . Police and sheriffs' deputies are limited in making arrests and in gathering evidence for convictions. A philosophy is widespread that the individual is not responsible for his misdeeds. Instead, society is to blame."

Lynch: "Laws alone will not solve the crime prob-. We must understand the causes of crime. We must improve prevention and rehabilitation methods. We must educate the public. And we must continually improve the methods of enforcement."

Williams: "My suggestion is tough mandatory sentences for criminals who carry guns when committing crimes. Such deterrent laws have proved effective in

PROPERTY TAXES

Brown: "I will present to the 1967 session of the legislature a program to cut property taxes and raise the state's already sizable share of the cost of local schools . . . to an average of about 50%.'

Reagan: "As presently administered, the property tax is unfairly distributed, creates penalties on homeowners and creates unnecessary inequity among homeowners. The people who pay do not get the benefits. . The sales tax offers the best revenue for quick relief of the property tax payer."

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

Brown: "The governor shouldn't have political control of the university. . . . There must be no hint of bookburning, no false cries of treason. . . . We must protect the free atmosphere of academic inquiry.'

Reagan: "But what in heaven's name does 'academic freedom' have to do with rioting, anarchy and attempts to destroy the primary purpose of the University of California which is to educate our young people? It is high time that an end was put to this kind of nonsense.

RUMFORD ACT

Brown: "We must initiate without delay a thorough public examination of our housing laws. We cannot afford conflict and confusion if we are to leave to our children a California way of life uncorrupted by racial fear and hatred and our cities free of ghetto

Reagan: "I believe that the right to dispose of and control ones' own property is a basic human right, and as governor I will fight to uphold that right. . . . I am, at the same time, wholeheartedly in favor of the goals of such (open housing) legislation in that I hope . . . to lessen and hopefully eliminate bigotry or discrimination or prejudice of any kind."

running a low-keyed campaign and the Republican challenger accusing him of hiding from voters mark the 1966 race for lieutenant gov-

The incumbent, Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson, has not varied greatly from his generally non-political routine of dedicating freeways, leading parades and giving speeches on noncontroversial topics.

His opponent, Republican Robert H. Finch, has complained to voters during a vigorous campaign that Anderson won't debate the issues and ducked out of a planned television debate.

The 41-year-old GOP candidate had told Anderson he was ready to face him "any time, any place, under any conditions, any format." Finch said he was under the impression agreement for a debate had been reached.

BUT ANDERSON'S forces canceled all negotiations for an encounter, saying Finch's discussion of it in public broke a promise. And, an Anderson spokesman said candidly, the Democrat felt no urge "to provide a forum for the nominee of the opposition party."

Finch, a lawyer and manager of Richard M. Nixon's 1960 presidential campaign, overcame token opposition in the June 7 primary and immediately set up campaign headquarters in Sacramento just two blocks from the Capitol. A longtime party worker, this is his first bid at elective of-

BRADEN is a long-time close friend of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and Hand is a protege of President Johnson. The race had all the test between Kennedy and Braden Hand finished far behind Anderson.

Anderson, philosophically liheral but personally cautious, is probably best the governor was in Greece.

Anderson replied: "Responsible men do not lightly send armed soldiers into the streets of American cities."

Anderson has been conducting an almost silent reelection campaign, making only a few speeches and purposely avoiding the limelight. Finch said campaigning against Anderson was "like fighting a shadow" because of the lieutenant governor's reluctance to make public appearances.

Although the Anderson-Finch contest has generated little excitement, the $25,-000-a-year prize is well worth the winning. When the governor leaves the state for any reason, the lieutenant governor becomes acting governor with full powers of the office.

BY CONTRAST, the nation's Vice President succeeds to the presidency only upon the death or disability of the President.

In California, as in many other states, the governor and lieutenant governor are elected separately; they need not be from the same party.

However, the voters usually select a single-party team. Only four times in state history, never in the 20th century, have the voters split their ticket and picked a governor of one party and a lieutenant governor of the other.

The 53-year-old Anderson, seeking his third straight term, is counting heavily on the Democratic registration edge to help him win, and the belief that while Democrats might desert the party to vote for a Republican governor, they'll stick with the elements of a popularity conticket.

> 20% or more of the Democratic vote, and hold almost all the GOP voters, to win.

> However, that's what Anderson did in 1958 when he upset incumbent Republican Harold J. Powers.

> There's a contrast in how closely the two have tied themselves to their gubernatorial candidates. Finch is billed as a part of the "Republican team" and often is mentioned by Ronald Reagan. Anderson, however, is almost never mentioned by Gov. Brown, who is running an independent race not allied with other Democratic officeholders,

There seem to be three main issues in the race for the No. 2 spot in state government:

Competence - Finch refers to Anderson's "inadequacy to act as chief executive of this state." Anderson points to eight years in the No. 2 job.

Education - Finch advocates modest tuition at the University of California for students who can pay. Anderson flatly opposes tuition.

Race - Finch favors re-

Vote for Dne EDMUND G. "PAT" EROWN, Governor of the State of California Democratic RONALD REAGAN. Republican

By DE VAN L. SHUMWAY United Press International

The creaky old house in a flourishing business area of Sacramento awaits its next occupant-Democrat Edmund G. Brown, who has lived there for eight years, or Republican Ronald Reagan, who hasn't even been inside the huge doors.

In its most simple terms, the longest, costliest political campaign in California history is a fight over who will occupy the ancient governor's mansion.

And in its final days, the campaign for the Nov. 8 general election has become almost a modern day morality play. For Brown, 61, it has become a crusade against Reagan.

"THE SMILE IS THERE," Brown says. "But where's the substance? The gestures are right but wheres' the grasp of the realities of governing this number one state in the nation?"

For Reagan, 55, it's a fight against what he calls "erosion of moral standards" both in California and "I think the time has come for a change," he "And the place to begin is in government it-

Brown is trying a feat no Democrat has been able to accomplish-win three terms as governor of California, now the nation's most populous state. And that, in itself, is a major problem.

REAGAN RAISED the point in noting that every year but one since 1958 a single Sacramento Dodge dealer has been awarded the Highway Patrol's patrol car contract. He called it "almost-dishonesty."

(Two weeks ago, apparently bending to the pressure, the state awarded a contract to an Oldsmobile dealer.)

"When an administration is too long in power this kind of 'almost dishonesty' becomes commonplace," he said. "The real issue of this campaign is morality.

Brown has made much from the failure of Reagan, making his first bid for elective public office, to repudiate support from the John Birch Society.

"I challenge him to come out into the open, to come from hiding in that forest of Birchers that surrounds his campaign," Brown says. He charges that Reagan's campaign has "the support, the backing, the hand-in-glove involvement" of the JBS.

But Reagan counters with this statement: "I am not a member; I have never been a member; I have no intention of becoming a member; I never solicited their support. On the other hand, I don't believe in blanket indictments of any group."

Brown and Reagan have adopted miles-apart atti-tudes on two other issues, too—the University of California and the 1963 Rumford Open Housing Act. The GOP nominee announced in a 30-minute statewide telecast formally opening his general election campaign that he would appoint former CIA director John McCone to probe the University of California, if he wins the governorship. The university was the site of student free speech and filthy speech movements during recent years. Reagan said the students at the sprawling Berkeley campus had almost reached the point of holding "demonstrations for demonstrations' sake." But Brown leaped to the defense of the institution.

"We don't need a CIA man in there," he said. He accused Reagan of using the University as "the football . . . for his campaign kickoff." Reagan, mindful that the voters had rejected the Rumford Act by a 2-1 margin, said he favored nutright repeal of the housing law.

The right of an individual to ownership and disposition of property is inseparable from his right to freedom itself," Reagan said. He described the law as an attempt to "give one segment of our population rights at the expense of the basic rights of all our

But Brown, who signed the law when it was passed by the 1963 legislature, said repeal would be tragic and proposed instead a bi-partisan committee to study changes for action by the 1967 legislature.

Senate May Have First Negroes

Associated Press

California, which has never had a Negro state senator, could have two when legislature convenes next January.

Assemblymen Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Lus Angeles, and William Byron Rumford, D-Berkeley, are strongly favored to win Senate seats created by the 1965 legislative reapportionment.

Dymally, 40, a native of Trinidad and a four-year Assembly veteran, is expected to rout Republican Cecil Murrell in the 29th District, which includes much of the riot-torn Watts area. The district is 60% Negro and 80% Democratic — factors strongly favorable to Dymally.

RUMFORD, 58, a nineterm Assembly veteran, seeks the newly created 8th District Senate seat. Less than half its registered voters are Negro, but the district has a weighty Democratic registration bulge.

Assemblyman Willie L. Brown, Jr., D-San Francisco, a Negro, is expected to win a second term easily over Republican challenger Julius Kahn III in the 18th Assembly district.

Ray Norton, a Negro and former Olympic track star, is the underdog against Negro John J. Miller in the 17th Assembly district battle in Berkeley. Miller is a Democrat, Norton a Republican in the district which Rumford is giving up to try for the Senate.

TWO POLITICAL proteges to Dymally's - Bill Greene and Leon Ralph, both Negroes and Democrats-are running for Assembly seats in Los Angeles County, Greene's opponent in the 53rd District is Republican William A. Gaither, a labor union representative. Ralph is opposed in the 55th District by GOP businessman Wendell T. Handy.

Another Negro candidate Mrs. Yvonne Watson Braithwaite-is the Democratic nominee in Los Angeles County's 63rd Assembly District against Republican Gary R. Arnold, a businessman. Assemblyman F. Douglas Ferrell, D-Los Angeles, the fourth Negro currently in the legislature, is not seeking re-election.

REMEMBER THE PRIMARY? HERE'S WHAT VOTERS DID

Voters in California faced the longest slate of candidates in history when they went to the polls in the June primary election. Reapportionment of the State Senate opened the doors to a record number of job seekers. The campaigns split the vote among the parties; some new faces made a place in California politics for the years to come.

Here is a summary of the June election.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown's largest competition, in a field of six Democrats, came from Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty. Yorty polled more than 900,000 votes.

Former San Francisco Mayor George Christopher was the only real threat to actor Ronald Reagan, but Reagan won by a 2-1 margin. Three others were in the Republican primary for governor.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Incumbent Glenn M. Anderson overcame a hard campaign waged by Oceanside publisher, Thomas Braden, and newcomer to California politics, Lloyd Hand. Braden drew 622,715 votes; Hand, 513,008 on the Democratic ticket.

Robert Finch, long active in Republican politics, had little opposition from three candidates.
SECRETARY OF STATE

Jordan1,480,761 Schlei 682,510

Veteran secretary Frank M. Jordan had only one opponent on the Republican ticket, a political unknown. Businessman Robert Wagner of South Pasadena tallied 331,671 votes.

Democrat Norbert Schlei, a former U.S. assistant attorney general, but a political neophyte, battled in a field of seven, but won by a near 2-1 margin over the second place candidate.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch drew two opponents in the Democratic race, but won by more than a million votes. Republican Spencer Williams of Santa Clara County defeated two other to win the nod.

It's time for a change. You can sense it. Or, you can read about it any day of the week in the newspaper.

Beatniks, taxes, riots, crime, delinquency, drug addiction, pornography. Our state is a leader in each of these areas.

This is obviously not the kind of leadership California needs or wants. The Number One state in the nation deserves something better.

We need a lot of changes from the top down.

We need new leadership. Not just any leadership. Honest. Dedicated to principles, not politics. Leadership that doesn't promise what it can't deliver. Leadership that inspires confidence, not doubt; initiative, not hopelessness; respect, not disdain.

We need new ideas. Not just any ideas. Some refreshing, down-to-earth common sense for a change.

Common sense that says taxpayers have reached their limit. So no more spending spree budgets. The government is going to have to slim down instead of fattening up each year.

Common sense that says helping those who are unable to help themselves does not include taxing hard working men and women who are busy providing for their own families, in order to provide for lazy freeloaders who make welfare a way of life.

Common sense wouldn't allow a few rabble-rousing malcontents to totally disrupt the campus of one of the greatest educational institutions in the world.

Common sense and integrity-a combination that would fill appointive offices on the basis of ability and qualifications, not friendships or political indebtedness.

Common sense says when only self-seeking professional politicians take an interest in the government, we will soon have rulers instead of ruling ourselves.

Common sense recognizes that a great society must be a free and creative society, allowing a free play of the diverse talents and abilities of all the people.

Common sense and integrity-a combination that demands changes in our State Capitol - new faces, new ideas, and, above all, a new faith in freedom-new faith in ourselves, individually, as responsible citizens:

THE CONGRESS

By DE VAN L. SHUMWAY United Press International

The doves of the Viet Nam war have cooed more quietly in California recently but Congressional ears see a rising tide against inflation and tight money.

And there's the key problem for the state's 38 congressmen—currently in the Democratic camp by a solid 24-14 margin.

The majority Democrats, mindful that they've about reached the top strength expectable, want simply to hold on to their seats in the election.

Republicans are openly optimistic they will increase their strength by two seats and cautiously hopeful of picking up three more if the tide turns their direction on November 8.

"The big thing is inflation and tight money," said a GOP Congressional expert. "Viet Nam isn't an issue because we stand back of the President.

BUT DEMOCRATS also see another issue-white backlash—as quietly cutting away at their strength in some districts, particularly in Southern California.

There still are some hard feelings about the Rumford Act and the Los Angeles and San Francisco riots and it could hurt our candidates," said a Democratic Party campaign leader. He said a big win by Gov. Edmund G. Brown may be necessary to provide the push needed to keep present marginal congressmen in office. And the most recent polls have Republican Ronald Reagan in the lead.

The two major targets of Republicans are Democratic Reps. James C. Corman of Van Nuys and Kenneth W. Dyal of San Bernardino. Although the GOP leaders won't say so, both districts are "Cal Plan" target areas—subject to a massive infusion of GOP money and campaign help.

The Republicans charge Corman with being one of the Democratic big "spenders" and has adopted a policy of "win the war quickly or get out" in Viet Nam.

REPUBLICANS also have targeted three other seats but concede their chances of victory aren't too good. Those are districts now held by Democrats Harlan Hagan of Hanford, Ronald Brooks Cameron of Whittier, and George Brown Jr. of Monterey Park.

Hagan's opponent is Bob Mathlas, a sports hero as a two-time Olympic decathlon champ.

But all is not pessimism for the Democrats. Although they frankly admit theirs is a holding operation, party spokesmen hope to pick up two or three seats.
Rated as the "best" chance is the 13th district seat now held by Republican Charles M. Teague of Ojai. His opponent is Democrat Charles A. Storke of Los Alivos, son of prize-winning publisher Tom Storke. With the help from a big gubernatorial win, the Democrats felt they have a chance of defeating the reelection bids of Republicans Dei Clawson of Compton (23rd district) and Ed Reinecke of Tujunga. Both are in Democratic districts. But Democrats, who brake even in Congressional races despite the 1.3 million-vote Johnson sweep in California in 1964, aren't bragging about the possibility of coming out even this November.

"We can just hope," said one party source.

But Reagan asked for comment on the riot, said it was "obvious the governor has not profited at all from the experience of Watts and has done nothing to forestall future disturbances . . .

As of now, the race appears to be a near standoff. Two statewide public opinion polls indicated the winner could still be decided. The California Poll by Mervin Field showed the two candidates 7 points apart but the State Poll by Don Muchmore showed only a two-point spread. And both had enough "undecided" voters to make up the difference.

Assembly Republicans forced a cut in the original measure from $295 million to $230 million, and Assembly Minority Leader Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, called the cut "a major step toward pay-as-vou-go financing of school construction."

Paying for college buildings as the state receives money from year to year was the policy adopted by Democrats and Republicans in the 1964 legislature. Lawmakers intended to get the off-shore Southern California tidelands.

Opponents argue that taxpavers would lose their right of appeal to elected officials if supervisors appoint appeal board members.

13 - Would eliminate a constitutional provision that a property owner make an annual statement of his personal and real property to the assessor. Most counties have eliminated this requirement and supporters say that since this requirement is seldom enforced it should be repealed.

14-Would let California income taxpayers figure their federal income tax returns according to a ratio. Supporters argue that it would make state income tax returns easier to compile; opponents say that the proposal would in effect permit the federal government to set state income tax pay-

THE LEGISLATURE

By DE VAN L. SHUMWAY United Press International

California voters will pick a "new face" legislature this year—and chances are about 100-1 that it will be controlled by Democrats.

It would take a major shakeup for Republicans to regain control of the legislature they lost in the 1958 landslide for Gov. Edmund G. Brown. And there are few indications of a landslide either way-for Brown or for Republican Ronald Reagan.

But there will be some changes made, primarily due to court-ordered reapportionment of the Senate along population lines. For years, the Senate has been appointed geographically.

THE MAJOR ingredient needed for a clean sweep is present-all 120 seats are up for election Nov. 8.

The 80 two-year Assembly seats come up for election, as usual. But the Senate, making the changeover ordered under remapping, has all 40 of its seats uphalf for two-year terms and half for the regular fouryear terms.

When the lawmakers reapportioned in a Septem ber 1965 special session, the two houses took slightly different courses. The Assembly cinched up along partisan lines—to settle more races in the primary. But the Senate helped out its incumbents to keep the present power structure intact as much as possible.

Reapportionment in the Senate had its major im-

Democrat Virgil O'Sullivan in Northern California; Democrat James A. Cobey versus Republican Howard Way in Central California; Democrat Fred S. Farr against Republican Donald L. Grunsky, also in Central California, and Republican J. Lagomarsino versus Democrat Alvin C. Weingand in Arcadia.

One assemblyman is challenging an incumbent senator in a tight race between Republican Sen. John McCarthy and Democratic Assemblyman Pearce Young in San Rafael.

And in one Senate district it's assemblyman against assemblyman. Orange County's 35th District has Democratic Assemblyman William E. Dannemeyer opposing Republican James E. Whetmore.

In all, 17 present assemblymen are bidding for seats in the upper house. They include Mervyn M. Dymally, Los Angeles; Joseph M. Kennick, Long Beach; Danne-meyer, Fullerton; Whetmore, La Hahra, and George Deukmejian, Long Beach.

THE PRESENT partisan lineup of the Senate is 23-14 Democratic with three vacancies. The Assembly is controlled by Democrats by a 51-39 margin. Most of the new faces will be in the Assembly.

Only 51 of the current 80 members are on the ballot for another two-year term-leaving 29 spots to be filled by newcomers, assuming all incumbents are re-elected. One of those returning is Assembly Speaker Jesse

M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, who already has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election to the leadership of the lower house. Also trying for another term is Robert Monagan, R-Tracy, the GOP leader in the lower house. But there are hints that he may face some opposition from fellow Republican Robert Banham of Costa Mesa to his leadership post.

Another interesting development in the legislature may be breaking the color line in the Senate. A Negro hasn't served in that chamber in modern times. But Dymally, a Negro, looks like a bet to win a seat.

$1,000 REWARD

I am receiving complaints from volers in the 33rd Senatorial District concerning telephone calls allegedly made to them by me or my supporters.

These calls ask for approval of ridiculous legislative measures which I am supposed to sponsor. Many of the calls are made late at night, understandingly antagonizing those who receive them. Obviously they are part of a malicious smear campaign intended to injure my candidacy for State Senator.

It is difficult to combat such "poison pen" tactics. I can only say that no telephone campaign whatsoever is being conducted by me or in my behalf.

I will personally pay a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who are committing this felony.

Dance Law Put to Voters in Signal Hill

Signal Hill voters will be asked to decide one local issue on the ballot of the Nov. 8 election-the question of whether to retain or abolish a new ordinance that prohibits dancing between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m.

The city's Prop. 1 is on the hallot because of a petition circulated in behalf of restaurateur Don May, whose Gay 90's, 2508 Palm Drive, flourished as a center for allnight dancing until the City Council unanimously passed the ordinance in June.

ment against the ordinance and maintenance of the has been written by Don May and the argument for it is over the signatures of all five councilmen.

Among May's claims, he says the ordinance is "unfair" because it will reduce legitimate business volume in the city, reduce tax revenue and is "discriminatory" because its impact comes on people who work evening hours.

"It is unfair to these many workers who in today's world must earn their living by working so-called "night shifts," he says. He argues that these workers "are entitled to the same healthy recreational activities as day workers" and that many California cities have recognized their needs.

THE CITY COUNCIL calls on the voters to uphold its stand because the all-night "encourages addancing verse conditions to exist in the city of Signal Hill and surrounding area. The councilmen say this is the un-! animous opinion of the Chamber of Commerce and "other civic groups," as well as themselves.

NATION'S FUNERAL DIRECTORS GIVEN REPORT

American War Dead Now Returned in Seven Days

"A bodiless funeral is like a baptism without a baby, a wedding without the bride, or a birthday celebration with out the birthday child." That is what Howard C.

Raether of Milwauker, executive secretary of the National Funeral Directors Association told the final session of N.F.D.A.'s annual convention at Miami Beach.

More than 4,000 funeral directors and their guests from 48 states, the District of Columbia, and several foreign countries attended the fiveday conclave.

Most men of most cultures of most countries view their dead, Raether stated, and as they do they confirm the reality and finality of death. People want and need to confront the deaths of relatives and friends in a dignified, solemn and respected manner and you have helped them do so," Raether assert-

That is why funeral direcfors must continue to offer personal service to meet the mental and physical needs, demands and desires of the bereaved, if funeral service as we know it today is to progress, Raether declared.

THIS MEANS, he added. funeral directors must emphasize the real values of the funeral and that facilities. equipment and burial merchandise must be relegated to secondary roles.

Raether quoted Dr. William M. Lamers of San Francisco to point up how psychiatry looks at the importance of the funeral:

"The funeral can't guarantee emotional well being in the future. But it provides the beginning -- a setting within which the survivors begin to work through their reactions to loss. If the funeral does this, it is success-

IN ANOTHER address. Thomas W. Toy of Dayton. Ohio, civilian head of the Air Force Mortuary Program. stated our American dead in Viet Nam are being returned to the United States within three to seven days from the date on which they were killed.

Performing this unhappy task with such concern and efficiency has made it possible to shorten the grieving period for the survivors and not prolong it for up to several years as was often the case in previous wars, he said.

"In my 16 years with the Air Force Mortuary Program, the two questions most asked by the next of kin are When will the remains arrive home?' and 'When will I be able to see him?'"

"Actually, what they are saying is 'How soon can I view the remains?'

TOY POINTED out that while funeral service critics and advocates of services without the body present would not understand, all funeral directors and most Americans know the needs of these bereaved must be satisfied, too, and in practically every case this can only be done by a funeral with the body present and viewable if at all feasible.

Toy emphasized all American dead have been brought back home. "There are no recovered American dead burted in Viet Nam and so far there have been no unknown dead from the Viet Nam war." he declared. He also noted that just last month France began to repatriate her 19,000 Viet Nam war dead from the Indo-China war which ended 12 years

TOY CREDITED the progress made in American funeral service for the efficiency achieved in the Viet Nam mortuary operation, "If it were not for the advancements made in our funeral service over the years, it would not be possible to return war dead direct from the battlefield to the family in a matter of days," he con-

Down in Stock Mart Reform New York Times Service WASHINGTON - The Securities and Exchange Commission, to the outrage of another government agency, is on the brink of backing down on one of the most strongly worded stock market reform proposals

LONG BEACH, CALIF., SUNDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1966

SEC Backs

The proposal - which the commission itself endorsed in unequivocal language in 1964 - would prohibit specialists from setting certain stock aside in long-term investment accounts with the object of holding it long enough to have any profits taxed at the favorable capital-gains rate.

contained in its special study of securities markets.

THE SPECIAL STUDY found that such segregation of stock for the tax advantage can keep specialists from doing their basic job effectively

Specialists are required, to the greatest possible extent, to buy stock when the public is selling and sellwhen the public is buying, in order to maintain orderly markets for stock without large and violent price gyra-

After months of unavailing argument with the IRS, leading New York Stock Exchange specialists, including the Exchange's board chairman, Walter N. Frank, recently went back to the SEC to plead for reversal of the SEC's 1964 position - a reversal that would leave the tax agency with no basis on which to issue its proposed ruling.

THE COMMISSION masses it has reached no decision on the matter yet, but it has thus far refused an Internal Revenue Service request to reaffirm its previous position that the very existence of specialists' segregated long-term investment accounts violates SEC requirements that specialists use all reasonable resources to maintain orderly markets.

The commission staff is violently split on the issue. Those who support the view that specialists should continue to be able to hold stock for long-term capital gains cite the fact specialists can sell shortthat is, sell borrowed stock-to meet market demand, rather than dipping into their investment accounts.

THIS ARGUMENT was noted - and rejected by the special study, which argued that "it may sometimes be necessary for a specialist to sell out his position and go short, to some reasonable extent, to serve the market.

Those who oppose any change in the SEC's earlier position also argue that short-selling by specialists are required to buy stock to cover their short positions within a stated period of time-which might be the very time when they should be selling for market stabilization purposes.

THEY ALSO NOTE that specialists have an exemption from the margin requirements applied to other traders and that it is unfair to permit them to use this exemption when trading for their own longterm profit.

Those who think the SEC should change its position argue that specialists will perform better, in a time of falling markets, if they know that some of the stock they buy can then be salted away in the hope of lightly taxed capital gains later on.

whistle, a spark, a trickle and then a cascade of molten steel poured from an open hearth furnace at U.S. Steel's Torrance Works, marking 50 years of production at the plant.)

Torrance Works of U.S. Steel now stands where coyotes once roamed fifty years ago. The City of Torrance, though only 18 miles southwest of Los Angeles, was still in the wilds and the first order of business before plant building operations began was to erect a high wooden fence to keep the coyotes out of the plant property.

The Torrance Works

owes its location to the enterprise of Jared Sidney Torrance, founder of the city in 1911. Torrance had its beginning when the Dominguez Estate Co., with Torrance as president, bought a 2,279-acre tract of land from the Rancho San Pedro.

This tract formed the first townsite. Other parcels of land, chiefly 700 acres purchased from a rancher. were added to the original tract from time to time.

THROUGHOUT the early years. Torrance was active in seeking industries for his town. Among those whom he tried to interest was Reese Llewellyn, president of the Llewellyn Iron fabricating shop and iron foundry in Los Angeles.

The Liewellyns were an interesting Welsh family consisting, at the time, of a widow and five sons. All of the Liewellyns were actively engaged at the Los Angeles plant in various capacities, but Mrs. Llewellyn was the guiding spirit and directed the family interests as long as she lived.

IN 1916, the Llewellyns started building operations on their site and, when completed it consisted of two 40-ton open hearth furnaces, a combination 22inch roughing and finishing a 12-inch merchant an 8-inch merchant mill and an iron and steel foundry. On October 16, 1916, the first heat of steel

In 1917 and 1918 when labor was scarce because of World War I, the company received permission from the government to bring in Indians from Arizona to carry on the vital work at the plant. Two groups of about forty each came from the Mojave tribe.

The Indians arranged for their employment through their local Indian agents and to accommodate the new employes, the company erected houses and mess halls on the site.

In 1923 the Llewellyns sold their steel plant to the Columbia Steel Corporation, a progressive West Coast steel company which, at that time, was operating a steel plant in Pittsburgh, Calif., and a blast furnace at Provo, Utah, Columbia moved a complete sheet mill from San Francisco to

When you buy a house in most communities, you get a house. And that's about all.

But at Meadowbrook we give you a lot more.

We give you a whole new way of living.

At Meadowbrook, there are three recreation centers (including the Meadowbrook Club). Eleven neighborhood parks. Swimming pools. Game courts. Barbecue areas. And so many community activities you'll never find time to be bored.

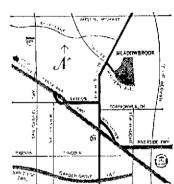

If all this sounds like a Country Club, it's no accident. We planned it that way. (Which is why we call Meadowbrook a Country Club Village.)

Meadowbrook even looks like a Country Club. Everywhere you look there are green lawns and parks. All utilities are underground. And there are no thru streets. (We built the whole community around looping Culde-Saes, which have beautiful recreation areas in the

PORTS O' PROGRESS L.A. Harbor Future Is Luncheon Topic

By JACK O. BALDWIN Marine Editor

Speakers from the Los Angeles Harbor Department will describe future plans of the harbor at the Maritime Industry Luncheon to be held Nov. 2 in the Mary Star of the Sea Auditorium, San Pedro.

A THREE-FOOT glass-encased model of an oil tanker used by the Standard Oil Co. has been donated to the Long Beach Harbor Department by Sandy Kemp, director of the California International Sea Festival, for inclusion in the department's model ship collection.

The model is of the "A. N. Kemp," a vessel named after a member of the oil company's board of directors who is also the grandfather of the festival director.

THE U. S. COAST GUARD has announced the new 1966 Light List which includes all the aids to navigation in the two local ports is now ready for issue.

It includes lighted and unlighted aids in geographic order and includes all the fog signals and radiobeacons on the Pacific Coast.

The list is available from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. or from the Captain's Locker, 251 Marina Drive in the Long Beach Marina.

THE MATSON CONTAINER operation in the Port of Los Angeles and the Sea-Land container loading facility in the Port of Long Beach were visited last week by two Japanese delegations studying container operations. The Japanese Transportation Ministry has announced a speed up of its containerization program.

Because of the rapid developments in the United States containerization program the Ministry said it would clip three years off its eight-year plan to move toward containerization.

Next year the Japanese will construct for the Japan-Pacific Coast trade four container ships of 22,-000-tons each. Both ships will be able to carry 1,000 containers 20 feet long. Orders have been placed for 6,400 containers for the trade route.

WORLD OF WINGS Area Pilots to Get Briefings by FAA

By LEE CRAIG

Things just didn't work out right. First, we tried to get yearly sales totals from Air Oasis, Long Beach's Cessna bastion, for comparison purposes with those printed last week for Aziec, the record-setting Long Beach Piper dealership.

Unfortunately, Air Oasis, as part of the Pacific Aeromotive Corporation empire, is no longer an entity in itself and its sales figures have disappeared into the corporate maw, as Frank Moore, A-O president, pleasantly informed us. In other words, forget it.

THEN, WE HAD a story lined up with George Hoffer, head of Southland Helicopters, on the new super-quiet Hughes 300 chopper now in use by county sheriffs in their Lakewood aerial patrol.

We understand that by a tail rotor change and new engine mufflers, the 300 can now sneak around overhead at 700 feet without arousing the ire of sleeping Lakewooders. Previously, deputies had been forced up to 1,500 feet by the frate citizenry.

However, Hughes nixed this story because they plan a large publicity splash on it soon and didn't want the word out prematurely. So don't tell anybody.

ONE BIT OF news we do have and this is it:

Two FAA briefings are coming up for area pilots at the Long Beach Health Department Building, 2655 Pine Ave. VFR and Special VFR traffic control will be handled, 7:30 to 10 p.m., Nov. 9 with IFR traffic control the subject on the following night. Films will be included both nights.

There seems to be a difference of opinion on the value of the recorded information now put out on the localizer frequency, 110.3. Air Oasis' Moore thinks it's a waste of the pilot's time. We don't agree, nor do most of the pilots to whom we've talked. Any opinions in the audience?

'Will you walk into my parlor?' Said the Spider to the Fly---''Tis the prettiest little parlor That ever you did spy.'

Dancers to spin web of fantasy

By ELISE EMERY Arts Page Editor

What does an imaginative young composer think of when he comes upon the children's poem, "The Spider and the Fly." written by Mary Howitt (1799-1888)?

ten by Mary Howitt (1799-1888)?

It's perfectly clear what Miss Howitt had

From her Victorian, puritanical, moralistic, simplified view of life she admonished young folk to avert their eyes from evil and to shun flattery.

When composer Frank Ahrold, 35, first read the verse in 1964 he understood the author's purpose, but he read a meaning of his own into her words — the seductive purpose of a fewler by a male suit and capture of a female by a male.

It is this interpretation that Camerata dei Musici will give the dance-drama by Ahrold and his collaborator, choreographer Albert Ruiz.

The work will have a one-night-only premiere Saturday at 8 p.m. in Long Beach City College Auditorium.

That the performance is free is only one unusual fact about the unique Camerata dei Musici

In 1963 a group of highly trained musicians formed this non-profil corporation to promote rare and original music. To finance their concerts and productions, they have a wine tasting party each year. If they need more money to do the quality work they demand, they're likely to open their own purses. The composition of the "Spider and the Fly" was the result of the venturesome Cam-

Fly" was the result of the venturesome Camerala's 1964 production of Gian Carlo Menotitis, "The Unicorn, the Gorgon and the Manticore." That masque was received with so much appreciation that the group asked Ahrold to compose a work in the same vein for them.

A Long Beach native, product of Long Beach schools and UCLA, and until this year music specialist with the Recreation Department, Ahrold found the assignment stimulating.

When he happened on Miss Howitt's prim poem, he knew he had found his lyrics. He wrote his score predicated on male and female polarity, a sophisticated version, indeed, of the children's verse.

"However," he explains," we hope families will come to our production Saturday. The children will understand it on their own level."

The composer completed his score in 1965, then began the long job of orchestrating and copying. In April of this year he took his music to Albert Ruiz, a gifted choreographer who had a 16-year career on Broadway, dancing leading roles, before coming to Long

There's no bigger hero in the American tradition than a football star.

There are few careers more glamorous than that of professional football.

But what about the woman who marries the darling of the nation's sportsminded public—the pro ball player?

How does she feel when she sees him being mauled and trampled by a ton of antagonistic manpower?

How does she raise her children in the limelight of their sports celebrity father?

WILD WAVES

A-haunting they did go by sea, on the rocks

By Iola Masterson Society Editor

SPOOKIEST PLACE in town Saturday was Audie and Hal Raap's home. It was also setting for one of the most gaily madcap Halloween parties of the week-

For third consecutive year Audie and Hal entertained at an all-out costume spree. To enter, guests had to find their way through a haunted house, a maze of eerie passage ways, with plenty of weird objects, sounds, lights to try the souls of the timid. The haunted house was specially constructed and extended across the entire front of the house, Audie and her identical twin, Shirley Richardson of Newport Beach, were there to confound and confuse everyone in identical bunny costumes. Not too many people know Shirley here and when it came time to introduce her, guest Dave Tansey, a talented magician, "pulled" the rabbits out of a huge cardboard hat. Some swore off witch's brew immediately; others raced for more, not believing their eyes.

Hal built himself a gargantuan papier mache head

to wear but it soon came off in interest of comfort and being able to partake of the big pot of potables during evening, later of the spook hour midnight buf-

Among guests were Sumner and Dee Trent, Roy and Pat Webb, Tom and Jean Zieger, Tom and Jennie Castle, Dale and Sharon Williamson, Al and Jean Matz, Ed and Lil Burt and Pete and Joan De Weese.

STICKLERS for going only to AAAA rated hostelries would never understand with what glee members of the exclusive Sahara Club plan their annual Halloween camp-out. This year the gang went to 4,500foot high Sheep Pass in rugged Joshua Tree National Monument (through Riverside and "over the hill" from Palm Springs).

The place is all huge rock fields to climb, Joshua trees and NO water. They tote in aqua plus everything else they need. Originators of trek are Parker and Agnes Markle and Bob and Pat Swanson. For this most recent, seventh annual jaunt, a total of 28 roughed it in the grand manner, with 12 adults and 16 kids in on

Not one of the kids and very few of the men came home without the seat of their pants ripped, one way or the other, from all the climbing. For the children, it's all in fun, but the men go about their climbing quite seriously in preparation for more strenuous mountaineering treks in the wilderness.

Among those present were Bob and Jean Sanders, Eileen Rockwell, Harry and Juanita Frishman, the Markles, Jean's brother, Stan Baumgartner and Al and Fran Marsillo. Ice is imported and carefully guarded for the nightly Chang Hour. Chang is the mountain climbing Sherpa's name for beer although, for the record, let it be known our Sahara climbers, adult types have never been known to limit themselves to chang.

IT WAS educational, but Port Ambassadors and their wives had a ball learning. As part of their training to serve as PAs, they were taken on a tour of the Long Beach Navy Base. Later the group was treated to cocktails and dinner at Officers' Club, Allen Center, as guests of Capt. Mort Lytle, CO of the base, and his

On the tour were Gene and Rose Bishop, Ken and Jean Austin, Margaret and Chet Baldwin (Chet is PA chairman this year), George and Norma Richards, Bill and Lois Wray, Jim and Jill Hagenbach, Roger and Terry Enders, Jack and Bill Berbower, Jerry and Marjorie Sims, Al and Mary Spaeth, Ed and Virginia Wood.

Other involved were Roland Krafft, Ron Stone, Harry and Marylu Krusz, David Humphrey, Dave Selcer, Charles Harmon and Lt. Cmdr. John Larson, who arranged the tour, and wife, Betty.

Everything was quite serious to begin with but broke into a pandemonium of hilarity when it was time to take the sea cruise part of the tour. Have you ever seen women in stylish, short, slender skirts in high heels try to get into a Navy launch from a dock, primarily designed for agile, long-legged men?

AFTER NINE months on special assignments in Africa, John Hodgkin is home but you'd hardly know it, says wife, Liz. After return they flew almost immediately to Fresno and Santa Cruz, old home towns

Liz took an extensive vacation from her interior decorating business to visit with John ln Africa, where he spent five months in Liberia doing aerial surveying and four months in Nairobi, serving as pilot for safari parties. Adventurous fellow hasn't had time to get his Stateside wardrobe in order, is still striding around in safari garb. Which looks a little startling in the heart of Belmont Shore, Liz laughingly explained.

Most startling thing, though, was John's announcement to his wife that he had ordered 11 antique chests from Zanzibar which she had admired when they visited that island off Africa during summer visit. Due to arrive next week, Liz anticipates a real challenge in redoing their digs in wall-to-wall chests.

REALLY IN the spirit of things political are students at Chadwick School, Palos Verdes Peninsula. They had a week-long campaign, then jumped the gun with a mock gubernatorial election. Mike Kral of Long Beach beat the drums for the Republicans and Steve Salinger for the Democrats, which seems reasonable, Steve being Pierre's son.

Polisters, take heed. Result of school vote was two to one in favor of Ronald Reagan over Pat Brown. Both candidates, hearing of the election, sent gracious telegrams praising the students for spirited interest CLOSE FRIENDS who have been helping each other get over those difficult humps in life known as birthdays, were gathered by Helen Jones to note husband, Jonah's, arrival at senior citizenship. It was a sit down dinner at their home for members of their birthday club and Jonah serenely weather the good natured jibes at his new age status.

AS IT was explained to me, and I believe it, it was a good night for palate and psyche when Sam and Phylis Major entertained in their exquisite home in Miraleste with co-hosts Dr. David and Betty Ruja of B'Hills. Sangrilla, the traditional wine punch of Madrid, Spain, was for the palate, as were the caviar and strudel served

The Rujas provided the main course in the psyche department, describing their trip to Moscow to attend the international congress of psychologists. Dave, formerly on staff of San Pedro's Mental Health Clinic, is a past president of the state association of clinical psychologists.

Betty and Dave extended their trip to long and delightful stays in Spain and Austria, which accounted for the diversified refreshments. Conversation was rollickingly diversified, too, among friends from Long Beach, San Pedro and PV Peninsula.

FATHER-SON baby shower gifts were order of night when Bob and Lois Hallinan were honored at party given by Phil and Gayle Clock and Terry and Diane Barkis. Main honoree, in absentia, was Hallinan's first child, adopted baby son, Jeff, blissfully hassinetted at home.

Present to give gifts, share cocktails and late supper were Ralph and Paula Irwin, Don and Marilyn Wells, Bill and Clarice Carls, Joe and Nancy Critchfield, Fred and Marian Bigony, John and Diane Wavell, Jim and Peggy Russell and Mike and Shirley

Bunch of 'cut-ups' work during league-sponsored girls' club project (right)

PUMPKIN "SURGERY" IS SERIOUS BUSINESS ... Janice Lucas, 12, makes initial incision in creation of Jack o' Lantern.

TWO SMILES, BOTH GAILY CONTAGIOUS . . . Shirley Newman, 12, displays pumpkin she carved for Halloween.

OPERATION JACK O' LANTERN Better to carve than eat

Pumpkins can be boiled, srewed, cooked in a pressure cooker, baked in a pie, used for party puddings or in a dozen other delectable ways.

But to a child the most exciting thing that can be done with one of the brilliant orange objects is to carve it into a Jack O' Lantern. Knowing this. Mrs. Jack Redic, Assistance League volunteer worker, made many forays to markets and nearby farms for several loads of pumpkins.

These were delivered by league and Las Hermanas, its auxiliary, to Girls Club West and their Junior High Girls 'Clubs at Washington and Lindbergh for this week's Operation Jack

Providing such constructive, crearive outlets, as well as cultural ex-periences for girls during leisure hours, is the full time project of Assistance League, Las Hermanas and Rick Rackers, the league's junior aux-

It was a joyful experience to carve the faces on the fat, round pumpkins for the girls and the volunteers who aided with the project. Even the one small drawback, cleaning up the un-believable mess of seeds after the big cut-up, was cheerfully tackled by girls and sponsors, alike. It's all part of the festivities for this Trick or Treat

SO HE CAN SEE WHOLE WORLD BETTER . . . Patricia Calhoun, 13, toans her glasses to her favorite "Jack."

COMING HERE FOR 'IN' SESSION, '66

Her fashions are the 'right gear'

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON Director, Women's News

Hip, groovy, tuff, gear! These esoteric utterances are frequently offered by today's teen-agers as a stamp of approval for anything from the newest chemistry prof to the latest recording by the Beach Boys.

But nothing produces more teen superlatives than "in" apparel.

There's where Pat Neilan comes in. This young-minded California designer-innovator of new and exciting looks for the young, swinging

She turns out her snappy creations for Juniorbaloo, rosebud division of Phil Rose of California.

The young fashion designer will be in Long Beach Saturday to present a lively showing of her "right gear" at "In" Session, '66, the I-PT's exciting self-improvement clinic for high

ONE OF THOSE rare talents literally born to be a designer. Pat Neilan began her success story when. at 14, she won the High School Design Contest sponsored by Marshall Field in Chicago.

After completing school, it was off to Paris and a fashion dream come

Following her apprenticeship in the world's fashion capital, Pat stayed on in Paris to design for boutiques, ready . to - wear manufacturers and many top-rated French films.

WHAT DOES Pat say about her own designs?

"Juniorbaloo is designed for the young, lean, junior figure and for the girls who demand the newest fashion looks," she says.

Pat makes a study of these girls, where they go, what they do and what they wear. She understands their plea for "the unusual" and succeeds by offering them the latest looks in the best taste. She understands, also, our tendency to generalize about teen-agersto come up with some common traits, such as that they have a profound respect for the Beatles . . . that they respond on masse to the watusi, the frug and the beat . . . that they set

It is hard to appraise this kind of art objectively. Since the beginning of this century, those who support contemporary art have taken such a pasting from the opposition, that there is a tendency for passionate loyalty to any gesture of creativity.

HOWEVER, when it comes to the kind of art now being shown at the Pasadena Museum, characterized as "reductive" art (whose makers were described by Harold Rosenberg in an article in Sept. 1 "Vogue" as "Virtuosos of Boredom"), I reluctantly fall out of step with the avant garde, Stella's work, which has been wildly popular lately, is based on his reaction to Abstract Expressionism: 'It didn't deal with the edge." So, he built shaped canvases triangles, hexagons, etc., and painted, usually in mono-

The first reaction was, "how original!" But the possibilities for expression with that device seemed to be exhausted before Mr.

IN THIS SHOW, Stella begins with huge rectangular canvases and adds jutting triangles. The broad bands of color, some shiny, some matte, work optically with these shapes. However, the effect is not so terribly mysterious. And, whereas previously, his parallel lines were separated neatly (with masking tape, pulled off when dry), now they are all sloppy and bleeding, though the paint is applied with an evenuess to which a housepainter should aspire.

Friends of Music offer vesper series

A musical undertaking that has grown spontaneously over the past five years at California Heights Methodist Church will be presented again this season under auspices of the church's Friends of Music.

Titled the Vesper Series, the free programs will be offered at 5 p.m. Nov. 6, Dec. Jan. 15, March 12 and April 30.

Soprano Marie Gibson will sing music by great composers for the opening program next Sunday. Winner of the San Francisco Opera Debut Auditions in 1957, she is well-known to Southland audiences through her many opera and concert appearances. She has sung with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra many times with such conductors as Georg Solti, Walter Hendl, Howard Hanson and Alfred Wallen-

SUBSEQUENT programs will feature the Chancel Choir, soloists, instrumentalists and guest artists.

The Vespers are made possible through the financial support of the Friends of Music, an organization which anyone may join with a donation of whatever amount he wishes to make. For further information call Mrs. E. J. Marks, 3860 Country Club Drive.

The Delta Pumping Plant on today's cover will soon start Feather River water flowing south - uphill - all the way to Southern California. This giant plant, one of a series along the 444mile concrete channel California Aqueduct, will lift 10,330 cubic feet of water a second 244 feet from the Italian Slough on the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta to the aqueduct. Eleven pumps will be required to boost the water. This is the beginning of the water's trip south. The story of this modern-day miracle is on Page 5, Photo by Al Monteverde, Metropolitan Water District.

My mistake was reading

(Do you realize, Mr. Henry Ford II, that you have made owning a new automobile a career unto itself? Fully one-fourth, 20 whole pages of the manual, is devoted to little chores, inspections here and refills there, that rekindle a flame for the Model-T.)

WHY IS THERE a chapter on pushing and towing? And why, for goodness sake, is there an illustration of how to change a tire? Then there's this beauty: "Do not run the engine when the car is on a jack." This portent of grisly doom is in BOLD FACE TYPE! By then I was perspiring in torrents.

quench Southern California's powerful thirst have reached the half-way point in bringing Northern Culifornia water south. If the mamnoth, man-made river that runs uphill stays on schedule, by 1971 Southlanders will drink from the Feather River—826 miles away as the spillway

When completed, the State Water Project, the largest unlfied water development ever undertaken by man, will conserve 4.23 million acre-feet of water annually. An acrefoot of water is that measure of water spread over an acre of ground one foot deep. One acre-foot equals 326,000 gallons and one million gallons is about three acre-feet. More than half of the yield-2.5 million acre-feet-will go to Southern California to help slake the 60-gailon-a-day-perperson water appetite of Southlanders.

Construction of parts of the gigantic water project Is edging toward Los Angeles as men and machines bore through the rock barrier of the Tehachapi Mountains. The Tehachapis-a towering natural barrier- are the big hurdle in the water project. Water must be lifted 1,926 feel over the mountains-a gargantuan task.

A SINGLE PUMP will boost the water over the mountain at the rate of 4,100 cubic feet per second. This engineering feat alone staggers the imagination, but the whole picture of man's immense undertaking to change nature's habit of dumping her surplus water into the ocean is a modern-day man-made miracle.

The original idea of bringing the north's surplus water south is not new. It was first proposed in 1933 when a drought threatened to turn the agriculturally rich San Joaquin Valley into a dust bowl. California voters approved bonds to construct the project, but the depression made sale of revenue bonds impossible. The federal government took over the project and the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation built the Shasta. Trinity and Folsom Dams for water delivery as far south as Bakersfield. The towering Tehachapis blocked the water from reaching anywhere south of

Following World War II as the water needs south of the Tehachapis reached crisis stages, the old 1933 water project was dusted off and revised. In 4956, a new state agency, the California Water Resources, developed a plan to transport surplus waters of the north to the state's water deficient regions, Voters in 1960 approved a $1,750. 000,000 bond issue to finance the work

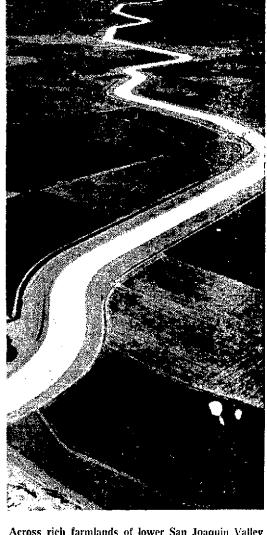

SEVENTY PER CENT of the rain and snowfall in California occurs north of the latitude of San Francisco Bay, while nearly 80% of the water use of the state occurs south of this latitude. Rainfall in Southern California averages slightly over 9 inches a year, with hundreds of square miles inland being virtual deserts. Complicating the water supply problem is the fact that heavy rain and snowfall occurs during a few winter and spring months, with the bulk of this supply flowing aimlessly into the

THE MEN who are moving water over mountains to nia's population increase which has boosted the state's census to nearly 19 million and if the rate continues it will approach 50 million by the year 2000. Since the population density is clustered in the southern region of the state, there is an ever-greater rate of water use in the south and ground water is depleted. The empty freshwater basins are such a problem that salt water intrusion has been found as far as 10 miles inland. In the Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley, Costa Mesa region of Orange County a crash program is under way to block the sall water seeping into the underground basins.

Areas such as Long Beach, Los Angeles and Orange County have prevented a water shortage disaster by importing water into metropolitan Southern California from Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Please give brief data on TIN-DALE, TINDALL, TINDILL -R.H., I.B. Long Beach; J.T., Garden Grove.

TINDALE and the spell-Ing variations TINDALL and TINDILL were respelled from this family home district in England, called "Tynedale." This term meant "Valley of the River Tyne." This stream flows to the east English coast, Tyne is from the archaic word "Tain" describing simply "water." William de Tynedale was an ancestral resident of Northumberland in 1292. The family shield granted in 1485 is silver, decorated with a horizontal red strip between three black sheaves.

MISS RULE: Kindly inform us on MYERS, MEY-RES — J.M., W.M., Long Beach; G.M., Norwalk.

MYERS and MEYRES are primarily from the old German surname Meier, a pro-fessional title for a "bailiff or steward" of a nobleman's estate, used first over eight centuries ago. Meier is a German form of the ancient Latin term "Major" meaning "great one." Myers may also be English, from "Myr," portraying "Dweller at the mire or marsh." The German Meyer shield from Messe is blue, decorated with two stems with silver blossoms. The shield for Myers of London, England, is silver, emblazoned with a three-masted sailing ship on a blue sea.

MISS RULE: Please explain NUNN - R.M., Long

NUNN in primeval England meant "father, or man with solemn manner." king of the South Saxons in Sussex, England, was called Nunna in A.D. 692, It was a royal given-name at that time. Nunna became the surname Nunn in the 1200s. The Nunn armorial shield is black, decorated with a gold X cross between four gold lion legs. Capt. Richard Nunn went to Ireland in the British conquest of 1649 and remained there. His progeny become prominent in County Wexford.

MISS RULE: Please give data on KASS and KATZ of Jewish origin-B.K., Lake-

KASS and KATZ can be either Jewish or German-Slavic surnames. Kass and Katz began as the German-Slavic "Kos" denoting denoting "blackbird," from either a shop sign or a farm harboring blackbirds. Kass and K tz also started from the ole German "Kazo" portraying the ancestor as "great speaker." The ancient Hebrew "Kahn-Sadoc" describing "priest and holy man" central Europe as both Kas and Katz, which are Ger man spellings and not Rus sian or Slavic.

MISS RULE: Please iden tify WIGTON - T.C., Lon

WIGTON of England had "Wigga-tun" descriptive o "warrior's estate." The Wig ton armorial shield from Yorkshire is black, decorat ed with three golden stars

MISS RULE: Would like the origin of ALEXANDRI -- M.J., Lakewood; M.M. Long Beach.

ALEXANDRE originated in France, handed down from a forefather baptized Alexandre (Alexander in En glish) meaning "Defender of men." The French Alexan dre shield is gold, embla zoned with a seated black wolf placed below three sil ver rosettes on a black

WHEN MY DOCTOR ordered me to the hospital for tests, I was not apprehensive. My blood pressure was a little high, and he wanted to see what could be causing it. It was with a light heart that I packed my suitcase, loaded up with all the books and magazines I had been wanting to read, bade farewell to family and friends, and presented myself at the admission of-

A nurse in a crisply-starched uniform pushed a wheelchair into the admitting office. "Can you walk, dear?"

I laughed long and heartily. "Yes, of course. I'm not sick, you see. I'm just here for tests."

When the nurse took me to my room, I instantly felt sorry for the other two occupants. They had the listless and apathetic look of the really sick.

The dark-haired lady lifted her tousled head and looked at me dully, "Whatcha got,

I EXPLAINED that I was just having

"Yeah?" Her eyes brightened a little.

"Tests for what?"

I felt foolish discussing my condition with people who were so ill, but I reluctantly admitted that my blood pressure was

Her eyes almost sparkled and she smiled broadly. "Say, what a coincidence. My brother had that."

I inquired politely how her brother was. She sighed and lay back against the pillow. "He died last week. Lovely funeral, though. 1'll bet there were 200 people

The gray-haired lady in the other bed raised herself up on one arm and peered at me curlously. "My sister's had high blood pressure for years, poor dear, Suffers something terrible. I don't know how much longer she can go on."

"Suffers!" I cried in alarm, "Just how does she suffer?"

"Oh, you know. Dizzy spells, nervousness, palpitations, and the worst part is the insomnia. She can't sleep at all."

I SLOWLY SAT down on the bed. Now that was strange. I had felt dizzy just the other day after my tennis lesson. And I had had palpitations then, too-no doubt of it. I hadn't thought anything of it at the time. Maybe I'd better just lie down and rest a bit. I did feel a little dizzy that very mo-

That night I couldn't sleep at all. I tossed and turned until the early hours of

In the morning my roommate shook her head sympathetically. "That's the way my brother was. Couldn't sleep at all at night.

I sat on the edge of the bed, swinging my legs and tapping my fingers on the side rall. My other roommate said, "You're like my sister, all right. Nervous as all get out."

I hurrledly lay down again, I did seem to be getting worse. The nurses' aide came in and tried to get me up for a shower. I explained to her that I suffered from high blood pressure and might get too dizzy if I stood up. She obviously lacked understanding of my condition and builted me into the shower stall.

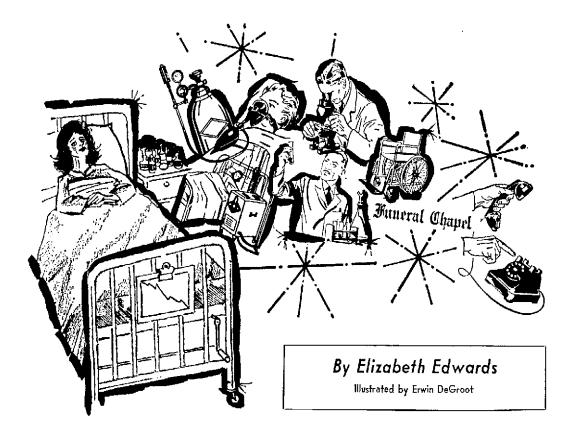

SHORTLY AFTER that ordeal, a young man in a white coat came briskly into the room with a tray full of needles and test tubes. I gasped, "What are you going to

I know I detected a solemn tone in his voice. "This test shows whether you have a tendency for diabetes."

Diahetes? Funny, I had never even suspected that I might have diabetes. Carefully, without a quaver, I inquired, "How do you feel when you're getting diabetes?"

The technician shrugged, but my ever-solicitious roommates supplied the information in unison. I gathered that excessive thirst and insatiable hunger were the first

"And you got up three times in the night for water," they happily added.

It was difficult to converse with my roommates because of the dryness in my mouth, and I couldn't concentrate on a book because of the hunger. After an eternity of waiting, lunch was brought in. When I saw my tray, I knew instantly that the dieticians had made a mistake. I rang for the nurse.

"Something's wrong," I began as she hurried into the room. "I'm supposed to be on a special diet. And I'll probably be having shots later. Insulin, I think."

She consulted her list. "No, you are on a regular diet."

Everybody Tried to Explain to Her That She Was Just Imagining She Was Sick, but All She Wanted to Know Was...

"You don't understand," I cried in desperation, "They made some tests this morning and . . .'

The nurse cut me off brusquely, assured me I was on a regular diet, and stalked out of the room. I decided not to eat my lunch. I didn't want to take any chances.

IN THE AFTERNOON a young woman wheeled a strange looking machine into my room. I tried to sit up but the dizziness and hunger were too great. "What are you going to do?" I asked weakly.

"Just take un electrocardiagram," she answered cheerfully as she began hooking me up to the device.

"My God, not my heart, too," I moaned, clutching my chest.

The room whirled about me, I thought back. I had had a chest pain last week; I remembered it distinctly. My husband had said it came from eating two pizzas, dill pickles, and pistachin ice cream but then he didn't know anything about medicine. I shuddered at the damage I must have been doing. I would have to give up strenuous things like scrubbing floors and washing windows. Maybe even tennis and swim-

After the test, the nurse came back into the room. She stood by my bed and said sternly, "You should get out of bed for a while. It would do you good." Then she leaned over my bed and added, "The aides are too busy now to answer your bell so why don't we just disconnect it."

"Have you checked with my doctor?" I knew he hadn't seen the test results yet.

The nurse answered quickly, "Your doctor specifically ordered you up. I called him,"

THAT NIGHT my doctor came into my room. The minute I saw him I knew he had seen the results. He was frowning. My heart pounded and I could hardly get out the words, "Tell me, doctor, what do I was an effort. "I have good news for you, Your tests are all normal. You can go home

He patted my shoulder, but his smile

"But, doctor," I sobbed, "I don't think I feel strong enough. The dizziness is getting worse and the thirst is unbearable. The nervousness and chest pains cause insumnia. And the hunger.'

He removed my hands from his lapels. "Now, now. You'll feel better when you get home. There is nothing we can do for you."

The doctor left the room hurrically. Serious cases like mine must be upsetting to him emotionally.

My roommates clucked sympathetically. "You poor dear, you'd think there'd be something they could do for you."

"Home is always the best place to be," stated the other. "I'd never have forgiven myself if I hadn't taken mother home from the hospital.'

IT WASN'T UNTIL then that I saw the whole picture clearly. I didn't have much time left. Hadn't the doctor himself admitted there was nothing he could do? What really hurt was the fact that he didn't think I had the courage and strength of character to face the truth.

When my husband arrived the next morning to take me home, I could tell at once he knew. He looked drawn and wor-ried. He said, "I've got something to tell you, and I'm afraid you're going to be up-set."

"I already know, sweetheart," I sighed, patting his hand, "Be brave, We'll manage somehow?

"What do you mean we'll managewith all the plumbing in the house stopped

I saw that he wanted to keep up the pretense that our life together would go on as before. I would play the game his way until the very end.

The nurse came in to check me out. "As ABODEELY is an American re-spelling of an Italian surname. Two sources resulted in this name. One was the archaic Graeco-Italian "Apotelesma," denoting "fulfiliment." Alternately. Abodeely began in Italy as the medieval dialect being very solemn and inspired with religious devotion.

But Officer, I Can Explain...

By Bob Loeffelbein

LOS ANGELES police-A LOS ANGELES ponce-man, in arresting a post-man, was told, "Well, I would just get tired and take some letters home with me." Some 5,000 undelivered letters were found in his apartment. "But I intended to deliver them sometime," he added

And it was in Los Angeles a motorist was hailed down for running a flashing red light. Yes, the driver had seen the light . . . but he did not think he had to stop since he had gone through the intersection between the red flashes

But the classic alibi came from a suspect charged with murdering a policeman In-Alexandria, Va. Faced with the lesser of two evils, he proved he was eight blocks away at the time, robbing a gas station!

FOR STEALING autos there have been whole lists of stock answers put on file, but some originality shows up on occasion.

A man in Coeur d'Alene, idaho, stole a car out of a public garage and when picked up by police ex-plained, "I got tired waiting for that darn bus."

A 17-year-old Providence Rhode Island, girl, when apprehended, said she needed it to practice for her driver's test.

And a young newsboy in Chicago said he had to have one to finish his paper route when his bike broke down.

SPEEDERS, too, have a coterie of stock answers they may choose from.

woman "just bought some new platform-type shoes and couldn't tell how far down my foot was on the gas pedal" . . . A Detroiter's excuse was his car was leaking oil and he was hurrying home before it ran out ..." A Hillsdale, Mich. man said he was hurrying home to get his false teeth so he could eat his lunch . . . And a Moultrie, Ga., farmer was going fast "to get away from that awful smell," which turned out to be a dead skunk wedged between the fender and from headlight,

A Stanford University shident was arrested for duying down a street backward. He had rented the car on a mileage basis, and was just trying to keep the mileage costs down.

An Oklahoma City motorist was picked up for weaving down the street. He was sloshing the gas back and forth in his tank to get h all into his carburetor so he wouldn't run out.

Officers were dispatched to query a man standing in the street of a New Hampshire town in his underwear. They dressed him down, made him dress up, but finally accepted his excuse that he had stripped to his shorts to change a tire because he hadn't wanted to soil his new trousers.

But the story to end stories came from an unemployed Detroit man who told the judge he couldn't pay his alimony because he was always being robbed. The judge decided he needed police protection and gave him 30 days in jail, TOUR CORDUROY knicker-clad boys skulk through a brisk Halloween evening, worn tennis shoes slap-slapping the old cemetery's graveled road in unconsclous parody of Boris Karloff carrying the "Bride of Frankenstein" from her tomb.

An owl hoots from his night perch in one of the weeping cypresses enshrouding this ploneer burying ground-and the youngest and smallest of the four shivers in sudden horror.

Replying almost in cadence from a distant crossing is the sweetly mournful whistle of a steam train just completing its dally 400-plus-mile run westward across the Plains from Saint Louie.

Ahead in the gloom is a place that, even under a bright summer's sun, conjures unnameable terrors for the youngest and

There, in a graveyard occupied by a few who died of lead poisoning in the town's lusty cowcamp days, is a row of tombs dug into a hillside facing a small, stagnant pool.

Heavy, rusted iron bars unwanted intruders, almost as if these frontier merchant princes died in fear and trembling of some reincarnated Edinburgh body snatch-

WORSE YET to the youngest, who fearfully had just finished Mr. Poe's account of being "Buried Alive," are neat little ventilating chimneys silhouetted by a sickle moon atop each private mausoleum. Are any of the mouldering bone piles within twisted and contorted in a terrible deathafter-death? he wonders.

It is a place full of strange dreads-even when a brilliant Memorial Day sun shines on a handful of gnarled Grand Army of the Republic veterans come in faded blue uniforms to greet long-gone comrades. otherwise glamorous National Guard firing squad and bugler, youthful in badly-fitting kliakis, rolled puttees and campaign hats, then fails to lift a gloomy aura surrounding these tombs-under a clean, blue sky.

Perhaps it's all mixed up with a vivid memory of a cheaply-lithographed Sunday School picture of another Tomb shaded by weeping cypresses, and of its inexplicable

NOW ON A DARK NIGHT in the fall of the year 193—, the youngest is being initiated by the "big boys"—all 11 or 12 years old-into the rites of All Hallows' Eve.

Gravel pops a few yards away and the boys freeze in rigid caricature of long-gone Indian fighters. "It's nuthin'," snorts the senior, "just a rabbit."

The hoot-hooting owl again slows them but the leaders impervious wave quickly restarts his little group. An auto horn sounds nearby and the second-oldest mutters, "Cheez, it's the cops!"

"Naw," scornfully replied the third clder. "Just a guy havin' fun with his girl."

The youngest is silent, wrapped in his own private fears.

They approach the burial places, late-Victorian red brick vaults inset with a grassy hillside. A musty, evil stench pours from the facing pond, almost as if. . . .

"One, two, three. . . ." Briskly the senior counts off entrances. "Here it is-fourth from the west. Cummon, gather 'round, guys."

His juniors nod in smug_satisfaction; they know what to expect. The youngest only shakes a bit harder—it's a cold night, after all.

"Mumbo jumbo, jumbo mumbo," ritualistically begins the leader, "You are about to view. . . ."

Dramatically he whips out a flashlight, focuses its beam inside. No. 3 boy, not unkindly, shoves the youngest to the forefront to see .

A great, bearded head, glistening, reflecting the flashlight beam.

HIS EMOTIONS, the initiated remembers much later, were not unlike those Hamlet might have felt had he actually seen his dead father astride the battlements of Elsinore.

"It's only a statchoo of . . ." the leader explains so long ago. "Don't be skeeredthey closed it in with him so people won't

So It was, the voungest would learn, A one-time gun slinger-turned-successful-merchant died with his boots off, in bed, a wealthy man. Besides a street and a school named for him, his legacy was to be a bronze bust resting across elemity in a funeral vault.

There his efficy would shake impressionable vonth through the generations in which Halloween was changing, losing its old vicious ways and becoming today's innocuous "trick or treat" night.

The youngest's older friends even then were vainly boasting of buggies perched on church spires, of privies overturned and houses daubed with multi-colored paints. They could sense the old way's passing, wanted to be identified with it.

PERHAPS THEY did flip the two or three Chic Sales remaining in their onetime agricultural neighborhood. last recorded buggy left dry and high on a steeple came in 1918 -- and the three then would have been much too young.

No, they were of a generation in transition, one that would scare its juniors with bronze heads on Halloween, soan an occasional screen window at the home of the block's Mr. Scrooge and begin the vaguely disreputable custom of "bumming" goodies door-to-door.

Threats were made—"Gimme a handout or I'll getcha"-but few householders actaally were harmed. And that's how our present trick-or-treating all began.

Years past, the youngest becomes the eldest, and in turn presents his juniors to the grinning head in the cemetery on All Hallows' Eve.

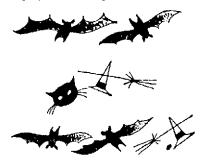

Dances, girls, parties, girls, become increasingly important as later Octobers end. Cemetery junkets are infrequent, finally cease. A war intervenes.

MUCH LATER the grownup youngest -who no longer is the smallest-returns out of curiosity to the vault and its once-fearsome head.

Then, on a dreary afternoon late in the fall of 194-, is the final but not quite indisputable end of this story.

The bust is gone from its place of glory, presumably melted down to be fired at our enemies overseas in the years just ended.

But the youngest prefers to believe, instead, that it was taken from a marble pedestal by a contemporary-in one final blaze of glory for vanishing Halloween,

Spaceman (left) joins traditional characters of Halloween, and the frightened tot, too, is part of the tradition of autumn's children's holiday.

The Children's Excitement at Another Halloween

By Marion K. Minar

THERE IS A bubbling excitement in my house today and the word that comes to mind to best describe it is cacophony.

It happens every year this time. Of course, you've guessed. Holloween. Wiches, ghosts and goblins. Pumpkins and Indian corn and candy. Ten cent store costumes and gory masks and ghoulish laughter.

It's halloween again. It has been a frantic weekend at our house.

THE CHILDREN hardly contain themselves evil spirits, witches, and costumes, changing their minds a dozen times. Whenever they see masks on sale they must stop and pour over them as though hypnotized. In some ways Halloween is more fascinating for them than Christmas. Perhaps It is the idea of delicious horror that shivers their spines; or maybe it is being able to bide behind an Identity no one will recognize.

Q. Which have the most accidents, boys or girls? E.F.

A. Boys. The probable reason is that they are more active and daring than girls.

Q. Was actor Sidney Poltier born in France? W.M.

A. No. This 1963 Oscar winner was born Feb. 20, 1927, in Miami, Fla., the youngest of eight children. As an infant he was taken to his parents' tomato farm on Cat Island in the Bahamas, not far from Nassau. He went to school in Nassau, and when 15 returned to Miami and lived for a time with his married brother, Cyril, before traveling north to New York City's Harlem.

O. Where did the term. muckraker, originate? E.G.

A. The term goes back to the "Man with the Muckrak" in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress"-a man so intent on raking up muck or filth that the could see nothing else. It came into wide use after Theodore Roosevelt made a speech on April 14, 1906, in which he said: "Men: with the muckrake are often indispensable to the wellbeing of society, but only if they know when to stop raking the muck," Lincoln Steffens (1866-1936), American writer-reformer who attacked corruption among public officials and corporations. was the most prominent of the so-called muckrakers of the early 1900s.

Q. How big is a township in the public land survey system? H.C.

A. The township, primary unit of the survey system, is a square six miles on each side. Its total area is 36 square miles. Townships are laid out like the squares on a checkerboard, with the boundary lines running north-south and east-west. These boundaries tie into the system of land survey reference lines which are called principal meridians (northsouth lines) and base lines (east-west lines). Each township is subdivided, in the same checkerboard fashion, into 36 sections, each of which is one mile square and contains 640 acres.

Q. When was the electric chair first used in America? -T.A.

A. On August 6, 1890, William Kemmler, John Hart, was electrocuted at Auburn Prison, Auburn, N. Y. He had been convicted of the first-degree murder of Matilda Ziegler.

Getting to the Heart of the Question of . . .

The Business of Exercising

By Art Vinsel

tests and exercises, so we may as well make a test, of our first exercise. It's a multiple choice test so pay close close attention to the possible answers. Ready

Who among the following group is safe from the danger of heart attack, disease or coronary thrombosis?

A. Dick, the young family man, formerly a champion collegiate football player and now a broad-beamed insurance broker.

B. Harold, the jovial pearshaped carpenter who cheers on The Man From Uncle while cheering up one of the major brewers' board of trustees with six-packs TV-side every night.

C. Ed the aerospace industry executive who has a low- an unfortunate occurrence.

THIS IS A story about cal plate at lunch each day, an ulcer and finds time to readily available literature bat the volley ball around with his kids each weekend.

D. Mort, the wiry department store manager who gets in two miles of walking during work hours, but can't sleep nights because of emotional tension and strain.

WELL CLASS, we pulled the sneaks on you.

The real answer is "None of the Above."

Because no one is immune to heart trouble-there are only degrees of safety and some of us are literally living on borrowed time,

But before you grab a pen and start roughing out your will and figuring insurance premiums, consider what can be done to avert such

Grab instead some of the on preventive steps like that found in such unlikely places as "Free Take One," racks, or on the counter at your local Heart Association

Actually, there are people who were thinking of your health even while you aren't - among them many Southland area employers and at present the Long Beach YMCA.

A PILOT program began there this month which may lead to an expanded series making good conditioning specifically oriented to increased heart health - simple for hundreds of area residents.

Scheduled three days per week from noon to 1 p.m., the sessions will end Dec. 31, with results to be evaluated at that time,

Although some programs, such as those conducted by California State College at Long Beach, Memorial Hos-pital and North American Aviation at Downey, stress work with weights, the Y program is slightly different.

Randy Clark, physical director, says the pilot ses-sions will emphasize calisthenic workouts aimed at strengthening the cardiorespiratory system. That means the heart and lungs.

"Ninety per cent of us Americans lead sedentary lives," says the trim and athletic Clark, "and exercise is one of the best ways to lengthen those lives."

ANY MUSCLE needs conditioning to keep in tone and the heart-itself a muscle -- is no exception. The fact that it pumps continuously throughout life doesn't mean it won't benefit from additional exercise.

Fifteen initial participants In the program underwent complete physical examinations followed by Y admin-istered tests to determine strength, physical flexibility, posture extent of overweight and motor nervous system fitness.

Those over 40-Ecchhh.. only 15 more years --- additionally receive the treadmill test, which is an invigorating hill on a moveable trail that takes you nowhere.

To perform it, you take off your shirt. But not this morning, buddy, not if you're waiting as your wife is powdering her nose to head for church. The emotional strain you'll earn from her tirade will create ten- anaylses.

sion, which is also bad for. the heart.

At test-time is when you take off your shirt, step onto. the treadmill and begin slogging along at 1.7 miles per hour, which is about how: fast you walk to the store for a pack of cigarets. Oops. A dirty word in cardio-respiratory circles.

THE SPEED is then increased for 10 minutes at two minute intervals, to give the examiner an accurate profile of your heart vs. stress tolerance profile. If the pump and related plumbing is in good shape, that means you'll get about 25 quarts of blood per minute instead of only five.

An example of how emotlonal stress can harm the heart is the secretion of adrenalin at such times. The 25 - quart - per-minuto rate may be reached even without exertion, when under

Getting back to the Y program, officials hope it can be expanded into daily classes for the benefit of the so-called night people, the lay-abeds, and the 8-to-5 crowd with regular lunch hours.

Supervised sessions are anticipated at 7:30 a.m., noon, 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. Equipment will be furnished and probably some individual guidance concerning particular physical fitness needs.

Although the Y will be giving the regular stress test, other medical examinations are urged and the Cal State Faculty Health Club requests its participants in the fitness game to have electrocardiogram tests and blood sugar and cholesterol

One can't after all, be too careful to make certain he is fit to get fitter, because hidden heart conditions can be aggravated by hard exercise.

SH Chay old

THERE IS much evidence that required or at least recommended exercising will soun become a part of the work week for many Long Beach area organizations.

An Orange County newspaper has begun a manda-tory exercise period in the parking lot, perhaps to off-set after-work exercise in a joint not far away. Some of the staff members were said to be getting muscle-bound elbows from tilting glasses.

One can't help wondering. however, what may happen when the City Editor sends a reporter to cover the crash of a big airplane into downtown Santa Ana and the Calisthenics Editor orders him to stay and finish 20 more bend-and-reaches and a handful of one-hand push-

NOW THAT we've been serious and not-so-serious, there are many steps to be taken to improve general health and lessen the likelihood of heart trouble.

Avoid cholesterol-rich diets, practice moderation in all man's little vices - there are a lot of them - and get adequate exercise whether prescribed or not; try a walk around the block for dessert instead of a slab of pie.

It might help also to slop and think how many people would be concerned and vitally affected if you were stricken with heart disease. And think how many would be grieved if it were to be even worse.

Have a heart. And take care of it.

THEESE SANDWICHES CAN BE served for any occasion ranging from the elegant luncheon for the ladies to the informal buffet for the teens.

For your teen's next party, plan the refreshments around a hot sandwich buffet featuring their favorite flavors in foods. Pizza sandwiches with a spicy meat filling flavored with oregano and Mozzarella cheese are hearty filler-uppers. Serve-yourself Cheese and Franks Creole is a two-in-one delight — grilled cheese sandwich with barbecued franks. Mugs of milk make this sandwich buffet complete.

INDIVIDUAL CHEESE PIZZAS

Baking sheet 10 servings Preheated 400° oven pound ground beef

can (15 oz.) tomato sauce

can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained

2 teaspoons oregano teaspoon garlic salt

5 English muffins, split and toasted cup grated Parmesan cheese

10 slices Mozzarella cheese OR 2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Mozzarella cheese

In a large skillet slowly cook pork sausage for 10 minutes; add ground beef and continue cooking until browned; drain. In a bowl combine temato sauce, mushrooms, oregano, garlic salt and meat. Place muffins on baking sheet. Spread each with about 1/4 cup meat mixture. Sprinkle each with about 2 teaspoons Parmesan cheese; top with a slice or about 2 tablespoons shredded Mozzarella cheese, Bake 5-8 minutes or until sandwich is hot and cheese melts.

CHEESE AND FRANKS CREOLE

Saucepan, 3-quart

8 servings

Sauce: ¼ cup (½ stick) butter

teaspoon seasoned salt

This seemed simple enough, but the Jones family wanted an indoor-outdoor swimming pool-so they called in a contractor, Deane Turner, who helped them create the great American Dream-a yeararound, night-and-day swimming pool.

the Owens and Colorado Rivers. These facilities are serving and will continue to serve the great urban areas, but their capacity to keep up with the growth is limited.

Man was forced to turn to the abundant north for water. The first project was to impound this water by building a dam on the Feather River four miles northeast of Oroville, a historic gold mining town 90 miles north of Sacramento. The dam is now more than 50% complete. When completed in 1968 it will be the highest dam in the United States, rising 770 feet and extending more than a mile from rim to rim, and built at a cost of $429 million.

Before the dam could be built the Feather River had to be diverted around the damsite. The material used for the dam is washed rock from an old gold dredging site 12 miles downstream on the river. A bucket wheel excavator, capable of digging 3,400 cubic yards of this rock an hour, loads the material on conveyor belts which transport it to a train. One 40-car train can be loaded every 14 minutes for its run to the dam. The dam will ultimately contain 80,600,000 cubic yards of this earthfill.

A FEW YEARS AGO the bulk of construction activity was centered at Oroville. Now, however, with more than $400,000,000 of construction under way on the California Aqueduct, the work is moving rapidly southward and spilling over the Tehachapi Mountains into Southern California.

To bring the water south requires 20 dams, 23 pumping plants, eight power plants and 662 miles of canals, lakes, tunnels and pipelines. The water supply lines wile extend 826 miles, of which only 164 miles are natura water courses—the Feather and Sacramento Rivers and portions of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta. The rest is man-made.

From the point where the water reaches the delta by gravity flow, it will be diverted south by 11 pumps which will lift it from sea level to an altitude of 244 feet into the 444-mile-long California Aqueduct—a concrete-lined channel that snakes along the floor of the west side of the San Joaquin Valley to the foot of the Tehachapi Mountains

As the water flows south, three more pumping plants

Workmen are dwarfed inside tunnel that will carry rushing water through mountain peak on its way toward Southern California homes and industry.

will raise it an additional 968 feet. From the air over the San Joaquin Valley one can see almost the entire alignment of the California Aqueduct winding gently south to the base of the Tehachapis. On the north side of the mountains there will soon be under construction a monster pumping complex to lift 110 million gallons of water an hour the additional 1,926 feet. By the time the water reaches the crest of the mountain, it will have traveled to an elevation of 3,165 feet above sea level. The Tehachapi pumping station will be the largest installation of its type on this continent.

REACHING THE TOP of the mountain, the water will flow across the Tehachapi Mountains through a string of four tunnels connected by siphons, all comprising a total length of nine miles. The diameter of the tunnels range from 20 to 23½ feet. Work is now under way on the fourth tunnel in the chain—the five-mile-long Carley V. Porter Tunnel, named in honor of the Compton Assemblyman who co-authored the bond act in 1959 under which the state project was financed. The bore of this tunnel is of critical importance because it pierces the Garlock geologic fault zone.

South of the Tehachapis, the aqueduct will split into two branches with the west branch terminating at Castaic Reservoir above the San Fernando Valley and the east branch at Perris Reservoir in Riverside County. The east branch will water arid San Bernardino County on its way to Perris. From Perris, the water will be shuttled via a Metropolitan Water District aqueduct to San Diego.

From Castaic, the water will be funneled through a 300-mile network of MWD tunnels and pipelines, now under construction, to terminate its 826-mile journey from the Sierra to Southland homes.

Along its way south the water will generate billions of kilowatts of electricity; will form into hundreds of lakes for recreational spas; will irrigate thousands of acres of farmland; and its channels, dams and spillways will pre-yent disastrous floods that once rained havoc in Northern Collingia.

U.S.'s First 'Lost Generation' of Writers Left Imprint

THE AMERICAN 1890's: Life and Times of a Lost Generation, by Larzer Ziff, Viking, $7.50. reduced it far more than organized denial could have done. Culture was to have her own pedestal and mind her own

By Forest Jordan

R. ZIFF, PROFESSOR of English and vice chairman of the department of English at the University of California, Berkeley, presents us with a well informed work of literary history about a generation of writers who came of age in the 90's and whose efforts to reform American culture apparently failed in their own time but left. a deep impression on our literature.

America at the beginning of the final decade of the 19th century was once again a united country after the bloodbath of the Civil War. Prosperity had descended upon flourishing thanks to a generous supply of cheap immigrant labor and science and technology were growing apace. A "wholesale commercialization of life" bad set.

As Prof. Ziff points out, society "did not deny literature. Rather, it granted literature a place and in so doing

When the British exacted ruthless retribution

Culture was to have her own pedestal and mind her own business.

Ziff's book liberally is sprinkled with these beautiful and succinct word pictures of the era when every cultured home had its gilt-framed portraits of such bearded men of letters of the gentle, classical school as James Russell owell, Oliver Wendell Holmes and John Greenleaf

But a new and impatient breed of writers was waiting in the wings and they longed to tell the truth about Amer-- crusaders such as Frank Norris, men such as ican lifes • Ambrose Bierce, and Stephen Crane - and for a brief decade they flourished. Then, as Ziff says, "after the forceful eruption of the new writers of the nineties, the calm of a pleasant senility had returned and 1901 picked up as the next literary year after 1890. But when the floodtide of literature came after 1915, then the new writers turned to Robinson and to Dreiser; then they remembered the works of Crane, Bierce and Norris, "They were back to the 90's."

Ziff's portrait of an era and its implications on American letters will be of interest to the general reader as well as informative to the specialist. His biographical notes and criticism of the works of writers of that age make fascinating reading and he's a first-rate phrase-maker.

'Piece of Mind' Sequel Offered by Mrs. Liebman

HOPE FOR MAN, by Jushua Loth Liebman, Simon & Schu-

JOSHUA LOTH LIEBMAN was 41 when he died in 1948, only two years after publication of his "Peace of Mind," which quickly had become, and sull remains, a classic best selling bandbook for self-fulfillment.

"Hope for Man" is the sequel, developed by his widow, Fan Loth Liebman, from manuscripts and a format of chapters left by the Boston radio preacher-another inspired legacy for a troubled world.

Here his approach is more philosophical than psychological and, for a starter, he attacks intellectual pessimism, challenging and rebutting Kierkergaard, Sartre and Kafka, with their bronding theories of nilmbsm, existentialism and self-realization in lonely concemplation.

from a gallant foe after the rebellion was crushed, they brought their firing squads into play. Scan Heuston, 19, who had held Moira House on the upper Liffey River against the best the British had to offer, was the voungest to be executed.

"They made him sit on a soapbox and then they shot him," writes Redmond Fitzgerald in Cry Blood, Cry Erin, Clarkson & Potter, $7.50.

General Sir John Maxwell was an embittered man "who had not been given an army to waste in France," the author avers, "and if the general could not supervise the killing of Germans, well, Irishmen would do. When he dealt with this gang of Sinn Feiners no whisper of treason would be heard in Ireland for a hundred Cry Blood, Cry Erin is a picture-history of the Easter Rebellion. Because his family played a part in the uprising. Fitzgerald is able to fill his history with the human touches that make history breathe. But he does more than this; he shows how the rebellion, the work of a handful of dedicated men and women, without a mass base, fought most bravely but was foredoomed and quickly crushed.

Out of that noble gesture came the guerrilla warfare of the Black-and-Tan era and the winning of independence.

More than 200 photographs of the fighting--the faces of the rebels poignantly reflecting the gallantry and the hopelessness and scenes of the savage British repression, make this a memorable book.

Dublin 1916, edited by Roger McHugh, a professor at University College, Dublin, offers another vivid picture of that stirring Easter week. It is an anthology, published by Hawthorne Books, $6.95, of newspaper reports, portions of letters and diaries and poetry and other works by some of the best of Ireland's writers.

Sir Roger Casement's diary tells of his dilemma in Berlin; his last expedition is described by Robert Monteith. The Countess de Markievicz, a rebel leader, tells of the part played by women in the uprising. Ernie O'Malley writes of a student's part in the rebellion; priests and a nurse tell their stories.

There are poems by Yeats and James Stephens: pieces by O'Casey and O'Connor, O'Faolain and others.

CHAMPAGNE TONY'S Golf Tips, by Tony Lema with Bud Harvey. McGraw-Hill, $5.95.

MAINLY THIS BOOK is excellently illustrated. It is next to impossible to tell anyone how to make a golf shot . . . it is infinitely more instructive to show them. So the next best thing for the learner to do is study diagrammatic photos of a real pro's swing.

The authors generally follow the standard format -a bit of history, some personal anecdotes followed by the do's and don'ts of each stroke -- how to drive off the teebox, use fairway woods, long irons, short irons and the putter.

Lema and Harvey go a little farther by including tips on practicing golf psychology, how to handle specific, troublesome lies and a smattering on the rules of the game.

A champagne salesman in non-athletic life, Lema was dubbed "Champagne Tony" by the press after his habit of feting the Fourth Estate with the bubbly beverage when he won. His book should make a wonderful gift from a wife.-Bill Shelton

Question Antibiotic Use

By Ben Zinser

Southland Manazine Medical Science Editor

GIVING ANTIBIOTICS prior to surgery in an attempt to prevent infection may be useless, new research suggests.

Cornell University medical investigators report a study in which < 65 surgical pawere tients given the antibiotics methicillin and chloramphenicol and 70 were given dummy medication (placebo).

Statisticians found there was no significant difference in the outcome. Among the treated, wound infections occurred in 18.5%; among the untreated, 12.9%.

The report is in the New England Journal of Medicine.

A DOCTOR REPORTS the case of a man who was accidentally sucked into the engine of a B58 jet-and lived.

The victim was a 19-year-old airman. The engine was immediately shut down, and two other airmen pulled him out. Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation was begun immediately.

At the base hospital, fracture of both bones of a forearm was discovered and treated. Four hours later the patient was found to be in shock.

After consultation, surgeons opened the abdomen and found a number of internal injuries. Removed were the spleen and the left kidney.

The patient recovered, according to a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

IN THE PAST, drug manufacturers of oral contraceptives have carried the following type of precautionary statement in product-information bro-

"For prevention of conception the drug is only recommended for periods up to four years. Longer-term use has not yet been established as safe."

Now the Food and Drug Admin-Istration's Advisory Committee on Obstetrics and Gynecology has recommended that the four-year limit on prescription of "the plll" be ended.

Dr. James Goddard, FDA commissioner, says that in accordance with the recommendation, the time limitation will be rescinded.

The committee says that doctors should be free to prescribe the drug for as long as they believe it to be safe and beneficial.

In previous studies Dr. Morrison has found an enzyme — lactoperoxidase—in milk and salivary glands of cows, sheep and pigs which inhibits growth of certain micro-organisms that live in the mouth.

He's hoping the same enzyme can be found in human saliva.

INFLATABLE LEGGINGS that squeeze the calf muscles at each step are benefitting certain patients with circulatory disorders.

According to a report in Nordisk Medicin, the leggings relieve pain and heal skin ulcers on legs affected by circulatory disorders.

Use of the leggings is called oscillating pressure therapy. The patient learns how to control squeezedown with a rubber bulb carried in his pocket. The treatment facilitates blood circulation in the leg.

Improving Handsome Jacaranda

By Joe Littlefield

trees is Jacaranda, a handsome tree that grows from about 25 to 40 feet high and spreads nearly the same size. The leaves are opposite and twice compound, composed of small leaflets resembling feathery light green fern fronds. The tree is leafless for about a month during the spring sea-

The lovely lavender-blue color tubular-shape flowers, about two inches long and nearly as wide, comprise the showy panicles, and begin to bloom about June. The petals drop and spread like a lavender carpet over the ground, providing continuing color for several days. (We saw this variety Jacaranda blooming in December in Guatemala.)

The fruit, a dark-brown color, are hard, woody pods from an inch to two inches long and last for some time. Some gardeners use the pods for indoor decoration, dry arrangements or string them as beads.

This spectacular tree develops a fully rounded shape if grown in sectors where winds are not heavy. It should be deeply watered,

ONE OF SEVERAL strik- staked when young to form ingly showy flowering a straight trunk and pruned to grow shapely. It is listed as standing cold to around 30 degrees above zero.

Janaranda is used street tree planting, as large landscape accent plants, in patios or as specimens.

ONE OF THE fruit trees grown expressly for fruit, yet providing interesting fall color before its leaves finally drop, is the Persimmon.

Many gardeners are disappointed with their persimmon trees because much of the fruit drops before it ripens. Ask six gardeners who have some success harvesting that fruit and probably two of them will agree on some methods of culture care. The remaining four will offer several methods to encourage trees to hold more fruit.

In the sentiments and symbols of plants, knowing that the Chinese consider Persimmon the "Symbol of Joy" and the Japanese as "Emblem of Victory," still doesn't help your tree to hold fruit till you determine to help it hold more fruit.

You'll help yours by continuing to water it periodically—as it thirsts for water. Deep water it to around four feet if it is a mature tree, that is from around four years and older.

After a deep soaking, lightly scratch up the soil and now in late October or early November scatter two cups of bone meal per each inch diameter of the tree trunk. Lightly scratch in, spread evenly a half-inch thickness of manure or a fine-food value mulch material and slowly soak down. Several days later water again, repeating as normally needed.

In late January scatter three cups per each inch diameter of tree trunk of a complete plant food, containing less nitrogen and

But it's my doctor that has really been a help. He, too, pretends that I am not sick and he even says I don't need to come in to the office once a week. I know, however, how important our little sessions are. How else could he know all my symptoms?

OF COURSE, it is painful to him that he can't help me in any way. When I'm talking to him, he frequently puts his head down and covers his eyes, and once I distinctly heard him moan.

I think I'd better call him right now. I just had a chest pain. I hope I can reach him in time. He's been out of the office an awful lot lately. "Hello, doctor, is that you? Doctor, doctor, were we cut off?"

is traumatic; all were victims of overly restrictive or frustrated childhoods. Only in the context of a compassionate relationship to others, only by embracing life's experience instead of trampling it, he declares, will man find comfort and contentment.

As in his earlier writing, Liebman delivers ringing affirmative solutions to perplexing problems, saying, in effect: "Here's how so-andso confronted and mastered his dilemma and you can do the same."

There is a chapter on how science, philosophy, religion and modern economic pressures created perplexing predicaments for modern man; others on morality and immorality; another on the art of living, where his theme is the urgent need for emotional maturity; and a treatise on love in marriage, with the commandment: Honor thy son and thy daughter."

"The baby needs love, the child in puberty more than anything else needs security, and the adolescent needs permission to grow more in-dependent of parental advice, guidance and domination. . . . Let us always be concerned with that which is appropriate in each stage of our child's evolution. A baby that is given independence is just as tragic a figore as an adolescent who is never given independence."

Liebman's thoughts are as universal and timeless, as applicable today, as they were when he jotted them down almost 20 years ago. -Morry Rabin

THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM EVENING TELEVISION LOG OF THE NEWS AND

BERT'S EYE VIEW Star Bright too Blinding for Joyce

By BERT RESNIK TV and Radio Editor

OYCE VAN PATTEN isn't sure she wants to be a star.

It's a procrastinated decision that really isn't troubling her.

For the world isn't standing outside her dressingroom door shouting for her to come on-stage as Medea.

There are no contract-waving producers with million-dollar offers or fur-lined Cadillacs.

There never have been, although she started acting when she was five years old.

And, with the exception of one period when she folded ties and sold insurance on the telephone, made a living at it.

It's a living that currently finds Joyce in her fourth year as a regular comedienne with "The Danny Kaye Show," a Wednesday CBS-TV (channel 2) series.

"For me," said Joyce, "being a star means finally getting approval of my peers.

Part of that approval comes from working and being good."

THERE IS, HOWEVER, a side to becoming a star of which she doesn't ap-

"There is a kind of woman in this business who is about as frightening a type of woman you can meet in this world," Joyce said. "Somebody originated the term of 'iron butterfly' for her.

'This woman is a center, a self-center. Everything is used to push that center to obtain the thing she wants. Her whole life is involved with herself and the goal is questionable.

"Because when she gets to be a star, she's never happy. She has the fear of losing. She wants something else and she doesn't know what it is.

"I don't know if I really want to be a star that way."

HER PRESENT LIFE provides her a certain amount of security as well as chal-lenge. She doesn't see herself as a comedienne, but rather as an actress doing comedy.

It is harder, in Joyce's opinion, to do comedy than anything else in acting. It's faster. You have to think all the time. You can't get tulled into mannerisms, like competent crying.

"Damy works intuitively and you never know what's going to happen. You have to be alive."

From Danny she has learned that the better actor you are, the better comic you are.

JOYCE VAN PATTEN OF 'DANNY KAYE SHOW'

"I'm not talking about one-liners or yaks, but the kind of comedy that comes out of a situation.

"To me that's the best kind of humor. The situation becomes funny and so does the person involved in it."

Joyce, who was formerly married to actor Martin Balsam, has two children by that marriage, Casey, 15, and Talia, 7. She has made every effort to keep them "disinterested" in show business and feels she has succeeded.

As a former child actor, she feels she was "robbed."
"It was a great source of unhappiness to me that I didn't have the proper schooling-never went past the seventh grade math.

"I used to feel I never had the choice of saying, 'I don't know what to do,'

"I virtually had 'to do' acting. It was the only thing I knew."

Dawn of Man

By ROBERT MUSEL

NEW YORK (UPI)—When Dr. Louis Leakey was born to his missionary parents in Kenya, an elder of the Kikuyus spat in his face. And the ritual made the infant, whose later discoveries were to push back the history of man hundreds of thousands of years, a member of the African tribe.

This is one of the intriguing facts about the burly, grey-haired paleontologist (bone scientist) scattered through a National Geographic special, "Dr. Leakey and the Dawn of Man" which CBS-TV will broadcast (7:30 p.m. Saturday, channel 2 in color).

When the hour-long program is over, viewers may conclude for themselves whether Dr. Leakey has already found "The Missing Link"—a phrase he detests—in his effort to complete the sequence of our ancestors from mindless brutes to thinking man.

EXECUTIVE PRODUCER Robert C. Doyle said the National Geographic felt many people were as interested in finding out where the race came from as they were in going into space. The ratings will tell whether this judgment is correct—at least as far as TV audiences go—but there is certainly a fascinating tale to tell.

It poses a question scientists have been debating for decades: Where and when did our ancestors originate?

Leakey agrees with Darwin that it was somewhere in Africa, and 15 years ago he found what may have been the actual place. Sometime in prehistory a volcanic eruption laid thick deposits of ash and lava over an area around the Ngorogoro Crater, almost the end of the Rift Valley in Kenya. Then a river, as the eons passed, carved a chasm through it known as Oludavi Gorge.

"LEAKEY BELIEVES the river laid bare the history of man," Doyle said. "He maintains the seven days for the creation in the Bible should have been translated as seven periods. From the gorge have come the bones of some of man's forerunners—Proconsul, Kenyapithecus, Zinjanthropus and Homo Habilis.

"Zinjanthropus goes back 1,750,000 years and is man's oldest relative so far. Stone-cutting tools were found with his fossils. But since it is always possible he may not be the earliest man, we are making the program a scientific mystery story. When children ask: 'How did it all happen?', parents will be able to say: 'Here's Dr. Leakey, who has spent his whole life finding out'."

Doyle concedes the question of when man actually became man is a touchy one. Some scientists argue that the first to use tools is the link. But, Doyle said, Jane Goodall, heroine of one of last season's National Geographic specials, found chimpanzees using tools, thus confusing a perfectly good theory.

Leakey is a handwriting expert consulted by police all over Africa as well as a former chief of intelligence and a renowned authority on dogs. He is also doctor for the Masai tribe who have a domestic arrangement worth mentioning: A man does not have to consider a wife permanent until she has given him four children.

Soap Opera Drama More 'Meaningful'

NEW YORK (UPI) Bertram Berman, the only archaeologist now producing a daytime soap opera, says nighttime producers have it easy because all they have to do is entertain an audience willing and anxious to be entertained.

On the other hand, the soap opera must fight against guilt complex of the housewife who feels she ought to be washing up instead of watching and who tunes in reluctantly ready to switch off to return to duty in the kitchen at the first sag in the script.

"We deal with a singular audlence," siad Berman, whose five-day-a-week live series, "The Doctors" goes out over the full NBC network, "Nighttime shows are no problem. The biggest challenge is in the daytime.

It doesn't matter a bit if a viewer doesn't remember the story of a Man From UNCLE episode.

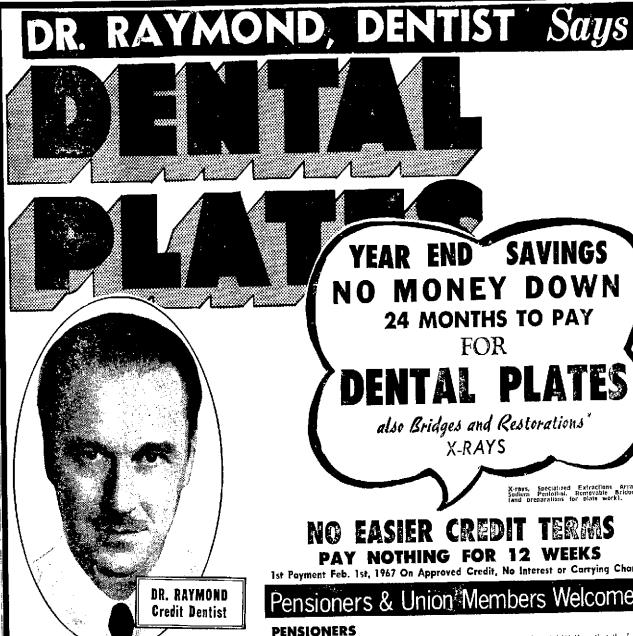

"BUT the housewife must remember the story of the daytime serial. She must become deeply involved with it and look forward to the next episode. You must drag her away from her housework and you can only do that with drama meaningful to her and, though most people don't realize this, with subject matter often more advanced than the primetime stuff.

"Remember the kids are at school and the afternoon audience is basically adult. That's why such sensitive matters as cancer, abortion and adultery were first mentioned on television as part of the plots of soan operas."

Berman has spent 15 years! in daytime television and knows his subject. He started his career in radio in Cincinnati, became a borscht circuit comic and, after this unlikely preparation, headed for Italy to become an archaeologist. He wound up producing commercials there and eventually moved back into TV in his homeland as producer of the Chrysler Theatre.

"IN THE EARLY days of television we though a heavily emotional show wouldn't catch on," he said. "But by 1951 with 'Search for Tomorrow' and 'Guiding Light' the pattern was set. Where it differs from the radio soaps is that the TV characters must be more credible.

'The Doctors' is a character study, really a domestic drama though it is largely set in hospitals. The scripts have an emotional orientation intended to involve the housewife to touch a chord to which she can respond.

Was the movie "The Proud and the Profane" shown on Oct. 22 at 9 p.m. on channel 4 taken from a hook?

Yvonne Clifford, Lakewood

It's from a book titled "The Magnificent Bas-tards" by Lucy Herndon Crockett. It was first published in 1954.

My wife and I watched the very beautiful and col-orful "Brigadoon" television special on channel 7. The singing was just grand by entire cast.

Was "Brigadoon" released some time ago with a different cast as a feature movie? Who was in the other plcture?

Lowell and Betty Harvey, Long Beach

In 1954, MGM released "Brigadoon" as a movie. It featured Gene Kelly, Cyd Charise and Van Johnson.

I watched that wonderful program titled "The Fugitive" for the first time on Sept. 27.

I viewed two policemen take a man into a dark alley, beat him and then leave him there. After that, the program showed the two policemen receive a cashi

With the situation we have in this country at the present time, I feel that this program was in poor taste and very ill-timed.

Phil E. Pavlosky, Long Beach

You have a right to your opinion, Phil, but give "The Fugitive" another chance. Generally speaking, you will find that justice triumphs in the end and the jugitive always jeopardizes his personal safety to see that it does.

Could you please tell me

Ann Parks, Long Beach At the last moment, the NBC programming department became aware of a conflict in the contract to show the movie. Under terms of the contract, the Presley film can't be aired until after December.

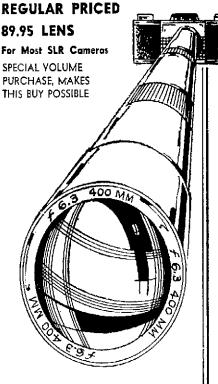

Why has KHJ-TV (9) taken 9th Street West off the air? Also, look at Shindig, Hullaballo and Shivaree. Is KTLA's (5) Shebang next?

Richard Nagel, Lakewood I believe "Shehong" is pretty secure. As for the demise of the other shows you mention, well, that's the way the rock rolls.

Watts Author Sells Script, 'Losers Weepers,' to NBC

By GEORGE GENT New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Harry E. Dolan, a 38-year-old Negro playwright and author who attended Budd Schulberg's writing classes in the Watts section of Los Angeles, said in a telephone interview: "Wow! At last I'm a real writer!"

Reached in Washington where he is finishing a onehour script he has sold to the National Broadcasting Co. for its new 10-week experimental theatrical series, Dolan was still somewhat awed by the sudden turn in his fortunes,

His play, "Losers Weepers," will open the network's experimental series, still untitled, on Feb. 19. Except for an outline of a script for the same network's comedy series, "The Hero," it was Dolan's first sale.

NBC'S experimental serics was first announced by Julian Goodman, NBC president, in a commencement address at Western Kentucky University last August. In it, Goodman suid "experimentation in one form or another is vital to television" and added that he had given the television network the "difficult assignment" of creating such

Painters

Larry Hovis and Ivan Dixon, two of the irrepressible "Hogan's Heroes" on CBS-TV, are amateur weekend painters. Hovis is an abstract expressionist, and Dixon is a dauber of the representational school.

"Losers Weepers" will be taped in the Watts area and will, as far as possible, use professional actors who have some geographic roots in Watts, according to Stuart Schulberg, Budd's brother and the play's producer.

The play concerns a Watts father and grandmother. The family consisting of a boy of 15 and a girl of 10 and their father, a basically decent man who cannot cope with life, returns from prison to reclaim his children from their grandmother and, at the same time, some money he has left with her. When the older woman says she does not have the money, the father kills her. The play ends with the children engineering their father's return to prison and the disclosure that they had the money all the time.

"I wanted to show what places like Watts do to people," the author said.

DOLAN, the father of five children, has worked at various times as a bellboy, janitor, waiter, apprentice glassblower and managing editor of a Boston weekly. He has been writing for 10 years. Before NBC bought his outline for "The Hern," he quipped, "I had published a few stories, but I had never sold any."

The author began attracting national attention when Stuart Schullberg produced for NBC a documentary entitled "The Angry Voices of Watts," a visual evocation of the writings of the men and women attending Budd Schulberg's writing class in the Negro suburb of Los Angeles. Dolan read his account of a day's unsuccessful job hunt. He is currently working on a novel which will explore the reasons a person living in a ghetto might have for setting fire to stores and buildings.

Sound Scene

Sandy Baron, co-star of NBC-TV's "Hey Landlord!" took a train from New York to Hollywood. He claims a fellow passenger mumbled while staring out the window: "It's a great movie but I wish they'd turn up the sound?

News executives of ABC and NBC and the Columbia Broadcasting System said they were interested in the proposal but would not commit themselves until details of program content had been resolved. The project is under the supervision of Aubrey Singer of the British Broadcasting Corp.

Live television transmissions around the world will become possible after the launching of two communications satellites. One will be over the Pacific and the other over the Atlantic. Both will be similar to the Early Bird satellite now over the Atlantic, although they will have the capacity for handling a special volume of traffic.

HOW SCIENCE HAS WON THE FIGHT AGAINST BALDNESS

LONG BEACH IS HEADQUARTERS FOR WORLD-FAMOUS HAIR SPECIALISTS by "Al" Johnson

FREE EXAMINATION by a Turoff trained specialist establishes your indi-vidual causes of hair loss.

2. HI-FREQUENCY THERAPY provides short rays to kill bacteria, increases scale metabolism.

I, EXCLUSIVE ELECTRIC - THERAPY developed by Turoff lechnicians after years of research, results are FASTI

What causes baldness? Is it inherited? What can be done to stop baldness and regrow hair? My assignment was to find the answer to questions like these because so many people want to know the real truth about baldness. I began by calling on Mr. Munson. Staff Director "Long Beach office" of the Turoff Scalp Specialists. I was told be would be glad to talk to me, but suggested that first I should interview Mr. S. I. Turoff himself at the Sun Francisco office, one of the men who has contributed so much to man's fight against baldness.

I found Mr. Turoff friendly and interested. "I'm happy to hear you're doing an article," he said, "because so few people know what causes buildness — nor do they realize that baldness is not inherited and that the majority of cases of baldness can be stopped and new hair regrown." I was surprised to hear that, so I asked Mr. Turoff to explain what causes baldness and what can be done about it.

WHAT IS HAIR?

He began by telling me a lot about hair. For instance a moderate emount of falling hair is normal. Each hair has a regular life span, then it falls out and is replaced by another—if the hair growing mechanism is in good working order. If it isn't, you gradually become bald. Mr. Turoff compared each hair to an iceberg because there's a good deal of it that you can't see, And he said the part you can't see, the part in the scalp, is the most important part as far as leaping a healthy head of hair is concerned. For in the scalp, there is a pepilla adjoining each hair root which this papilla becomes inactive the hair stops growing, the hair shaft falls out without a replacement coming in and you become bald.

CAUSE OF BALDNESS

Obviously the direct cause of baldness is inactive papilla. But what makes the papilla inactive? Externally any bacterial infaction or fungi; such as the one responsible for dandruff will do it. Internally, there are many causes, such as vitamin or mineral deficiency, which cut off or seriously reduce the food supply to the papilla so that it cannot keep the hair root alive.

WHAT SCIENCE HAS DONE

The first important modern scientific discovery about heir was made by Dr. Franz Nagelschmitt of Berlin and Dr. Arnold Lorand of Vienna. These scientists discovered that baldness is often caused by lack of certain vitamins, minerals and hormones in the blood, and that microbes working on the heir roots often cause excessive falling heir. Using hair roots often cause excessive falling hair. Using high frequency rays they devised a method about 95% successful in growing heir. Meanwhile, Mr. Turoff, working independently In this country, made significant discoveries of his own. Combining his efforts and those of the European discoveries, he perfected a method nearly 100% effective. The Exclusive Turoff Method. Since that time new discoveries have made it possible for Mr. Turoff to further improve and perfect his method. Mr. Turoff was very modest about his contributions to fight against baldness, but when I returned to interview Mr. Munson he more than verified everything Mr. Turoff said. I asked Mr. Munson if he would show me just what each Turoff Method treatment included.

WHAT ARE TREATMENTS LIKE?

You can see the actual steps followed in each treatment at the top of this page, but I would like to add some of the impressions I had when I went to the office...Long Beach, 110 Pine Ave., Suite 824. Hours: Daily II to 8, Saturday 10 to 2, Thursday 4 to 8. First of all I noticed the attitude of Mr. Munsan and his trained assistants. They unof Mr. Munson and his trained assistants. They understood perfectly what they were doing, why they were doing it, and they were confident of the results they could get. Then there was the excellent equipment—obviously modern, scientific instruments designed for the job. There was also the care Mr. Munson took in studyling my hair so that he could apply the correct, exclusive Turoff formula. And lastly, I was impressed by the cleanliness and orderliness of everything about the office.

After my treatment I noticed immediately that my hair and scalp had a pleasant alive, retreshed feeling that I had not felt before. I thenked Mr. Munson and, as I let the office in Long Beach, I remembered what Mr. Turoff had said about the effectiveness of his method. The success of his offices in many major cities, with more being planned, has certainly proved the value of his exclusive techniques. After my treatment I noticed immediately that

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Programs

Program: "Lucy in London," aired last Monday on channel 2.

Miss Bali is one of the few veteran performers capable of moving with the times and she showed this as the location-filmed hour used many devices and musical sounds of the new generation.

Some fans might feel that Miss Ball too often played straight for those with talent not equalling her own, and thereby restrained her own part. I have such admiration for Miss Ball's grace hefore a camera that I don't quibble too much about anything she does.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

During the first part of the special, Lucy took a dunking in the Thames.

Right then and there she should have received the message.

Critic Bert Resnik of "TeleVues"

She's still in a class by herself; she even preempted herself. Who would trust their own private special to a man of such considerable talents as Anthony Newley? Lucy did.

Overall, however, the writers and producers didn't give her too much to go on, especially in the last half.

Critic Helm of Variety

* Program: "To Save a Soldier," aired 10 p.m. Monday on channel 7.

A memorable hour of television.

The documentary showed, in sometimes shocking detail, the military operation that can bring wounded men from isolated rice paddies to medical care in minutesand then followed along the long journey home for the 99% who can be "returned to life."

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

It was a shocker that had to be told-and seen, Trainees and those with sons and kin in Viet Nam must've viewed it with mixed emotions, but it was comforting to those distantly involved to know that the men who have fallen in Viet Nam couldn't get better care in a metropolitan U.S. hospital. This story of a GI and his comrades who survived the gunfire of the Cong Is one of the best documentaries to come out of the war zone.

Critic Helm of "Variety"

Program: "The Tony Bennett Show," aired last Wednesday on channel 7.

Like all superior performers, Tony depends heavily on the mood he is able to create—and sustain—for him-self and his audience. Some of the other boys around may have more perfectly shaped tones, but mostly these fellows are bland and faceless with the usual Pal Joey good looks. I like Bennett because of his emphasis on mood and character and style.

Bennett's hour on ABC-TV was most enjoyable. All he did was sing. And in doing so, he revealed the many solid reasons for his success and long string of blg hits.

Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is it true that success has driven Julie Andrews to the point where she now requires psychiatric treatment? — Louise Fellows, Atlanta, Ga.

A. Success has jeopardized her marriage, but she frequents a psychoanalyst only to understand herself better.

Q. Bernard Rosenbach, the Annapolis midshipman from Comfort, Tex., who was once engaged to Lynda Bird Johnson—is he married or still single?—Louise Fletcher, Austin, Tex.

A, Rosenbach was married this past June 27 to the former Marjorie Lyons of Cambridge, Mass. He is now overseas.

Q. When a spacecraft like Surveyor 2 gets out of order and crashes on the moon, how much money does the government lose?—N. W. Winslow, Barkeley, Calif.

A. The Surveyor 2 spacecraft cost an estimated $65 million. The price of the Atlas-Centaur rocket that launched Surveyor was about $20 million. Cost of the failed mission: approximately $85 million.

Q. Are U.S. Supreme Court Justices Byron White, Abc Fortas and Potter Stewart all fraternity brothers from the same college?—Vernon Lindecki, Miami, Fla.

A. No, but they are all graduates of the Yale University Law School.

Q. I understand that Jim Arness of the Gunsmoke TV show is suffering from a swelled head. Is this so? —S. L. T., Newark, N.J. A. Eleven years ago when grateful for any publicity. Now that he's learned to ride a horse and is worth millions, he has reportedly notified CBS that he is no longer available for interviews. In many quarters he is considered a classic example of how easily success corrupts.

Q. Who said: "The happiest scomen, like the happiest nations, have no history."?—Denise Wilson, Swarthmore, Pa.

A. Writer George Eliot.

THE DEAN RUSKS WITH FINNISH FOREIGN MINISTER

Q. Is it true that Dean Rusk's wife calls him Papa Buddha?—T. I., Washington, D.C.

A. No, he is referred to as Buddha around the State Department because of his bald head and general inscrutability.

Q. Recently Rep. Goodell of New York inserted in the Congressional Record the names of 2579 members of Lyndon B. Johnson's "President's Club." Although the list is far from complete, the contributions already add up to $4,112,675. Does President Johnson have to make an accounting of this fund and declare it as income? And what do the contributors get for their money?—C. O. M., St. Paul, Minn.

A. The President's Club is made up of persons who contributed $1000 or more to the Democratic National Committee. Donations go directly to the committee, not to the President; hence he pays no income tax on them. Club members have their pictures taken with the President, get pens used in bill signings, a "First Family photo a/bum," other memorabilia. The general assumption is they expect to get something additional: prestige, handouts, favorable consideration, handshakes, friendly pats on the back from L.B.J.

Q. Would you be kind enough to print the true relationship between Dr. Edna Greenberg, a psychiatrist, and Eugene Rostow, the Yale Law professor Johnson appointed to the State Department?—T. T. L., Hartford, Conn.

A. Eugene Rostow, 54, Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs, has long been married to the former Edna Berman Greenberg, a psychiatrist associated with the Yale School of Medicine. Mr. Rostow was dean of the Yale Law School from 1955 to 1965. He and Mrs. Rostow have three children—two sons, Victor and Charles Nicholas; a daughter, Jessica.

Q. John Huston and Yul Brynner have renounced their U.S. citizenship to live abroad. Why then do Hollywood producers employ them?—P. T., Providence, R.I.

A. The conflict between profits and patriotism has not been resolved in many cases.

Q. Lewis Rosenstiel, founder of Schenley Distilleries, is involved in a matrimonial dispute with his wife. His wife's Lawyer is Louis Nizer, who wrote My Life in Court. Is it true that Nizer is seeking $6 million in counsel fees for representing Mrs. Rosenstiel?— E. T. T., New York, N.Y.

A. Reportedly Mr. Nizer is asking $683,000 in lawyer's fees for representing his client in matrimonial disputes with her husband over a period of more than five years.

Q. Would you please tell me who Gregory Peck's first wife was? Any children? Any children by his present marriage?—Genevieve Hansen, Seattle, Wash.

A. Peck's first wife was Greta Konen, hairdresser to Katherine Cornell. They had three sons. After his divorce in 1954 Peck married Véronique Passani, a French newspaperwoman. They have a son and a daughter.

Q. Every so often I hear stories to the effect that Babe Ruth could neither read nor write, except his name. True or false?—C. O. Clark, High Point, N.C. A. Ruth was an underprivileged child, but he was not illiterate. He spent 11 years in a Catholic school.

Q. Is it true that Lee Maroin served with the cice squad on the Chicago police force?—H. M., Shehoygan, Wis.

A. Nonsense. Before he became an actor, Marvin worked as a plumber's apprentice.

Q. In July, 1965, Paramount Pictures and Seven Arts produced a film called, Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad. What's happened to it?—D. Lewis, Jersey City, N.I. A. The film was previewed on the West Coast, and much of the preview audience couldn't understand what it was all about. Parts of it are now being reshot. In the first version one of the stars, Jonathan Winters, was seen only as a corpse. His role is now being expanded.

Q. Is it true that the German Volkswagen works supports the Weizmann Institute of Science in Israel?—R. Toft, Boston, Mass.

A. Volkswagen has contributed $6 million to the institute in the past six years.

Q. Has the true story of Jane Fonda ever been published?—F. R., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

A. Not yet.

Cameramen say Camilla Sparv has the perfect face. The Swedish actress, 23, is one of the most beautiful newcomers to the screen. She used to be one of Europe's top models.

CAMILLA SPARV:

SHE CLAIMS SHE'S THE LUCKIEST GIRL IN THE WORLD

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD. the film industry desperately needs new young actresses especially those under 30 who are blessed with star potential, whatever that is.

Today's leading ladies, most of whom get $750,000 and up per film—Audrey Hepburn, Doris Day, Sophia Loren, Julie Andrews—will never see 30 again. Besides, there are too few of these motion picture lovelies, which is why they demand so much money in the first place.

Acknowledging the stupidity of their predecessors who, when TV was born, grew panicky and abandoned the studios' new talent schools, the men who run the film studios today are determined to discover and nurture a steady flow of actress replacements. They need new blood badly, and the best way to get it is to sign a group of young, beautiful, sexy hopefuls at $150 to $300 a week-—the cheaper the better—and see what develops. It's a lottery in which the public chooses the winners.

Where does one find these ambitious cuties? Anywhere—in little theaters, modeling agencies, beauty contests, college dorms.

Take Camilla Sparv, 23, one of the most beautiful of the newcomers under contract to Columbia Pictures. This tall stalk of loveliness, half Russian, half Swedish, 5 feet 9, gray-blue eyes, ash blonde hair, too thin at 118 pounds, used to be one of Europe's top photographic models.

Three years ago, after falling in and out of love with some of Europe's most suave Romeos Camilla tired of Paris, flew to New York, signed on with the Eileen Ford model agency. Her perfectly photogenic face soon appeared on the cover of Ladies' Home Journal.

David Swift, a gagwriter turned producer-director, has always been "queer" for tall, high cheekboned, cool-looking blondes. His wife is the same type.

Swift saw Camilla on the magazine cover, obtained her address, flew the model to Hollywood for a screen test. And the studio signed her.

"It couldn't have been easier," Camilla admits. "No one got fresh. No one made any propositions. One hears such frightening stories overseas. But everyone at the studio has been wonderful.

"First they gave me a small part as a nun in The Trouble with Angels. Then right away in my second film, Dead Heat on a Merry-Go-Round—it opens next week—they let me play the lead opposite James Coburn. A few weeks ago I finished Murderers' Row with Dean Martin.

"I tell you!" she exclaims, speaking English with a soft, delightful, Swedish lilt. "My life has been one fabulous ball. I never wanted to become an actress. It just happened. I never wanted to become a model. It just happened. Now I don't really care about becoming a big star, but acting has gotten into my blood, and I do care about becoming a good actress. I don't care about money. I am married to Bob Evans. They are making him in charge of European production for Paramount Pictures. He is a wealthy man. He will always be able to support me. But I want to have a skill.

"Until now," she goes on, "I owe everything to my face. I was born with a pretty face. It is an accident of heredity. I can take no credit for it. What my face did for me was to open doors, but now I must do the rest for myself."

Camilla Sparv was born in Stockholm in 1943. Her tall parents, both 6-footers, met in Estonia during the war. Her father brought her Russian mother back to Sweden, where Camilla was born and raised. As a student Camilla majored in languages. She speaks English, French, German and Latin. She became a model at 17, when she was walking home from school and a photographer asked her to pose for a picture. She agreed. Five weeks later the photo appeared on a magazine cover.

"Soon other magazines called, and then one evening I got a phone call from Paris, from a modeling agency. 'We've seen your photos in Swedish magazines,' they said. 'If you come to Paris we know we can get you lots of work.' So when I was through with college I went down there. And I lived with an American girl, Molly Babcock, she's now married and lives in Palm Beach. We shared an apartment on the Avenue Paul Dumair. And she taught me all those wonderful American expressions. like 'having a ball.' And we really had a marvelous life. A girl grows up very quickly when she models in Paris, because you travel a lot. You go to Switzerland, to Germany, to the south of France. You become very cosmopolitan. You collect your own modeling fees. You realize the whole world is yours to enjoy. You develop a spirit of adventure. That's why I left Paris and came to New York."

In New York beautiful Camilla made friends quickly, especially with the opposite sex. One of her friends, a coin collector named Allen Cooper, introduced her to a garment manufacturer, Bob Evans, who'd also worked as an actor in Hollywood. Smitten by her beauty, her carefree spirit, her guileless ways, Evans fell in love with Camilla. suggested an elopement to Connecticut. Two Septembers ago they were married.

A few weeks ago they separated, but when Paramount recently appointed Evans its European representative, the couple reconciled. They should be living in London now.

Camilla intends to work both in Hollywood and Europe. "My husband," she explains, "is very understanding. I am really the luckiest girl in the world. At 23 I seem to have it made."

Hollywood realists, conceding Camilla is endowed with "the perfect face," have some doubt about her overall sex appeal. Unfortunately, they point out, many Scandinavian girls tend to be "too thin on top." Camilla Sparv is a case in point, but the makeup and wardrobe experts can certainly fill her out. For years they artificially augmented the natural contours of another Swedish beauty, Greta Garbo, and no one was any the wiser.

She Sells

Perhaps you have read this fascinating story in the Chicago AMERICAN ... Louisville COURIER ... Sioux City JOURNAL-or dozens of other top newspapers:

There is a stronge and beautiful woman in Chicago who has, for the last twenty years, been selling youth to men and women who were growing old before their time. Who has been selling sleep to people who had thought they had lost a full night's sleep forever. Who has been selling strength and blassed relief from pain, to people who have been racked with backache for years.

Her price is exactly one weekend of your time. Her method is a return to Nature, through simple gentle motions that free your body's locked-up vigor. Her full story

Some of the startling facts this woman will teach you:

- 1) A new way to sleep-that automatically turns off the left-over tension in your body . . . lets you drift off in minutes ... strengthens your spine you sleep...and gives a virtual beauty treatment, every night, to those sag-prone muscles of your chin and
- 2) Where most premature facial wrinkles really come from - and why, if you wish to prevent them, you should concentrate, not on your face, but your feet.
- 3) A new kind of energy toodthat doesn't cost a penny because it's simply a new way for your body to use plain ordinary air. And how that same air that surrounds you every day can be used to improve your appearance, your health and your vitality in a dozen different ways: including how to breathe yourself calm...how to swim in air as gracefully and as exhilaratingly as you now swim in water . . . how to float the upper part of your body in air, and thus make it feel weightless-so you can work all day with half the energy and half the tiredness that you feel right now.

4) A new kind of exercise that is not really exercise at all. Because it you want to strengthen or streamline any one part of your body, you don't really move it at all. For example, if you want to suck in your stomach, you forget all about it, and concentrate on one simple blowing action. Or, to build new power into your back, you move your ankle an ingenious way every morning in bed.

Every one of these claims - every one of these methods-may sound impossible to you right now. We do not blame you if they do. But you must realize this:

Every single one of these methods have been proven, on thousands of men and women of all ages, for over twenty years. They have been used. not only in the United States, but in Sweden, Norway, Germany and Russia-and praised in the national press of these countries.

For almost twenty years, doctors have been sending people to this woman: to help strengthen torturous backs . . . to gain desperately-needed sleep without tranquilizers or drugs . . . to bring back the natural energy, drive, vigor that these patients may have thought they had lost forever.

Over TWENTY daily classes in Chicago alone now teach these methods to the few people who are fortunate enough to be able to take them in person. Now, however, they are available in book form to every man and woman who is willing to gamble a five-cent stamp, and a single weekend of their time to learn them.

Here is what this first weekend alone will give you. It starts with the most vital energy-restorer of all-sleep.

You Don't Know How to Sleep Today. No One Has Ever Taught You. This Book Does, In a Single Evening, as Easily as This:

This book starts by reminding you of an mescapable fact: That sleep--deep, relaxed, completely natural sleep- is the greatest source of energy your body will ever have,

But once you lose this gift of sleep and most adults have completely lost it-then you are draining energy and youth out of your body, exactly the same way that air drains out of a tire when it has a leak,

This book says that sleep is an art. It must be learned. It is an active ritual that takes about three minutes every evening, and accomplishes these two ends:

1) Turns off your mind, and lets your body float effortlessly into a deep

2) Arranges the parts of your body in bed so that sleep will not be disturbed by tossing and turning, and so you will not wake up the next morning with a sore spine, or "pins and needles" in your arms or legs, or a stiff neck and shoulders.

No one has ever taught you this simple ritual before. No one has ever taught you before how to convert your body into a limp mass-without a worry, without a thought, without a single thread of tension remaining from the day that has just passed.

No one has ever taught you before how to sink into a mattress so deeply, that sleep must come. Without a single pressure on any nerve center of your hody. With the small of the back completely unburdened at last. With the head perfectly aligned . . . the neck muscles relaxed and yet strengthened "the chin uplifted ... even the muscles of your face glowing and toned. This is a way of sleeping where not one single joint rests on another. Even the ankles and wrists are completely free. You will learn it in five minutes, the very first evening you pick up this book. You will wake up the next morning, more refreshed than you have known in years.

But this is only the first gift you receive from this amazing book. Here are just a few of the others:

Your Body's Built-in Relaxers, Strengtheners, Streamliners Now Put to Work for You for the First Time.

For example-

On page 33 you discover a six-seeand motion with your mouth, that instantly relaxes the over-tense muscles of your chest, heart and solar plexus and drains hyper-tension out of your body like water running from a sieve,

On page 69 you discover how to turn the everyday movements of life into complete exercises by themselves. So that every time you sit, or stand, or reach out to pick up an object, you are effortlessly exercising and streamlining your body-keeping yourself in top condition without even realizing it.

On page 57 you are shown the built-in apparatus, in your left foot, that automatically corrects your worst posture faults . . . that relaxes and soothes the lower back muscles at will and-most surprising of all-that irons out those ridgy, "washboard" inner thighs, that no other exercises you've tried could ever reach.

On page 113 you use, for the first time, your body's own built-in vibrator-that has you bursting with energy every morning in seconds calms you down after a full day's work -in two or three thrilling minutes and gives you a new spure of vitality for the evening's fun.

And much, much more. How to relax weary eyes -- by looking ar nothing. How to restore the natural forces that most people rob themseives of daily. A new way to sit that lifts your upper body right out of your hips...coaxes your spinal column into its most healthful posture . . . makes hours at a desk pass like minutes.

Plus five astonishing energy-multipliers that you've always had at your fingertips, but never known how to use until today. Plus half a dozen fatigueminimizers that focus effort, climinate waste motion, develop startling new grace and rhythm in every motion you

A Final. Word of Warning:

All these, and much more, are contained in Gertrude Englaw's revolutionary new Body Dynamics-yours to read from cover to cover without tisking a penny.

Two words of caution must be added, however:

- 1) It is a short book. It has only 128 pages in all. If you are a fast reader, you can finish it in a single weekend. Do not, therefore, expect a huge weighty tome, full of useless theory. Every page of this book is packed with practical, step-by-step direction, that you can use immediately to give you the strength and health and beauty that are locked up inside your body today.
- 2) And most important of all-do not be misled by the case and simplicity of the movements given you in this book! Since most of them can be performed sitting down or lying in bed . . . since most of them have been mastered by men and women as much as ninety years of age . . . since none of them even cause you to "work up it sweat"-you may think for the first day or two that they cannot really be doing you that much good.
- It is only after the first week that the true results begin to show you the incredible efficiency of these incredibly gentle movements -- in the buoyancy with which you bounce out of bed each morning . . , in the velief from pain to which you have been a marter for years . . . in the startled reaction of your friends, as they stop you on the street and beg you to tell them the secret!

Twenty years of proof...thousands of case histories . . . all tell the same story. Try this thrilling book, entirely at our risk, TODAY!

WE MUST CONTROL PRIVATE EYES

by SEN. EDWARD V. LONG

DEMOCRAT, MISSOURI

Modern look in undercover work—do-it-yourself private-eye kit for domestic relations cases—is exhibited by detective agency chief John Leon (r.), as he uses specially made transistor ollywood has glamorized the private detective as a romantic figure who skulks through perilous dark alleys in a collar-up trencheout hunting out injustice. In the movies, he toils through the day and speeds through the night in pursuit of evil men. But in real life, he belongs to quite a different breed.

My Senate wiretap investigation has brought me into close contact with private eyes. I have learned how they operate, how they violate the law with impunity. Some are thoroughly honest and honorable. But all too many are men without ethics, who traffic in sordid information and would sell out a client for a higher bid. One investigator who gave up the business called it "crummy, crooked and illegal."

"It's a jungle," he said. "Anyone who isn't nasty has no business in it."

This country is literally crawling with undercover snoops who pry into the personal and business lives of private citizens. Though bound by the same laws as anyone else, they set thousands of telephone taps, plant electronic bugs and hidden cameras in the most private of places, infiltrate factories and businesses to spy on employees and competitors.

The day of the private detective who hailed a cab and shouted, "Follow that car!" is past. Today he is more likely to attach a tiny transmitter under the fender and trail the car by radio signal from a mile away. Modern technology enables him to watch a quarry or overhear a conversation from a safe distance. No longer does he need to burst in on a love nest with a flash camera. It's simpler

Leon at his desk: Electronic gadgetry has provided jet-age supersleuths with a score of insidious weapons for easier snooping.

One private detective agency offers a "ten-day blitz service" in domestic relations cases. "We came up with what was practically a do-it-yourself system for seeing and hearing what is happening around the house while you are away," explains John Leon, head of Washington's second oldest agency. First, a small "bug" is put on the telephone. It is so simple anyone can install it. Next, a special movie camera is mounted where it can't be seen but can photograph the bedroom. It takes pictures automatically every 30 seconds. Even the suspected spouse's car is bugged. Stuck into the dome light is a tiny transmitter that picks up conversations and records them on a tape recorder hidden in the trunk.

With a few minutes'effort, the do-it-yourself investigator can have his wife's moves monitored for ten days. All the paraphernalia — along with simple instructions—can be leased from Leon for $400, less than half what a good detective would charge for his peeping Tom service. Leon also provided my committee with the incidental intelligence that most marital cases today involve husbands checking on their wives. Only ten years ago, he said, 80 percent were wives checking on their husbands. Privately he attributes this reversal to the sudden popularity of hirth-control pills.

The balding, 57-year-old Leon, who is a mild man and swigs low-calorie soft drinks from the bottle, hardly resembles the Green Hornet. He has skulked through his share of dark alleys during his 32 years in the business, but his only physical strain these days comes from the weckend gardening at his suburban home. Nor are leggy girls draped around his office—just photographs of his wife and three children.

BUGS AND BUG DETECTORS

In keeping with the new age, however, his innocent-seeming desk phone contains a tiny black box that records all conversations on his five telephone lines. Indeed, he has a drawerful of assorted miniature bugs. The Japanese transistor radio on his desk isn't a radio at all but a "bug" detector. It locates a hidden bug by picking up the radio signal. Once tuned to the bug's transmitting frequency, this handy detector can bug the conversation that the bug is bugging.

The typical private eye, once he hooks a client, has two pressing interests getting the job done as quickly as possible and collecting as large a fee as he can. Of less concern are the methods. Leon told our committee candidly that he merely goes after the information the client wants and leaves the question of ethics to the client.

The hired snoop usually will begin a background investigation at any of a number of credit bureaus, which keep a fantastic amount of information on private citizens. Ten years ago, the New York Credit Bureau already had files on 5 million people and was adding 10,000 names a week. From contacts inside a credit bureau, an investigator can get a rundown on almost anyone.

He also has access to Western Union messages, unlisted telephone numbers, hotel registration cards, Internal Revenue tax records, social security employment records and military records. It is rumored that detectives can even arrange for private "mail covers." A locksmith told our committee that private eyes in the Washington area have master keys for all the major hotels. When asked how they procured the keys, he said, "Money buys everything."

Most investigators seem to have no qualms about using electronic devices. Many have confessed under oath that they use wiretaps freely. We came across one investigator who'd fly around the country installing microphones and transmitters, then hop the next plane back to his Miami office. His fee was large, the possibility of getting caught small.

The same investigator was retained by Southern Bell Telephone Company of Louisiana to monitor over 40,000 telephone lines in an attempt to catch some employees who were selling long-distance service at a discount to bookies. To trap the culprits, the investigator invaded the privacy of thousands of unknowing subscribers.

Industrial espionage has become so widespread that business tycoons hire investigators to protect their secrets, much as ranch owners in the Old West needed fast guns to protect their property.

In a classic case, two rival cosmetic companies wound up hiring the same private eye, who happily collected from both camps. From a wiretap on the private phone of one company's president, a major competitor would learn what new products were planned and would beat his rival on the market with them. When the victims turned the problem over to the investigator, he triumphantly located the tap that he himself had installed for the competitor.

Another investigator planted a tiny television camera in a picture frame looking down on a conference room that had been chosen for an important business meeting. Guards were posted outside the room, while business executives studied secret industrial blueprints and production costs. Next door, investigator and client watched the proceedings on television over a bottle of Scotch.

Business leaders have become so wary of industrial espionage that many have adopted countermeasures. During the bidding on a $10 million municipal contract, a detective was hired by one bidder to find out how much his chief rival would hid. The bids are kept so secret that each firm's own representative usually must put through a telephone call just before the deadline to get the final figure. The detective simply planted a bug in the telephone booth which the rival bidder would most likely use. Unknown to the detective the competitor had taken into account the possibility of a wiretap and had made advance arrangements with his representative to bid $200,000 less than the figure quoted on the phone. The client, upon receiving the figure from the phone tap, submitted a bid only $100,000 lower and lost the contract by $100,000. The detective also lost a big commission, although not from lack of trying.

Detective agencies not only plant listening devices but undercover operatives inside business firms. Sometimes a company will hire a spy to watch its own employees and try to curb internal theft, which drains $2 billion annually from business profits. Other times a company will plant a spy in a competitor's plant to filch trade secrets.

The state of the s

record all—with pious warning that device's use is "Subject to legal restrictions which are sole responsibility of purchaser."

Such a mouchard—A. David Terpstra—was planted on the payroll of the H. L. Moore Drug Company of New Britain, Conn., which had been selling drug products for less than the manufacturer's "suggested prices." One of the big drug makers retained John Saviano, a New York City investigator, who had 43 undercovermen operating across the country. He used false references to obtain employment for Terpstra with the H. L. Moore company. Gradually, Terpstra worked his way into a position of confidence, where he could study the company's mail-order operation.

He mailed daily reports to Saviano, who compiled a sort of peeping "tome"—142 pages of information, single spaced, giving rundowns on 22 workers' office gossip, overheard conversations and even what the owner's brother Sam Moore did on his Florida vacation. As a result of Terpstra's spying, the drug manufacturers discovered Moore's suppliers, threatened reprisals and all but dried up his sources.

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

It must be remembered that all private investigators are not shady operators. Some organizations, such as the 100-company Council of International Investigators, propound eithics codes barring illegal or unethical wiretaps and requiring member agencies to counsel clients "against any illegal or unethical course of action." But I have come to the the reluctant conclusion from my own studies that there are more bad than good guys in the snooping business.

What can be done to protect the rights of individuals whose privacy is invaded by the investigators?

Legislation is needed to curb electronic eavesdropping, and the laws already on the books must be enforced. Bernard Spindell, a former private investigator who is now devoted to detecting and preventing eavesdropping, claims that ten years ago we were 25 years behind in regulating electronic equipment. He added that we are now 50 years behind, and the gap is widening.

The problem, however, is primarily one for the states, which must adopt more stringent standards for licensing private investigators. Only 22 states require any license at all. Where licenses are required—usually for the agency but not for all its agents—qualification is easy and revocation is rare. The investigators are not likely to respect the public's privacy as long as they serve their clients' needs and are not convicted of februies. Undercovermen often operate outside the states in which their agencies are licensed, blithely ignoring any local requirement that out of state agents be licensed.

The states should take action at once in this field. If they will not, then the federal government should move in to protect the privacy of all of us.

Peace Corps look: Mari Jo Decker and slapdash image she wanted to leave behind as four of duty ended.

'MAKE ME BEAUTIFUL"

AFTER TWO YEARS OF SHAGGY HAIR AND SNEAKERS, A PEACE CORPS GIRL CRIES FOR HEIP

by ROSALIND MASSOW

Beautician shows Mari Jo how to apply medicated mask to clear up blemished skin, result of poor diet.

Clothes, too, make the woman, Mari Jo learns as Helena Rubinstein's fashion expert tells her how to play down slender lines, play up blue eyes.

Unaccustomed to being pampered, Mari Jo finds it hard to relax with three beauty treatments going on at once. Special two-day cram course costs $100.

hat does a Peace Corps girl want most when she ends her tour of duty? Well, most of them have three wishes-a new wardrobe, a job and a man, in that order.

Mari Jo Decker, a 26-year-old volunteer recently returned from Cuenca, Ecuador, felt differently. Her dream was to present herself to a posh beauty salon in the United States and say, "Here I am, Do me over,"

While she was high in the Andes, Mari Jo wrote a famous beauty salon here. Could they, she asked, help transform a "shaggy-haired, sneakered Peace Corps volunteer into a sleek New York career girl?

"I have spent two years working with the blind, teaching English and helping a group of native knitters establish an export business in sweaters," Mari Jo explained in her letter. "While my Peace Corps experience has been rewarding, it is now time to come home and get back into my own culture.

"My apartment here has charm, but no hot water. I have to go to the public baths for a shower, and I never feel clean-too many bugs crawling around. An inadequate diet has left me, at my age, with adolescent skin problems. I would like to place myself at your disposal for a complete revamping. Could you possibly do something for me?"

Not long ago, having completed her tour of duty, the tall, slender girl from Long Valley, N.L., appeared for her treatment, and she admitted she was "a mess." In Ecuador, she said, neglecting one's appearance is almost a way of life.

"When you live among people in a low subsistence level, you don't think about how your nails look today, or how you should comb your hair," she said. "Your job is more important, and, if you're going to worry about something, it's going to be how to keep the flies out of your soup.

"You get to the point that when you have a spot on your dress, you don't even notice it. If you don't brush your teeth before going to a party, everybody understands. It takes 20 minutes to just boil the water to brush your teeth. And I can't tell you how many times I used to go to bed without washing my face. Cold water is not very comforting."

After sizing up her multiple problems, the experts at the salon took up the challenge. Step by step, the transformation of a skinny, neglected girl into a sophisticated beauty is shown on this page. Mari Jo got a cram course in how to dress, exercise, use makeup to advantage, take care of her skin and arrange her hair' -and emerged from it with her dream a reality.

"When we Peace Corps girls got together in Ecuador, we used to talk about how wonderful it would be to be completely pampered for one day. I never thought it would really happen. I'm thrilled.'

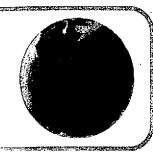

Ex-shaggy-haired Peace Corps girl emerges from beauty treatments with changed hair styling and radiant look. Presto! She's a new woman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Try a flavor idea adapted from India but new in its use with roast chicken. Make a curry stuffing, using curry powder and time-honored accompaniments—onion, apple, ginger, raisins, almonds and rice. Add curry powder and a generous amount of chopped chutney to the gravy for an Indian touch to a typically American dish.

roast chicken bombay

Sprinkle neck and body cavity of broiler-fryer chicken (3½ pounds) with ½ teaspoon each monosodium glutamate and salt. Stuff with Curry Stuffing.* Hook wingtip onto back to hold neck skin. Tie legs together, then tie to tail. Place chicken in shallow foil-lined pan. (It is not necessary to use a rack.) Brush with salad oil or shortening. Roast at 375° for 1½ hours. Serve with Chutney Gravy. Makes 4 servings.

¾ cup butter or margarine

3/4 cup chopped onion

1 small apple, peeled and chopped

1/2 cup raisins

1 to 2 teaspoons curry powder

1/e teaspoon ginger

1/2 cup slivered toasted almonds

1/4 teaspoon salt

11/2 cups cooked rice

Melt butter in saucepan. Add onion, apple, raisins and curry powder. Cook, stirring occasionally, until onion and apple are tender. Remove from heat. Stir in ginger, almonds, salt and rice. Mix well. Makes approximately 3 cups stuffing. (If any stuffing is left after neck and body cavities are filled, wrap in foil and heat in oven with chicken during last half hour.)

chutney gravy

1 can (103/4 oz.) chicken gravy

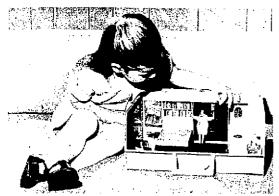

1/4 cup chopped chutney

1 teaspoon curry powder

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Heat to serving temperature, stirring occasionally. Makes approximately 1½ cups. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

MAKE LIFE EASIER—TAKE A LOOK AT THESE SMART NEW IDEAS FOR YOUR HOME AND FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

"Tinyroom": Something to intrigue a little girl in the family, here's a completely outfitted—including the doll—portable doll room (above) that she can take with her wherever she goes. The room, which is also the carrying case, has a collapsible handle, removable top. Included in it are furniture, lamps, phone, wardrobe of clothes: about $10 in stores. Fidon Industries, Dept. PP, Hawthorne, Calif.

Quilted food wrap: Newest food storage bag for your freezer or refrigerator is quilted—made of two plastic layers welded together with air bubble insulation between. Stiffer and stronger than conventional plastic wraps, it's also said to be free of static cling, easier to open and fill. It doesn't stick to other bags in the freezer, can be cleaned in dishpan or washer and reused repeatedly. 30 qt.-size (5½" x 10") or 15 gal.-size (11" x 15") bags: 49g in stores. Mobil Plastics Division (Hefty), Dept. PP, Macedon, N.Y.

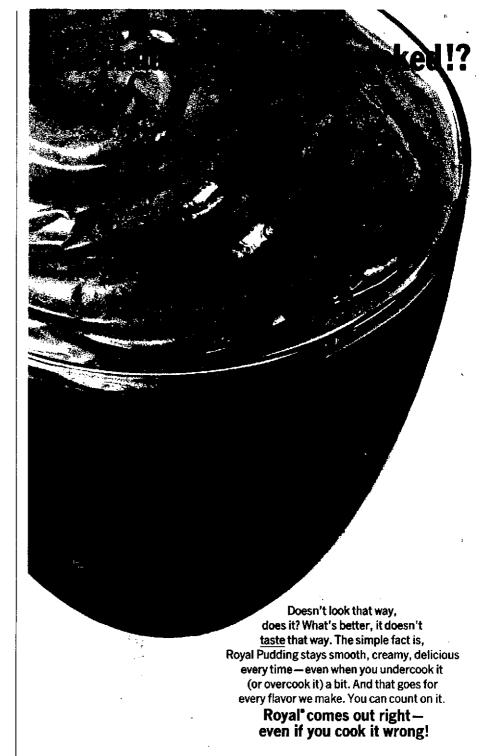

Antirust spray: You can protect boating equipment, fishing reels, guns, sporting goods with a new aerosol that forms a nontacky transparent film claimed to be "self-healing" if scratched. It will not harm painted or plastic surfaces, can be removed with any light solvent. $1.69. Tempo Products, Dept. PP, 6200 Cochran Road, Cleveland, O., 44139.

Versatile shears: You can use this pair of shears (above) for many jobs around the house—cutting paper, wallhoard, tile, tin cans, wire, metal, tree branches. The tempered steel blades are said to make safe, clean cuts. Handles are plated finish. 8½" long. $1.29. Walter Drake & Sons, Dept. PP, Drake Building, Colorado Springs, Colo., 80901.

Dye in a pouch: Just drop a dye-filled plastic pouch directly into water or into your washing machine, and the pouch dissolves in 30 seconds, releasing contents. The maker claims the packaging simplifies home dyeing processes, eliminating any possibility of spilled dye, of dye particles blowing onto clothes or furniture and other accidental staining. The dye itself is said to be fadeless and nonstaining to washing machine. 35g. Putnam Dyes, Dept. PP, Quincy, Ill.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

EDITOR'S NOYE: Billy Fallo, a native of Chicago, started out in life as a Golden Gloves prizefighter. A physical education major, he left college to join the Army, where he decided to become a singer. On leaving the service he was signed by Stan Kenton as a band vocalist.

One night when the show's comedian fell ill, Falbo was asked to substitute. He did so well he switched to comedy and has played the nightclub circuit ever since. He's appeared at the Sahara in Las Vegas, the Latin Quarter in New York, the Playboy Club in Hollywood, the Tidelands in Houston.

Falho now makes his home in Hinsdale, Ill., where he has a horse ranch. "Since I'm not married," he explains, "I race quarter horses." Herewith some of Billy's favorite funnies:

A customer walked into a pet shop and spied a parrot. He ambled over to the bird and said, "Hey, can you speak, stupid?" The bird answered, "Yes. Can you fly, dummy?"

Did you ever stop and think whatever happened to the old gang—where they are, when they're getting out?

On the wharf in San Francisco a man walked into a restaurant and asked, "Do you serve crabs?" The kindhearted waitress said quickly, "Now you sit right down and nobody will recognize you."

They have only two types of pedestrians in Los Angeles—the quick and the dead.

The people in Los Angeles are very friendly. This morning a large funeral was passing by. I approached a man in the street and said, "Pardon me, sir. Who died?" The man said, "I don't know, but I think it's the fella in the first car."

An agent introduced his new stripper to the manager of a local burlesque house. "Max," he said, "I want you to meet Sally Something. She's the greatest, absolutely the greatest."

Max nodded, shook hands with the cutie, then said impatiently, "Just don't stand there, sweetie. Undo something."

I have a girl friend. She's so skinny she looks like six o'clock up and down. She's so bowlegged that when she sits around the house, she sits around the house.

Women who insist on wearing the pants usually discover that it's other women who are wearing the furs.

anecdote of the week

■ Frank Powolney, for the past 40 years one of Hollywood's greatest portrait photographers, gave this parting bit of advice when he checked off the 20th Century-Fox lot this past week: "Remember, young fella," he said to his replacement, "that the easiest way to turn a woman's head is to tell her she has a wonderful profile."

OUR OLDEST VICE PRESIDENT

by ODILIA MARIE JACQUES

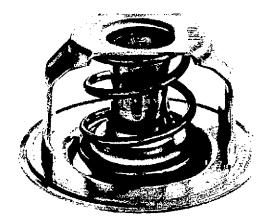

ohn Nance Garner walked into a Uvalde, Tex., bank one day back in 1887, deposited his life's earnings, $151.25, and wished he were dead—anyplace else, away from Uvalde. His lungs were weak so he had come for his health, but he hated the parched little frontier town where friendship seemed to be measured either by the length of one's residence or by the notches on one's gun. John had neither. Nevertheless, he stayed. A few years later, he not only owned the bank but also had managed to win enough friends to get elected to almost every choice political office—and without any notches on his gun.

Tough, leathery Cactus Jack, who rode roughshod over Democratic politicians for years and who can still work himself up into a creamy froth over government spending, was that kind of man. Goaded by ambition and a desire to make up for a patchwork education, he would saunter in, look the situation over, shake hands all around and take over. And if anyone said it couldn't be done, he'd look the doubter in the eye, turn, spit and reply, "Impossible, hell!"

Today the man who was Franklin Delano Roosevelt's first Vice President has the same wild bronco self-assurance, the same prickly tongue, the same rapid-fire comeback that puts him in command of a situation. Garner already has lived longer than any other Vice President—or President—of the U.S.A., but one gets the feeling that, even approaching his 98th birthday on Nov. 22, he remains very much in interests, lives next door.

Garner still likes to get up early. He usually eats breakfast at 7:30. Because reading and writing have become increasingly difficult, he just chats with his attendants or sits outside under the giant oak trees. Then he sleeps again until midafternoon, has a light lunch and watches television. He has what he calls his "good spells" and "bad spells" and occasionally looses all the fury of past campaigns on his nurses—all are members of one family, and all show a great deal of affection for the old man. Says one of the nurses, "Oh, he'll raise hell one day to get his own way, but the next day he'll be the same kind man we knew as kids. I guess when you get to be his age you've got a right to be cranky now and again."

Sometimes during his "good spells" the old sense of humor emerges, and he gets a devilish glint in his blue eyes as he quips in his characteristic high pitch, "I'm the only 98-year-old with a 70-year-old babysitter," or explains why he has forgotten the month, "Well, how can I remember when I don't do anything big for the Fourth of July anymore? It used to be that it was a great day—really did strike some good blows for liberty." His "blows for liberty" (shots of whiskey) were banned by his doctor long ago.

Physically he is still strong, and son Tally says the old man could pretty well lift him off the ground "if he had a mind to." Told by a reporter that he was in better shape than many men 65. Garner snapped. "I'm in better shape than many men 25!" His only affliction—cataracts—is slowly dimming his sight, but he is still addicted to televised baseball and sometimes has two games tuned in at the same time.

A devout admirer of President Johnson, Garner says, "He likes me, and I like him. We gee and haw well together."

AVOIDS POLITICS

Perhaps referring to President Johnson and the Vietnam war, Garner recently remarked, "The U.S. is not going to make any mistakes in foreign wars for we have wise men in Washington to take care of the situation." This is as close as he comes to comment ing on politics, a decision he made in 1941 after disagreeing with Roosevelt over the latter's third-term decision. It was Garner's belief that no man should run for a third term. When his counsel was not heeded, he packed, left Washington and vowed never to cross the Potomac again and never to discuss politics. Today, even in moments of foggy recollection, these decisions seem firmly implanted.

Garner never took vows or challenges lightly. At 10 he was told he couldn't possibly pick 100 pounds of cotton in one day. He did, sold the cotton, bought a mule, then resold the mule at a neat profit.

At 20 he was told at Vanderbilt University that his former education was inadequate and that he would have to leave. Some years later the same university offered him an honorary degree. He refused it. By the time he was 21, he had studied enough law privately to be admitted to the Texas bar. Four years later, he won his first elective office—county judge of Uvalde.

Then came his most crucial test. He fell in love with pretty Ettie Rheiner, and, although he had never met her, he was determined to marry her. His friends had a good laugh. Marry him? Why, she wouldn't even talk to him. In fact she'd done everything in her power to get him defeated in his race for the judgeship. She'd been a one-woman campaign against him and his drinking and gambling. A slim, delicate girl, Ettie was the daughter of one of the first settlers of the area and well-educated besides, unusual for women in Texas then. She knew history and literature and even shorthand! Garner listened to the dire predictions, tucked in his cowboy shirt, tossed back his sandy hair and boarded a train for San Antonio. They met on the train-by accident, of course-and were married a vear later.

Garner has been characterized as tough, unruly, even crude—and he was, but to understand why, one has to know the Texas of young Garner. Unbridled and unbroken, Texas was in the last Indian struggle in 1868 when Garner was born. He came into the world in a log cabin, with all the hardships and privations that frontier life implies. It was a tough time of lusty men who stood rifle in hand, ready to slug it out toe to toe with bandits or Indians. There was no turning the other cheek. Those who did died. A frontiersman had to believe in himself. Men carried the law with them, and a man had to know what he stood for and what he would do about it if he were challenged.

John Nance Garner inherited this way of life and thought. He was an Old Testament politician who rewarded and punished. He knew what he stood for, and he stood firm down to his socks. Once he was sent to the Imperial Japanese Court and was instructed not only to remove his shoes but also to wear better socks. The emperor, after all, was considered a god by his people, and white cotton socks would be insulting, particularly in view of Japan's silk industry. "I don't give a damn if he is a god," Garner thundered. "I'll wear my own socks!" He did.

This type of head-on gall was a trademark from the time Garner first ran for Congress. He was rough, raw, just a bit untamed. Men in Texas politics then were usually rich men—Dibrell of Seguin, Kleberg of the King Ranch, Maverick of San Antonio, Scott of Corpus Christi. Garner had to decide whether or not his ambition was enough of a match for a millionaire's rooms.

He "hitched up his pants" Texas style and started out on fnot, on horseback, in a horse and buggy, by stagecoach—any way that he could go—to cover the 400-by-200 mile area. He traveled 22 counties, his backbone paralyzed from the sitting, his throat raw from the dust and the speechmaking. He went from church revivals to ranch barbecues, pumping hands, remembering names and building up such a tidal wave of support that his opponent withdrew.

Garner arrived in Washington virile, strutting, his ten-gallon hat rivaling the Capitol dome. Reaction to him at first was jeering. Here was this ludicrous little cowboy trying to play statesman. Within two weeks, however, he was calling all the representatives by their first names. Within six weeks he was playing poker with the Speaker of the House.

A practical man, Garner believed in getting to the core of a problem. "Don't tell me what the bill savs," he told a windy senator. "Tell me what it does."

As Speaker of the House, he was not above intimidating recalcitrant congressmen. Once when several balked on some budgetary give-and-take, he called out, "All those who wish to balance the budget please rise." He looked around quietly, giving everyone a chance to get up. "Let the record so note. Let all those who do not wish to balance the budget stand." No one stood.

HE OPENED THE SHOP

Such control was quite an accomplishment for a man who had met with a closed shop when he first went to Washington. He wondered, but only briefly, whether he could compete with other congressmen and senators who had been educated at Harvard and Yale. His first move was to become an expert in par liamentary procedure. Next he decided to get to know House Speaker Clark quite well, Soon Clark was calling on Garner to preside in his absence. Garner received such complete acceptance that when he was to be elected Speaker, his colleagues came in record numbers-one on a stretcher, two in wheelchairs. The respect and admiration in which he was held have been equaled by few other Speakers. Garner, who remembered how Texas men often got together in friendship and drinks before settling their business. initiated his "board of education" cloakroom, where congressmen were invited to sit "a spell" and have "one for liberty" before talking out differences.

Garner was always frank and direct. To Republican Teddy Roosevelt, he once said, "Come to Texas, Mr. President. The people of Texas love you. They'll do anything in the world for you but vote for you."

Throughout his public life, Garner never forgot the little man. He was chiefly responsible, for example, for the graduated income tax whereby a man pays according to what he earns. The committee originally intended to report a flat rate until Garner decided to "reason" with some members.

For his birthday this year, the fur fined hunting britches that used to make an annual appearance in November will remain in the closet. Perhaps because of his age Garner will forget the day, or perhaps there will still be memories of past birthdays when he and good friend Ross Brumfield would take off across the hills in search of deer or turkey. Whatever the day brings, Garner seems unimpressed with the fact that he is the only Vice President or President ever to live this long. Asked how he felt about the distinction, he retorted sharply. "I'm glad to be alive, aren't vou? Will I live to be 100? Of course."

He might just be stubborn enough to make it especially when you take into account that when he was 19 doctors predicted that his lungs were in such terrible shape he couldn't possibly live much longer. Impossible, hell!

course in courting. British education is getting more practical everyday. At Whitworth Secondary Modern School in Rochdale, Lancashire, 50 teenagers are taking a course in courting. "We are not trying to make great lovers out of our pupils," explains headmaster John Featherstone. "But children do mature much earlier nowadays. They start courting at 14 and 15, and they should know what it's all about."

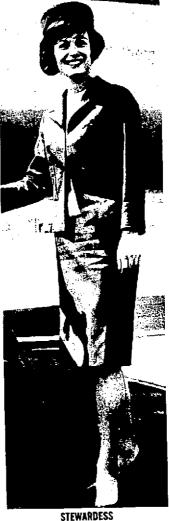

Biology teacher Vivian Davies is in charge of the courting class, claims it has become one of the most useful and popular courses in the entire curriculum. "The students present their own courting problems," she reveals. "We discuss the solutions. We warn about the pitfalls of sex before marriage, of what a boy and a girl should expect on a date. Some of the pupils are shy to begin with, but after a few discussions they all warm to it."

NO EXERCISE IN GOLF. "Golf, when played by middle-aged sedentary men, is not suitable activity for improving physical fitness to any great extent." That's the verdict of Dr. Leroy Getchell of Ball State University, Muncie, Ind., who conducted a study on the subject.

Dr. Getchell discovered in his research that an average foursome spends 36.6% of the time walking, 34.5% standing, 20.4% on the putting greens and 8.5% of the time swing-ing at the ball-

DIPLOMATS' DAUGHTERS. There was a time when the daughters of diplomats did little more than go to finishing schools and get married. No more. Nowadays they get jobs. In France the daughters are gravitating to the film industry. Couve de Murville, the Foreign Minister; Roger Frey. Minister of the Interior, and André Malraux, Minister of Culture — all have daughters working in the movie business.

THE NEW GERMAN WOMAN: SHE NOW HAS WIDER INTERESTS

THE GERMAN WOMAN. West Germany has recently published a 639-page report on women. It reveals that many housewives are depressed and frustrated, a condition which is paralleled in the U.S.

"The housewife's work cannot be circumscribed," states the report. "It is not so much the necessarily repetitive nature of many of the domestic chores as the lack of intellectual stimulation and social contact. Aware of this lack, she feels herself becoming isolated or stunted in the development of her faculties."

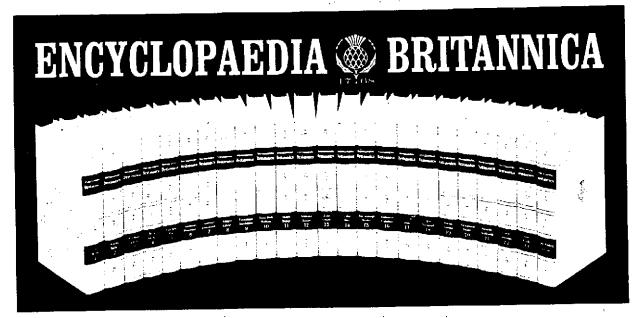

One possible solution: part-time jobs. For the frustrated housewife a part-time job is not only a way of earning extra or needed money, it serves as a link with the outside world. There are 17,000 part-time vacancies in labor-short Germany at the moment, but many employers are fearful of employing women. There is also a great shortage of nurseries and kindergartens in which to leave children while mothers go out to work.

Owing to World War II, there are more women than men in West Germany. At the last Bundestag elections 21 million women and only 17.4 million men were entitled to vote. Women hope, therefore, to legislate more nurseries and kindergartens into existence so they can emerge from the kitchen. In the old days the life of the average German woman centered about children, church and cooking. Today only 120,000 mothers -- fewer than 2% -- have more than four children, while 2.75 million mothers have only one child. A new breed of women is emerging in West Germany.
